Spartan City Rents Rise; Pets to Leave

A new rent schedule for Spartan City residents was announced yesterday by George L. Singewald, housing manager.

The new schedule, effective Jan. 1, 1950, fixes rents of two-bedroom family dwelling units at $35.00 per month and one-bedroom units at $30.00 per month. These rents include essential furniture and utilities.

In any project where 100 or more housing units now have installed individual electric and gas meters and the tenants are paying utility charges directly, the rent may be reduced by $7.50 per month per dwelling unit.

Final date for removal of pets, other than those allowed by the lease (i.e. goldfish, canaries and the like) is Oct. 31, 1949. Tenants who fail to live up to their contracts in this regard will be "dispossessed" in accordance with the lease agreement.

Official announcements have been sent to all tenants concerned, Mr. Singewald said yesterday.

Deadline Near For Overnight

Tomorrow is the last day to sign up for the Senior class overnight to be held Nov. 5-6 at Asilomar. Carl Homberg, senior class president, announced yesterday.

The event is limited to members of the senior class and is one of a series of three overnights to be held once each quarter.

The group will leave the Student Union Saturday, Nov. 5, at 10 a.m. and return Sunday evening, Nov. 6. Transportation is by private cars. Jeans and sports clothes are to be the mode of attire. Three meals and a midnight snack will be served each day. Entertainment will include games, football, and dancing.

Committees for the overnight are headed by Don Cross, transportation; Marian Bell, patroness; Phil Bray, program; Arnold Levine, publicity; and Anne Guenther, tickets.

Student 'Y' Issues Plea for Workers For Service Groups

Students are needed to contact service agencies in town to find out how the Y volunteers can best serve them.

"There is much work to be done in this area by students who want to contribute something to community welfare in an active manner," said Mrs. Jobs.

The committee is part of the Social Responsibility commission of the Student Y.

CCF Will Hear Missionary Today

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship invites all members and students to its meeting at 12:30 in the Student Union this afternoon.

20 Decorated Houses Ready for Homecoming

Gigantic Displays Are to be Shown By Organizations and Independents

Noon today marks the deadline for all organization and independent houses to finish decorations for the Homecoming House Decorations contest, Barbara Belknap, chairman of House decorations, said today. At the present time 20 houses have entered the field to vie for the three trophies offered, by the Homecoming committee, for the winning decorations. The trophies are to be awarded to the best fraternity, independent and sorority houses.

Hundreds See Parade Mark Homecoming

Flivvers and flappers, frills and floats, thundered through the business district of San Jose last night to mark one of the most successful Homecoming parades ever to be staged by students of Sparta.

By the efforts of the campus organizations there exists little doubt that of the hundreds of people jamming the downtown area few could not help but "Remember When."

The float contest was marked by the same high competition that has been so prevalent throughout this homecoming.

Trophies for prize floats were awarded to Sigma Kappa sorority in the sorority division; Delta Theta Omega in the fraternity division and the Alumni in the independent division.

Judges for the float contest were Louis A. Rossi, owner of Rossi Furniture Co.; Gene Gimelli, local florist, and Mr. Graham, manager of the Woolworth department store.

Following the gigantic parade a Victory Rally was held in the Men's gymnasium before a capacity audience.

Interviewing Lickwar tonight will be Joe Juliano. Dick Russell will share mike duties with Juliano. Bern Bernardini will direct the program.

Norway's Choice

One of the strongest links in the chain of free governments ending the Communist threat was forged recently in the Norwegian elections.

A free nation bordering the Soviet Union flatly rejected the taint of Communism in its Socialist-Labor government by ousting all Reds from its 150-man Parliament.

Reports from Oslo state more than 90 per cent of Norway's 400,000 eligible voters cast their ballots in overwhelming favor of the democratic form of government.

Indicative of pro-democratic feeling in that country is news that Communist representative in Parliament—from the northernmost district facing the Russian frontier—lost his seat to a Liberal Party opponent who advocated free enterprise.

Norway has clearly demonstrated her faith in the freedoms offered by democracy. Such an election, within the shadow of Communistic attack might, proves the soundness of the Atlantic pact, and justifies Marshall plan aid to a nation willing to face the grave threat to world security stemming from her very neighbor.

WE JUST CAN'T WIN

Football Ticket Deal Explained by Felse

By BOB JOHNSTON

Why the heck do we have to buy a ticket to get in the football games?

The askers of this question refer to the necessity of having to go to the Graduate Manager's office to present a student body card to obtain a ticket to the COP football game.

The oft-heard question bounced out our hallowed halls until a Spartan Daily representative contacted Graduate Manager William Felse and said, "Yea, why?"

