Co-ed Faction Joins In Battle; Junior Victory Hopes Perish Suddenly

Horning First To Bathe; Seniors Finally Win Fracas

Yesterday at the Seaciff Salient the Senior Class culminated a week's stringent warfare by filling the gaps in their ranks with loyal women and crushing a desperate force of fighting Juniors by sheer weight of numbers.

After long and careful preparation and a display of masterful secrecy and strategy the Senior contingent arrived at Seaciff Beach in the grey of the morning some two hundred strong. Aided by the experience of another such war in the past they arrived heavily armed with ropes and determination and immediately entrenched themselves in anticipation of the expected attack of Junior men. (Not to speak of the women.)

At ten-thirty a truck load of food arrived (guarded by only two men) and the Seniors, with their women by their sides and their lunches in their laps had something to fight for.

At eleven o'clock thirty fighting Junior men hove in sight in

Sportsmanship Fine; Ball Game Taken By Seniors, 7-4

The Senior Sneak Day which has just passed into history was marked by a more intense spirit and a finer show of sportsmanship than was ever seen before on the State College campus.

Hostilities started Monday night with the "kidnaping" of Horning's ancient Ford roadster, and wire-tapping excursions by the Juniors in an effort to learn the date and location set for "Sneak Day."

On Tuesday evening the war swung into force with the kidnaping of DeFraga and Merrill by the Juniors, and the overnight imprisonment of Bud Applegarth, Vagts, and Williams by the Seniors.

At eleven o'clock Wednesday morning a group of Juniors invaded the sanctity of Harlow Hanlon's bathroom and snatched him from his bath. Hanlon was left tied at the Lions' Den near Alum Rock; but managed to escape.

La Torre Student Body Dance To Be Tonight

Tonight in the Men's gymnasium, the La Torre dance will take place. La Torre sales were scheduled to cease promptly at 6:00 p. m. Friday, but because of the dance, sales will be held open until 12:00 that night, salesmen being on the floor at all times to receive your last minute orders.

Carl Palmer and Kay Lindsay are supervisors of the dance, which will be the next to last Student Body dance of this year. Max Lenz's orchestra will provide the music, due to student demand.

This will be a sport dance. The theme is to be Evening, as represented in the last section of La Torre. The orchestra will play before a background of evening blue.

Juniors watched the school trucks all through Wednesday night, with plans to capture the Senior food. At eight-thirty, knowing that the Seniors had left, they relinquished guard duty to the hands of higher powers, and at nine o'clock the Dodge

Horning's Ancient Ford Is Returned With New Black Paint

Faithful old Henry, the car of John Horning, student body president, chugged over the Santa Cruz grade yesterday morning, carrying four Juniors and a shiny new coat of black lacquer.

After the battle and duckings were over, Horning was escorted to his 1926 Ford (free adv.). Tears brimmed in his eyes as he said, "Poor old steed. His face has turned black with the shame of carrying Juniors."

A few moment of contemplation passed however, and Horning decided that perhaps the trusty chariot was even more handsome than before. (Free adv.) After thanking the Juniors, John enquired how the car had taken the grade.

"Hub," snorted Greenleaf, "We had to push it up." (No adv.)

"Well," grinned Johnny, "I certainly appreciate the care that was taken of my auto, and that coat of black paint sure looks like a new suit."

The Juniors who drove the car over then shook hands all around, and the event closed happily.

La Torre Sales Close Today.

The melee—Juniors and Seniors, men and women, tangling in a mad struggle to tie the "other fellow" and get him into the water. Feminine brutality was displayed.

Later in the day these Senior women seized two cars of Junior women who arrived, and gave them a coat of red mercurchrome. The Junior women departed, their vanity and dignity deeply wounded, to scrub off the red stuff that gave them the Indian-like appearance.

These Divorcees

"I demand a reconciliation between Mr. Gene Early and Mrs. Helen Early," so spoke Judge Lubowski as he closed definitely the divorce case that has been raging for two days in the above-mentioned professor's eight o'clock class. With gavel and gown Dr. Lubowski presenting the decision after several moments of deliberation, was indeed imposing.

The case presented by Ed Phelps acting as lawyer for the defendant, Mrs. Gene Early, alias Helen Silva, was for a divorce action on the grounds of cruelty and infidelity.

