JACK GERAGHTY, MAYOR

Greetings!

As Mayor of the City of Spokane and on behalf of the City Council, it gives me great pleasure to welcome all of the participants of the National Chicano Studies Conference.

Congratulations on your 22nd conference. We are pleased to be the host city for participants from eight regions of our Country. We invite you to make yourselves at home in our beautiful city and encourage you to discover the amenities Spokane has to offer. Please take the time to enjoy the attractions of downtown Riverfront Park, our many cultural activities, shopping and fine restaurants.

My best wishes for a successful conference.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "Jack Geraghty".

Bienvenidos A Aztlan del Norte
Welcome to Northern Aztlan

On behalf of the National Association for Chicano Studies 1995 Conference Organizing Committee, I extend a warm welcome to you to Spokane, Washington for the XXII annual meeting of NACS.

We are excited because this marks the first time the NACS National Conference has come to the northwest.

The planning, organizing and staging of this year's NACS conference is the result of collaborative efforts involving colleagues from Central Washington University, Eastern Washington University, University of Washington, Washington State University, Gonzaga University and others from the community.

The conference theme for this year emerged from discussions at the national and regional level of the association. This year's theme, "Expanding Raza World Views: Sexuality and Regionalism", will focus on two critical areas attracting much attention in our public dialogue.

The focus on sexuality is critical in furthering our discourse about gender, sexism, and homophobia in our community. It is important to discuss how our notions of sexuality impact social relationships based on race, class, gender, and sexual orientation within and beyond our communities. We believe that our discourse will help expand our individual and collective understanding and discussion on sexuality. The Chicana Caucus' plenary which will focus on sexual harassment will surely contribute to this discussion.

The focus on regionalism also attempts to expand our individual and collective understanding that the Chicano community is not restricted to a southwestern experience. We need to expand our knowledge about Chicano communities which have emerged beyond southwestern United States. The historical and contemporary experience of Chicano communities in these areas can no longer be marginalized in our research and understanding of the national experience of the Chicano community.

The conference will include insightful presentations founded on diverse orientations and disciplines, an artists reception and exhibition; a march through downtown Spokane to commemorate Cesar Chavez and the continuing farmworkers' struggle; a publishers exhibit; a lively "Noche de Cultura" and a gran baile which will close the conference.

We are striving to provide an exciting conference experience that is welcoming to all, intellectually rich, and filled with an opportunity to establish and renew old friendships during your visit.

I thank the members of the NACS Conference Organizing Committee; the funding contributors and the National Association for Chicano Studies for collectively generating this exciting opportunity to promote Chicano/a Studies.

Carlos S. Maldonado, Chair
NACS 1995 Conference Organizing Committee.

NACS FACT SHEET

The National Association for Chicano Studies (NACS) emerged in 1972 to encourage research critical in the political actualization of the Chicano community. NACS is an association of scholars, students and community members from the U.S. and internationally interested in promoting Chicano Studies.

NACS has presupposed a divergence from mainstream academic research based on an integrationalist perspective emphasizing consensus, assimilation, and the legitimacy of societal institutions.

NACS promotes research aimed at directly confronting structures of inequality based on class, race and gender privileges in U.S. society.

NACS research contributes towards generating insights leading to effective problem solving action addressing pressing problems and issues affecting our community.

Beyond the notion of research, NACS serves as a forum promoting communication and exchange of ideas among Chicano/a scholars across geographical and disciplinary lines.

NACS is also involved in enhancing the participation of Chicanos/as in all levels and positions in institutions of higher education.

NACS stages an annual national conference which attracts 1500 to 2000 participants.

NACS publishes selected proceedings from annual conferences and special volumes relevant to current issues in the Chicano community. These publications are available through the NACS National Office.

The association also publishes "Noticias de NACS", a quarterly newsletter.

The NACS National office is located and housed at Eastern Washington University in the State of Washington.

NACS is directed by a National Coordinating Board consisting of regional representatives, caucuses, and committees.