"Sit down, son," said Mr. Felse, "I offered up a fistful of good reasons in rapid-fire fashion."

First, the Graduate Manager said, "we must know how many students are going to the game to tickets that are not taken by students must be sold, for we need that revenue to help support our athletic program."

Under the system used now, the Graduate Manager's office sets a limit on when the tickets can be picked up. The deadline is Friday's game with COP.

Friday at 3:30 p.m. Any tickets left will go on sale to the general public at the stadium at 6 p.m.

At the present time, Felse explained, Sections U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and R are reserved for students. This is by far the majority of space on the Spartan side of the stadium.

"If the stadium held 50 or 60 thousand people," he stated, "it would make a world of difference. We could set aside 6,000 seats and turn the rest over for general sale, but with our small stadium, we must know how many students and faculty are going to attend. The vacant seats we must sell."

The Graduate Manager noted the present inconvenience of the method used now, but declared it "is just as much a chore for us as for the students."

Mr. Felse also explained the problem of purchasing 6,000 ASB cards every Friday night.

"I want every student with a card to go, they're entitled to it," he finished. "But they must come in and get tickets."

IT'S SURE A TOUGH LIFE

Actor Joseph Cotten Is Wild About Makin' Mad Movie Love

By VIRGINIA MacPHERSON

HOLLYWOOD (UP). Joseph Cotten, who's old enough to know, pronounced today there's no difference between making love under a romantic Italian moon or under a hot studio klieg light.

He says it's fun wherever you do it.

And this makes Actor Joseph Cotten the first Hollywood Romeo to come right out and admit those frigid movie love scenes aren't ways just for the paycheck.

Cotten just got back from Italy, where he wooed Joan Fontaine under a moonlit Roman sky for his "September." He kissed her, he recalls fondly, in the ruins of Pompeii . . . in Florence . . . in Rome . . . and on the Isle of Capri.

And, he reports, he felt no pain any of the clinches.

"Making love to a beautiful actress," Cotten says, "is one of the few redeeming features of this business of making movies."

Lots of times, he admitted, an actor will even fall in love with his leading lady.

"Some actors really live their parts," he explained. "If they play a ditch-digger they go out and get their fingernails dirty. If they play a great lover they fall for their co-star."

"Married actors? Well . . . let's say they shouldn't."

But married or single, he added, movie clinches are fun. And Cotten's been having lots of fun, lately. After "Beyond the Forest" with Bette Davis he moved over to Ingrid Bergman for "Under Capricorn."

He barely had time to wipe Ingrid's lipstick off his mouth before Wallis rushed him off to Europe and Miss Fontaine. And if Cotten's overworked, he's not complaining.

THRUST AND PARRY

Amen!

Dear Thrust and Parry:
 Recently you permitted Messrs. Newby and Atkinson to use your column for an exchange of blows about the merits of studying a foreign language. May I request a similar privilege in order to disagree with both of them? It is not that I question Mr. Newby's claim that knowledge of a foreign language is useful to many persons. Nor do I question Mr. Atkinson's claim that knowledge of a foreign language has been of no value to him. It is rather that I challenge the implicit assumption of both men that the sole, or even the chief, reason for learning a subject should be its predicted future usefulness.

With the thesis that college should prepare one, at least in part, to earn a living, I am in accord. To the idea that there is no other reason for study, I object. Every student should take some courses which he believes to be quite useless, but which give him present enjoyment and pleasure.

From my student days I retain a smattering of languages, enough to sometimes understand a word or brief passage. But this knowledge has never made any real difference in getting or holding a job, nor in income. Yet I still recall with much pleasure the fun especially of learning Latin and German. In the field of commerce I had fewer courses, but later I was employed as a bank teller and bookkeeper. Although what I learned then has had no subsequent practical value, I still recall the fun of learning to operate a posting machine and becoming acquainted with how banks carry on their daily business.

As I con our catalog I note listings in every department that would still be fun to take, if other duties and interests did not absorb my energies. Conversational Spanish, for example, sounds enticing. And I would like some of those courses in insurance and accounting and real estate practice. But I should not expect any of these courses in the Commerce department to be of the slightest practical value to me. Students should not forget that available on the campus, but not at the drug store, is the art of intellectual pleasure.

Elmo A. Robinson.

Editorial Lauded!

Dear Thrust and Parry,
 And Editor:

In reply to your recent editorial on "Dead Week," I am sure many students on campus feel they will be cheated by the time finals roll around and there is no time to study except the night before the grueling day of the exam. At the present moment there is no "Dead Week." Are we to sit back and say nothing about the situation?