Witness for the defendant, Dorothy Woodrow, testified to having seen Mr. Early in company with another woman, one Mrs. Lopez, on the beach at Santa Cruz and at the Hotel Casa Del Rey. Miss Topham, second witness for the defendant, corroborated the statement of having seen Mr. Early in company with another woman on the beach at Santa Cruz.

Bob Leland, attorney for the defense, brought to the stand as a witness Mrs. Louise McKeown, who testified to the fact that Mrs. Early was seen in San Francisco on the 25th of April in the company of an unknown gentleman. Jimmie Lynn, the unknown gentleman, was called to the stand in defense of Mrs. Early.

Attorney Bob Leland created the sensation of the morning when he introduced Mrs. Evelyn Lopez as a surprise and as the star witness. Mrs. Lopez in her testimony admitted of being on the beach and at Santa Cruz with Mr. Early, but stated that before her marriage to Mr. J. Lopez she was Evelyn Early, sister of Gene Early.

Prominent people visiting yesterday morning's court were: Frank C. Chalfant, Erna Faxon, and Pauline Guida. It might be well to state that the entire court proceedings was in French.

Johnny Weismuller is being acclaimed by critics as the first sport champion who can act. He is appearing at the Cal in "Tarzan, the Ape Man." Maureen O'Sullivan, the Irish lass, appears opposite him.

The Moving Finger

Thurman Frick again goes after and gets notoriety. This time he was arrested in Golden Gate Park for selling Socialist literature. A wise judge threw the case out of court "for lack of evidence."

When I first met Frick I was a cub reporter on the Times staff and had written a comment or two on the virulent communications that came in over the initials "F. G. F."

He attacked capitalism, high school principals who wouldn't let the girls attend classes in pajamas, and everyone who was ultra righteous. One of his letters, which, of course, was never printed, advised teachers against too much morality.

For last year's Bum's Day, he started growing a beard that delighted him so much that he kept right on growing it. In warm weather his costume consisted of a pair of white shorts to which he sometimes added sandals and a shirt.

He was only funny. And yet he did good work in startling people into inspecting the beliefs that they had been holding. He hated shams and platitudes and cheap moralities, and used circus methods to get his ideas across.

In a past age he undoubtedly would have been burned at the stake and posthumously declared a saint. Now he can't even get a jail term.

Irene Dunne has been given the choice lead in Edna Ferber's, "So Big." In this she will have a role similar to the one in "Cimarron", in that she will portray various stages of a woman's life. Colleen Moore made "So Big" one of her best pictures in the pre-sound days.

Today or Never

"Today or never" might easily be the sign on the La Torre office door today, for sales of the 1931-32 annual close tonight.

As an annual the San Jose State College La Torre in the past has been recognized nationally and as a source of memories is treasured by all students.

This edition is to be no exception. For the last year Howard Nelson, with the aid of the Art department, has worked tirelessly to put out a publication that is worthy of the students it represents.

From a glance at the dummy, Howard is to be congratulated for his work and success.

If one doesn't happen to have the $1.50 necessary for the down payment for the La Torre, the editor has made it possible for any student to reserve a La Torre by handing in the date upon which he will be able to pay the money.

This privilege extended in this time of "depression" to insure a copy for every member of the student body is to be commended.

Are You a Leader?

Students, in this college, San Jose State, are some men and women, ranging between the ages of 19 and 22, who are the pillars which hold up our honorable institution.

They are the ones who, having State's interests at heart, endeavor to make this college one that they can be proud of. They do the dirty work, the social work, and the school work, making names for themselves in so doing.

Get acquainted with them, don't be jealous of their successes, applaud them and cooperate with them, for, after all, there must be leaders and followers in any branch of life. All can not be leaders, so be content with your station in life, and life will appear more rosey.

One so often hears the remarks: "Oh, he gripes me," "He's a pain in the neck to me," "He's got the big-head."

These remarks are brutal, to say the least, for things have to be done and the ones who do them deserve the credit.

Be more broad-minded.

If a student expends his efforts he should be congratulated. Therefore, if people are not satisfied with things as they are, it is up to them to remedy them.

If more students on the campus would work for the college instead of selfishly getting their share and no more, State would be one of the most delightful places on earth, but so few do the work—the rest idly gaze on and criticize.