Mission of The NACS
National Office

The NACS National Office, established by the NACS Coordinating Committee in 1992 serves as the association's business headquarters. The National Office is charged by the NACS Coordinating Committee to maintain the association's membership data bank, produce and disseminate the association's quarterly newsletter, house and distribute the association's publications including but not limited to published conference proceedings, promote NACS by distributing information about the association to interested individuals and/or organizations, and provide a report to the NACS Coordinating Committee twice a year regarding the status and progress of the NACS National Office.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF NACS NATIONAL OFFICE ACTIVITIES

Quarterly Newsletter - The NACS National Office is responsible for producing and distributing "Noticias de NACS", an organizational newsletter aimed at informing the association's membership and interested individuals/groups about the activities of NACS and news and information relevant to Chicano/a Studies.

Noticias de NACS is published quarterly. Its distribution is over 2000. It is mailed throughout the U.S. and to members abroad (Japan, France, etc.) The newsletter contains book reviews, reports on conferences, professional opportunities, reports from members of the NACS Coordinating Committee including the various caucuses; community news and a host of other items.

Membership Data Bank - The NACS National Office is charged by the NACS Coordinating Committee to maintain and expand the association's Membership Data Bank. The National Office distributes membership forms and receives association membership fees. The NACS Membership Data Bank today exceeds 2,000. A membership mailing list is made available for purchase by publishers, university personnel offices, and other interested parties.

NACS Publications - The NACS National Office is charged by the NACS Coordinating Committee to serve as the central housing and distribution of the association's publications including but not limited to published conference proceedings. The NACS National Office is presently marketing three publications including:

- (1)- "Community Empowerment and Chicano Scholarship".
Selected Conference Proceedings of the National Association for Chicano Studies, 1992. Edited by Mary Romero and Cordelia Candelaria.
- (2)- "Chicano Discourse". Selected Conference Proceedings of the National Association for Chicano Studies, 1992.
Editors: Tatcho Mindiola Jr. and Emilio Zamora.
- (3)- "Chicano Studies: Critical Connection Between Research and Community". A special volume by the NACS Political Action Committee, 1992. Edited by Teresa Cordova.

NACS Information Center - The NACS National Office also provides information to individuals/organizations interested about NACS, Chicano/a Studies and other related information. These items include: A fact sheet about NACS; listing of Chicano/a Ethnic Studies departments, programs and centers; speakers; and other relevant information.

SEXUAL HARRASSMENT STATEMENT

NACS acknowledges that sexual harassment has been and continues to be a continuing problem in the association. NACS is committed to providing a sexual harassment-free environment at its national and regional conferences, meetings, and events. Sexual harassment is the deliberate or repeated unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature. It is distinguished from voluntary sexual relationships by the introduction of the elements of coercion, threat, or unwanted attention. It is the IMPACT of the behavior, not the INTENT, which is used to determine whether the behavior constitutes sexual harassment.

Sexual harassment can also be an “environmental” issue. A “hostile” environment is created by sexual jokes or remarks, sexually explicit pictures or unwelcome physical contact.

Sexual harassment can occur between men and women, men and other men, or between women. There is same gender harassment and women harassing men. By far, however, the majority of sexual harassment cases involve a man in a position of power over a woman.

Sexual harassment can involve a professor and student; a teaching assistant and student; a supervisor and an employee; colleagues, co-workers, and peers; and/or strangers.

Sexual harassment can affect the harassed by causing confusion, self-doubt, humiliation, anxiety, guilt, and physical stress.

Sexual harassment is a form of discrimination that is covered under Title VII of the amended 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Illegal and unacceptable behavior includes:

1. Unwelcome teasing, jokes, remarks or questions about sex.
2. Unwelcome sexually suggested looks or gestures.
3. Unwelcome and deliberate touching or body contact such as patting or pinching.
4. Unwelcome pressure for dates or sexual favors.
5. Unwelcome letters, telephone calls or materials on the subject of sex.

There are several options in responding to sexual harassment. If you feel sexually harassed, trust your feelings and instincts. You may:

1. Communicate your disapproval with the harasser in person or in writing.
How you communicate is important; be direct and firm.
2. Write a letter to the harasser and in addition, another person with jurisdiction.
 - a. Provide a detailed factual account of what happened with dates, place and description.
 - b. Describe your feelings.
 - c. Explain what you want to happen next.
3. File a legal complaint, documenting all incidents, conversations, and witnesses.
Inform yourself about grievance procedures.

The National Association for Chicano Studies, and in particularly the NACS Chicana Caucus encourages those who have been sexually harassed to step forward. Any person who feels she or he has been harassed, should contact a NACS officer or the national office.