Before, "Dead Week" was an accepted and welcomed event and one that most diligent students greatly appreciated because that extra time meant additional knowledge and better grades. Studying is not easy, and making a good showing in college is important to the individual student.

Your editorial defending "Dead Week" shows the interest of the Spartan Daily in student affairs.

Apparently students do not have much to say about the situation, however. We, as students, are important to ourselves, though. The Fairness Committee should consider the issue again because it is unfair to the students. "Dead Week" should belong to us.

THE POLICY PAYS OFF

Just So Doggone Old...

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (UP).—Adolph J. Cohn said today that he was so "doggone old" that his life insurance company had decided to pay off without waiting for him to die.

Cohn observed his 96th birthday today at the home which he shares with his daughter, Miss Blanche Cohn.

Among the 50 guests at his party was Thomas E. Lovejoy, vice-president of the Manhattan Life Insurance company, who was to present him a check paying off the insurance policy that Cohn bought 60 years ago.

It was an ordinary life insurance policy, to be paid to his beneficiaries after his death. But the small type said the company would pay off if the insured person lived to be 96.

"I'm so doggone old, the insurance company is going to have to pay me off. I was supposed to die first. But I'm alive. And I feel fine," Cohn said.

"I'm a Democrat," he said. "I was in several businesses, but they weren't prosperous. I worked for three persons in my lifetime. They didn't treat me so well, financially. They were all Republicans. So I am a Democrat."

Flying Time Not Required For Air Club

"You don't have to have any previous flying experience to become a member of the Flying 20 campus flying club," according to Bob Gross, president of the group.

Between 15 and 20 students, many of whom had no previous flying, have earned their pilot licenses through Flying 20 membership since the club's formation Feb., 1948.

The purpose of the Flying 20 is to provide flying to students at reduced rates through group ownership of a plane. The club is a non-profit and incorporated enterprise.

A Taylorcraft plane valued at $1200 is now owned and maintained at the San Jose municipal airport by the club, and plans are pending to expand the present organization to include ownership of a second plane.

Only one $75 share in the present plane is now available, but more applications are welcomed in view of expansion plans. Interested persons may contact Bob Gross, club president, or Allen Israelson, faculty adviser of the group.

New Instructor Makes Costumes for 'Faust'

By HELEN DAVIS

Minnesota's Berniece Prisk came to San Jose State college with many years of costume designing experience and is now wielding the principal needle and thread in the costume barracks here as she executes her designs for the forthcoming "Faust."

Miss Prisk first decided to make costuming her life work at the

Evanston Children's theatre in Illinois where she designed costumes for many children's shows. "It was fun," she says, "and very interesting, because most children's plays leave much room for use of imagination on the part of the costume designer."

Present Dramatic Effect

She would rather do imaginative drama in which the costumes present such a challenge, and those she has designed for "Faust" are meant to present a dramatic effect rather than historical accuracy.

Since she first began designing, she has done 10 to 20 shows a year, including many of the period pieces of which she is fondest. "Faust" presents an imaginative challenge, but she and her costume classes seem to be meeting it in their stride.

Is Northwestern Grad

Miss Prisk received her AB in speech from Northwestern U. in 1929 and her MA from the same school in 1935. She taught for two years at Allegheny college in Meadville, Pa. In the summer of 1947 she was costumiere at the University of Michigan. For the past five years Miss Prisk was head of the costume department at the University of Iowa. At San Jose she teaches history of costume and supervises classes in wardrobe construction.

Homey and comfortable to be with, Miss Prisk enjoys pinning together the leading man's jacket as much as she does making the latex rubber masks that the apes will wear in "Faust." She is serious about her work, though her low chuckle is much in evidence as she sews.

"The task of the costume designer is to help the actor make a convincing and real person out of his characterization. His costume should assist the actor in stage movement, put him at ease, and make him stand out against his background," Miss Prisk added.

Approximately 50 costumes will be used in "Faust," which opens Nov. 10, and some must present a realistic effect while others must show the mythical fantasy of the Middle Ages against which the story of "Faust" is laid.

Ocean waves reach a height of 50 or 60 feet in the south Atlantic ocean off the Cape of Good Hope.

Yukon's Klondike Kate Lacks New Gold Fever

JEFFERSON, Ore. (UP)—Klondike Kate, The Belle of the Yukon who once earned $750 a night dancing for Alaskan sourdoughs, took a calm view today of the new Fishwheel gold strike.

"So they've found nuggets the size of peas?" asked Kate, known formally now as Mrs. W. L. Van Duren. "Is that all the larger they are?