Students, look to the personalities of self—maybe there is something to be corrected.

My friend is not perfect—no more am I—and so we suit each other admirably.—Pope.

Chronicle of Small Bee

He Rose from the Depths.
(Saga of an Epoch-Maker.)

Henry Muugs, affectionately called "The Old Scoundrel" by his contemporaries, wasn't born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He had been, he probably would have choked,—and who are we to say what's best and what isn't? At any rate, he showed his interest in economics early in life, advising his mother to feed him his milk in his father's empty whiskey bottles, thereby cutting down expenses. He also realized the tremendous advantage of early rising, because every morning at six o'clock the little darling would rise up in his cradle and yell to his sleeping parents, "He you mugs! If one of you can exert himself to the extent of crawling into the kitchen, I'd like to have my spoonful of Wheatena (adv.) Every time his father would stagger in at two or three in the morning, the cute little devil would yell, "Ma! The old gentlemen is blotto again!" was certainly fortunate that little Henry recovered from the injuries sustained when his father accidentally dropped him on the floor.

In grammar school, Henry became more and more preoccupied. While other boys were playing marbles or run-sheep-run, Henry would be standing on the corner arguing about the five-year plan with a member of the city council. He always had to figure things out for himself when he heard the proverb, "a rolling stone gathers no moss," did he swallow it (the proverb) without a question? No, he rolled a stone for three miles until he satisfied himself that there would be no moss collected that day. He also decided that it wouldn't have made a hell of a lot of difference if the stone had gathered moss, but that's another story.

He made his way through college by molding and flinging hats and other delicacies in a Harvey House, where he soon learned that the last five peas are the hardest to corner.

By the time he graduated from college, he had begun to think about his life work. The inspiration came to him by accident. He was standing in front of a up-town newsstand, reading a continued story in a magazine when he heard two men talking right behind him. One said, "I had one hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars in stocks and bonds, and fifteen thousand in property, to say nothing of a hound dog stand in Sunnyside. Then the crash came. And now where am I? I have to rob the baby's bank in order to buy a carnation for my button-hole."

The other man answered soothingly, "That's all right, John. Look for the silver lining." Henry Muugs started. That is, he started to go. He had an idea! For years he had heard of people who were looking for the silver lining in clouds. Had he ever heard of a person who had found this lining? No! He would electrify the world by manufacturing clouds with silver linings!

A Spartan Tradition

Reaching a degree of organization that has been unrivalled for the last few years, the Senior and Junior classes yesterday staged a Sneak Day that probably insures the continuation of one of the college's most successful traditions.

As executed the affair climaxed the rivalry between two classes, which has existed since the Juniors entered the college three years ago.

This rivalry has drawn forth the best efforts of both classes in doing service for the school they represent and their classes.

Dramatics, literary work, athletics,—in fact all of the activities of the school have prospered in this friendly combat, and within a few weeks a new Junior-Senior battle will be forthcoming with another class entering the contest.

Some may criticize Sneak Day as a worthless expenditure of energy and accumulation of bruises, but this is unjustifiable.

It may not be valued in dollars and cents, but is an indelible addition to the memories of college life—a fact that places it on a par with the traditions of other colleges.

June Becker To Be W.A.A. President for Coming Year

ELECTIONS ARE HELD AT DINNER METING WEDNESDAY

June Becker was elected president of the Women's Athletic Association at a banquet held by that organization in the Women's gymnasium Wednesday night. Helen Templeton was elected vice president; Gertrude Keturi, athletic manager; Dorothy Kirby, secretary; Lorraine Pawley, recorder of activities; and Jean B. Smith, reporter.

Seventy-five women attended the banquet, enjoying a good supper and dancing. Julie Peterson, outgoing president of the W. A. A., was in charge of the affair, having among her chief helpers Violet Swank, Berta Gray, Eleanor Raydorf, and Helen Smith.

Sophomore waitresses in blue and yellow paper aprons served the banquet. Freshmen girls did a fine job of clean-up afterward.

President Peterson announced the awards to be presented on Recognition Day.

Choir Members To Be the Guests of Residents in South

TRIP WILL BE MADE BY AUTO DURING COMING WEEK

Saturday morning at 12 o'clock sharp twelve members of the Verse Speaking Choir will leave for Los Angeles and way points, accompanied by their director, Miss Elizabeth Jenks. They are making the trip by automobile. On Saturday night they will play at a San Luis Obispo hotel and proceed south early Sunday morning.

