The Robber Bridegroom

If you're looking for a lively evening of entertainment and if a "bodaciously funny" musical comedy appeals to you, try The Robber Bridegroom at the University Theatre. This zany, sidesplitting yarn by Alfred Uhry from a novella by Eudora Welty was nominated for the Best Musical at the 1977 Tony Awards and won The Best Actor award for its star Barry Bostwick. It's a rollicking romance packed with American traditional dancing and exhilarating music. According to director Theresa Larkin, if you like myths, fables, romance, dashing heros, provocative damsels in distress, witches, villains, and happy endings The Robber Bridegroom is for you.

More comedy is in store with the arrival of Bullshot Crummond. This parody of low-budget, grade "B" 1930's detective movies, plays Friday and Saturday March 6-7, and Wednesday through Saturday March 11-14.

Teutonic villain Otto von Brunno and his evil mistress Lenya crash their airplane in the English countryside and kidnap aging professor Fenton who has discovered a formula for manufacturing synthetic diamonds. The professor's daughter Rosemary, summons Captain Hugh "Bullshot" Crummond and implores him to help. Finding peacetime tedious, "Bullshot" willingly accepts the challenge. Otto paralyzes him with a fiendish ray and rams a stick of dynamite in Crummond's mouth which will explode when the next person enters the room. Rosemary enters and . . . well, you'll just have to find out for yourself.
