Parents remember McWright’s life

Emotion hung heavy in the air as Tina McWright and Cleve McWright III, the parents of Camdan McWright, spoke publicly for the first time about their son who was killed in a tragic traffic accident Friday.

“Camdan McWright was a very special type of son that anyone would be proud to have,” Cleve McWright III said as he teared up beside a table of memorabilia that included Camdan’s football helmet and gloves in the San Jose State Athletics Gold Room.

Camdan McWright, 18-year-old freshman football player, was struck and killed Friday morning at 6:51 a.m. by a school bus while he was riding an electric scooter at Tenth and Reed streets on his way to South Campus, the base for university athletics.

Before the tragic incident, Camdan McWright’s parents came to San Jose not knowing it would be the last time they would see him.

“I recall a couple of weeks ago, for SJSU parent weekend, his mother and father came to San Jose and they didn’t think it would be the last time they’d see their boy,” Blisniuk said.

At 11:47 a.m., five minutes after the first earthquake, U.S. Geological Survey reported a 3.1 magnitude aftershock and at 3:08 p.m., a 3.8 magnitude quake, according to a Tuesday ABC7 News article.

Although the number of aftershocks will decrease over time, larger magnitude shakes can temporarily increase the number of aftershocks, according to the U.S. Geological Survey Aftershock Forecast.

There is also a 1% chance of one or more aftershocks being larger than 5.0 magnitude.

On Tuesday morning, San Jose residents were shaken by a 5.1 magnitude earthquake at 11:42 a.m. with the epicenter at Joseph D. Grant County Park, about 13.8 miles east of San Jose State.

The earthquake reached a minimum depth of 8.4 kilometers on the Calaveras Fault, a major branch of the San Andreas Fault which runs through the San Francisco Bay Area, according to the U.S. Geological Survey report.

Kimberly Blisniuk, earthquake geologist and SJSU associate professor, said she was in her office when she felt the main shock and left her building.

“That’s pretty shallow for an earthquake and as a result, the energy that radiated from that earthquake propagated and we were able to feel it,” Blisniuk said.

We drove down a little road, I think just west and I hadn't done it before, but something just compelled me to jump out of the car and step in the middle of the road while cars went around and gave me the biggest hug and I told him, 'Son, you know what, I'm so proud of you and we will back in a few weeks for Thanksgiving to spend time with you.'

McWright III said outside of football, Camdan McWright was very charismatic.

"He was a very loving young man and even in his quiet moments, you would look over at Cam and there was this glow about him," the father said.

"It is a fact that our son has touched every teacher, administrator, principal and coach that has made the trip," McWright said.

"We have elementary teachers texting us on his GoFundMe page, just devastated by this loss."

A memorial for Camdan McWright composed of his gloves, football helmet and picture could be seen on a table in the Gold Room Tuesday.

The lyrics, “For the moment when you look them in the eyes and say, ‘Baby, it’s been nice.’ So do you wanna walk me to the car? I’m sure to have a heavy heart. / So can we please be absolutely sure that there’s a mirrorball for me?” made me feel Turner’s pain. The heart stems from how many times he has had to ask for a mirrorball, or in my eyes, different behavior from his partner.

The song is relatable to people who have been in a pickle trying to decide if a relationship is worth giving another shot. It highlights the hesitation one can feel when they’re not sure their partner can give them what they need.

I hope the band tows this current sound in exchange for a more moving one.