Upon their arrival on Sunday evening they will be entertained at dinner by a member of the Pomona Junior College faculty.

During their week in the south they will stay with various residents of the particular locality in which they are entertaining.

On Sunday night arrangements have been made to stay at Pomona. Monday and Thursday nights will be spent in San Bernardino, while on Tuesday and Wednesday they will be guests of Redlands residents.

From the plans that have been arranged the students will be accepted as guests rather than simply entertainers. Several receptions have been planned for them and Miss Jenks.

Program Varied

The choir has been scheduled to appear at Pomona High School and Ontario Junior College on Monday, at Colton J. C. and Riverside High School on Tuesday. On Wednesday four programs have been arranged, Redlands High School in the morning, Service Club at noon, University of Redlands in the afternoon, and for the community singing group in the evening. Thursday they will appear at the San Bernardino High School and at noon for another service club. On Friday they will speak for the San Bernardino Junior College.

Germany Sends Collegians Back To Their Farms

"Back to the land" seems to be the cry of young men in German universities, who, in normal times, would have become college professors. The field of academic professions being a crowded one, Berlin and Leipzig universities have organized "Academic Self-Aid" societies to help place graduates in ordinary jobs. Failing this, they are urging the young men to go back to the soil.

As a further means of providing for them Berlin university is petitioning the government to donate farms in sparsely populated districts for these out-of-a-job graduates to work.

As conditions in Germany are now, one out of every three in the academic professions will be out of a job at the end of five years.

Staffelbach Speaks About Salaries of the Teachers

Professor Elmer H. Staffelbach of State College Commerce department, spoke on the question of "Taxation" at a meeting of the League of Women Voters in the Hotel Sainte Claire at 2:30 this afternoon.

Professor Staffelbach has stated certain factors in the adjustment of teachers' salaries. He claims that there are various attitudes respecting teachers' salaries and they can be grouped fairly well under three heads, namely: attitudes growing out of a desire to reduce the cost of schools, little matter how, attitudes growing out of the desire to maintain salaries at their present level or if possible at a higher level, with little regard to the actual merits of the case, and judicious attitudes growing out of the desire to do the wise thing, not merely out of fairness to the teachers themselves but for the sake of the children and of society generally.

Dr. George Freeland Publishes New Article

"Training Procedures: The Elementary Teacher," by Dr. George E. Freeland, will appear in the next issue of the State Manual for Teacher Training, which contains many interesting articles concerning present teaching problems.

Dr. Freeland's article contains many significant facts concerning the teacher today and the training of teachers, taking up many problems of importance and interest.

Appearing also in the Manual is an article on "The State Policy in Teacher Training," by Dr. Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent of Education.

There are also articles dealing with the problem of teaching problem children, such as the blind and deaf. These cases are treated also in relation to libraries, and what part they play in the training of these children. Among articles on problem children are also some about those handicapped by other than physical things, such as environment.

The teaching of the gifted and the normal child, and problems arising concerning them, is also considered.

The Manual is put out by the State Board of Education.

Dr. Staffelbach Is Author of Article on Teacher's Pay

AUTHOR IS HEAD OF THE COLLEGE COMMERCE DEPARTMENT

Filled with significant tables, "California Teachers Salaries," ably written by Dr. Elmer H. Staffelbach, pamphlets have just been issued by the California Teachers Association.

Dr. Staffelbach, who is head of the State College commerce department, is director of research for the teachers' organization and has spent many months in the preparation of this pamphlet.

Approaching the inquiry from an historical, a comparative, and an economic standpoint, Staffelbach presents a significant review of the whole question.

Interesting Disclosures

Among the many significant facts revealed by this study are the following:

That for the year 1931, the average high school teacher's salary was $2511, and the elementary school teachers averaged $1813.

That the salary in high school necessary to represent parity with the 1913 salary, considering depreciated value of the dollar and increase in necessary training) would be $2863, and for elementary school $2176.

That the average salary of certain skilled workers under the San Francisco Civil Service such as carpenters, foreman plumber, foreman steam fitter, firemen and engineer of stationary steam engines, and machinist, is $3011—just $500 over that of a high school teacher.