Why, I've got a necklace with half a dozen nuggets larger than that."

Stays on the Farm

Mrs. Van Duren said there was no chance that she and her husband would follow the rush to Fishwheel where men were panning and digging for gold today with a fever comparable to that of 50 years ago when the name of Klondike Kate was famous across the country.

She said she and Van Duren were content to stay on their farm near here. But she had some expert advice for gold seekers.

"There are are still fortunes to be made up there," she said. "But they'll have to be made the modern way.

"What you need is one bush pilot, a helicopter and some light mining equipment. There are hundreds of lakes in the Alaskan wilderness that can't be reached on foot.

"A good bush pilot with a helicopter could get to those lakes, and he could bring out more gold in five years than has been found in all the north in the last 75 years."

Dawson City Kate's Start

Klondike Kate, now 69, was a teen-ager when she earned her title at robust Dawson City. It was there that the sourdoughs relaxed and spent their pokes of gold.

She danced, acted, and entertained. Her dancing job and liquor commissions usually netted her more than $100 a night. But friends say she lost most of her fortune grub-staking miners and other men such as the late showman, Alexander Pantages.

Pantages, with Klondike Kate's help, rose from waiter at the Savoy theater at Dawson City to become owner of a chain of theaters throughout the nation.

Strike May Help Alaska

She said the strike might be good for Alaska.

"This latest perennial gold strike at Fishwheel may peter out in a few months, just like many others did. But if it doesn't, the Fishwheel strike surely will attract residents from the United States to settle in the territory," she said.

In Klondike Kate's day, the Nome strike was the most spectacular of the far-north bonanzas. Nome looked like a Hollywood set with saloons, dives, gambling houses, and usually a murder a day.

"But at Dawson City there was no rowdiness," said Mrs. Van Duren. "The Canadian mounties were there to keep law and order, and prospectors treated us as ladies."

Warm, Eh? Earth is Due To Heat Up

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — (UP). — The earth is getting warmer and if the "heat wave" continues, new mountain ranges may form, Dr. Harold C. Urey, University of Chicago atomic scientist, reported today at the fall meeting of the National Academy of Sciences.

Urey, whose discovery of heavy water won him the 1934 Nobel prize in chemistry, offered a new theory of the origin of the earth. According to his hypothesis, it started out as a cold planet and gradually through the millions of years has "warmed-up." This warming-up, he said, is continuing.

Urey's new theory is based on the amount of radio-activity measured in meteorites that occasionally escape through the atmosphere and land on the surface of earth. The meteorites are believed to be similar to the earth's core, thousands of miles deep under the surface.

"The earth was formed," he said, "from a conglomerate of metallic iron and rock. The iron, melted by the heat during a period of more than a billion years, fell to the center of the earth to form the earth's core."

Urey said that the earth's crust—which is not too many miles deep—was affected by the "sinking" of iron to the core and thus, mountain ranges were formed. He said that as more metal moves from the outer crust to the earth's core, at intervals of approximately 200 million years, other mountain ranges will be formed on earth.

Urey's theory is in contrast with some other scientists who have speculated that the iron of the earth sank to the center, or core, while the earth was a hot molten mass and that the earth is now cooling off.

"Discovery of radioactivity has changed the considerations," Urey said. "If radioactivity found in the surface rocks is representative of an average sample of the whole earth, comparatively rapid heating of the earth must result."

Russ Send Iran Wheat

TEHERAN, Iran. — (UP). — Russia is sending Iran regular supplies of wheat at a rate of some 750 tons daily, the government propaganda department announced today.

Text Author Says Middle Course Best

CORVALLIS, Ore. — (UP). — Dr. Frank Abbott Magruder, whose textbook "American Government" was banned yesterday in Houston, Texas, has advocated that the United States pursue a "middle course" politically.

Magruder, a retired professor of political science at Oregon State college, is one of the nation's most prolific authors of textbooks. "American Government," one of his best known textbooks, is a standard civic text in a large number of schools throughout the United States.

Magruder toured the world before World War II, visiting Germany, Russia, Japan and Spain. In an interview following his return, Magruder described the "ultra-nationalistic" spirit he found in both Russia and Germany and said:

"As to America, I am convinced that our best plan is to continue to pursue a middle course which will avoid the extremes of either Fascism or Communism. While these philosophies of government are neither all bad nor all good in practice, there is no indication that we would gain by encouraging either one in this country."

Magruder has lived in retirement recently, devoting part of his time to bringing his textbooks up to date. In 1942, Gov. Charles Sprague appointed Magruder a delegate to the American Academy of Political Science.