That a janitress is the only one of the public employees such as janitor, foreman janitor, elevator operator, jailor, patrolman, and fireman working for the city of San Francisco who receive less than the average school teacher.

That skilled workers and clerical and office workers average higher than both high school and elementary school teachers.

The pamphlet was written in the interests of a fair and judicious consideration of the question of the adjustment of teacher's salaries, and is based only on actual facts.

dressed up in a new, fly-specked coat of brilliant black.

Immediately the battleground assumed an air of orderly disarray. The Seniors banded their women into a relief battalion and set them out of harm's way. They were only for emergency use. Then the men formed ranks on the beach.

Junior men hurriedly organized and then charged the still band of Seniors in a runnig company front. Confusion instantly reigned. Flanking movements failed and the fight immediately broke up into man to man dog-fights. Horning went flying into the water, shoes and all. Ears sailed by, noses crunched, then as the smoke of the first onslaught cleared away a desperate situation met the eyes of the onlooking women. Their men were neither winning or losing! It takes more than two men to tie up one fighting Junior and too many good Seniors were trailing in the surf to be able to gang up on a few individuals. On the other hand the Juniors had a Tartar by the tail. They could neither finish the job nor retreat.

So the women saved the day! With a fierce cry, ropes trailing and hair flying they charged the group of sweating Warlords. And so, while two Seniors sat on every Junior head the women calmly tied up Junior feet and, as the Juniors say, "Gee, you can't kick

The baseball intra-mural league will wind up the athletic events for San Jose State for the year. This should be backed up by the men of the institution to the utmost so as to make it as great a success this year as it was last. It should be better this year as they have the benefit of last year's experience. The Phy. Ed. Majors will soon post a list of the rules and regulations regarding the league and will be published in the Times. Umpires will be appointed by them and their decisions will reign supreme.

The track season of the year was successful this year in more ways than one. After Coach Blesh's cohorts had suffered losses through various channels, they came through with a strong second in the conference rating. Of course Fresno's strength was not to be denied, but the Spartans were a continual menace to them. State has next year to look forward to Salvato, Leslie, Harper, Bennet, Wool, Stevens, Acquaspace, Silva, and Robinson, are all certain point-men, and there is always the new-comers that aid materially. And also, Coach Blesh will know the men better, which is something towards producing winning track teams.

Menlo's swimming team triumphed over State in her first attempt at producing an aquatic reputation. Draper and Higuchi were the only first place men, but this does not show what can be done in the future. Higuchi in winning the diving event caused considerable surprise to Coach Walker; but upsets happen every day in the best of competition.

One by one the losers were tied hand and foot and dumped into the Pacific Ocean. All that is save Bob Steffens, who was, by the grace of God or the negligence of the Seniors, forgotten.

Then everybody, wet or happy, shook hands and the lunch was broken into. Animostical feelings were forgotten until two o'clock, when Hale Vagts arrived suddenly in search of news and, being a Junior, was promptly flung into the ocean. After that quiet reigned and the two groups rested together as one.

John Martin, professor of International Relations at Rollins College, last week told delegates at the annual southern conference of International Relations Clubs that the economic boycott as an anti-war measure "is fraught with dangers."

College Officials Serve as Judges for Fiesta Meet

Under the supervision of Coaches Erwin Blesh and Charles Walker of State, and Walter Williams of San Jose High, assisted by several men of Walker's advanced swimming classes, the Fiesta de las Rosas swimming meet was held last Wednesday, May 18, at the Roosevelt Junior High School before a crowd of excited youngsters.

As an added attraction, Coach Walker's men demonstrated various life-saving methods.

Roosevelt won the junior high school class with 65 points. Woodrow Wilson took second with 9 points, and Midway trailed with 1.

In the high school class, San Jose High triumphed over Mountain View, 51-5. The summary of the high school class:

50-yard free style—Locks (SJ); Henderson (SJ); (11th grade). Time 34.5.

Georgina Jones Will Be Seen on Kiwanis Float

The motif for the Kiwanis float in the Fiesta de las Rosas parade is to be a Spinning Wheel. The part of the spinner, colored and costumed, is to be taken by Georgina Jones, State College freshman and daughter of Mr. Mrs. George I. Jones of city.

Singularly appropriate is spinning wheel theme, for Jones is a descendant of colonial ancestors.