Besides writing "American Government," Magruder has authored

Coal, Steel Strikes Lay Off 2 Million

Unemployment in the coal and steel strikes neared the 2,000,000 mark today as coal-short railroads cancelled 600 trains, laying off more than 30,000 employees.

New violence was reported in the six-week-old strike of 380,000 soft coal miners. A dynamite blast destroyed a $10,000 steam shovel at a non-union strip mine near Coupon, Pa. No one was injured.

Federal Mediator Cyrus Ching resumed meetings with U. S. Steel Corp. officials in New York in a last-ditch effort to settle the dispute without intervention by the President. Ching said he was "not optimistic" and observers believed the President would be forced eventually to act.

Negotiators for John L. Lewis' United Mine workers began their sixth month of negotiations with The mine owners said they were coal operators at Bluefield, W. Va. no closer "than when we started" toward replacing the old contract that expired last May.

One bright spot in the labor picture was the settlement of a threatened strike by 15,000 AFL truck drivers which would have cut off milk to 11,000,000 consumers in three states.

The drivers won a new contract based on the recommendations of President Truman's steel fact-finders — the companies agreeing to provide a welfare and pension plan equal to 10 cents an hour per worker.

Co-Captains, Faulk and Dow, Will Lead Underdog SJSC Against COP

17,000 Frenzied Football Fans to Watch Menges-LeBaron Aerial Feud

By WADE WILSON

Time runs short for the stalwart Spartans in their race to be in top shape to meet the visiting Tigers from COP Friday night in Spartan stadium. With upwards of 17,000 fans expected for this annual "grudge" game, Coach Bill Hubbard is working his charges long and hard. Things look none too bright for the local aggregation in this spirited game. Co-Captains Harley Dow and Jack Faulk will lead the game, but battered, Spartans into the fray as two touchdown underdogs.

Coming into this "big game" as underdogs is nothing new for the San Jose State team. They were listed as the underdog last year and came up with a fighting team that beat a tough bunch of Tigers, 14-7.

Menges Sets Pace

Little Gene Menges, the Anaheim lad that has tossed the pigskin 79 times and completed 45, will lead the aerial attack of the potent Spartans. Gene has flipped 10 touchdown passes so far this year, and has drawn praises from coaches of all Spartan opponents this year.

The receivers of these Menges' tosses come in for a lot of praise. Billy Wilson has hauled in 11 passes for a total of 134 yards while glue-fingered Junior Morgan has cradled in 10 tosses for 234 yards and four TD's. John Smith, George Keene, George Persha, Jim Fleck, Ed Williams, and Mel Stein complete the roster of pass-grabbing ends. Stein comes in for more praise for his defensive duties.

Undoubtedly the outcome of the game hinges on the line play of both teams. The Tigers are mammoth in size and number many in capable reserves. San Jose will field a gang of veterans on the front wall that can hold their own with any team. Reserve strength is at a premium. Lack of line-backers may hamper the Hubbard grid machine.

Dow and Faulk will do their share at tackle. The ends as forementioned will handle their assignments. In the center of the line Bob Cheim, slightly injured at the present, Bob Covey, Bob Hitchcock, and Keith Carpenter will handle their mountainous task.

Work Cut Out

Carl DeSalvo, Dick Bondellie, George Reeves, Chris Fasciano, and Bruce Halladay have their work cut out for them. This quintet of guards will have to stop the line play of the line-plunging backs from COP. Ed Miller, Elgin Martin, Art Allen, Jim Wheelahan, and Bill Gallagher back up the co-captain tackles.

Carrying the load in the backfield will be Fred Silva and Jack

Eddie LeBaron, the Bengal mastermind, is shown above in a characteristic pose, leaping high to toss a pass to one of the bevy of fast backs and ends which will accompany him into Spartan Stadium Friday night when the College of the Pacific meets San Jose State.

Goulart Skeds Golf Tourney

A special golf tournament will be held this Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at the Hillview country club under the direction of Manny Goulart. All members of the SJS student body, men and women, who can golf at all are invited to participate.

There will be four classes; A, B, C, and D. Entrants must enter in a team of two. Green fee for this tournament is $1.

Hillview Golf course is located on Tully road. For additional directions contact Spartan Daily Sports Editors John Romero.

Donaldson. Either is capable of going all the way if they get by the front wall. The halfbacks are weakened by the loss of Marv Johnson, but Gibby Mendosa, Arch Chagonjian, Harry Russell, or Faus Smythe will keep the Tigers on their toes in the running department.

DON DAMBACHER, reserve halfback for the Spartans, is shown at the end of a wide sweep against the Gauchos of Santa Barbara. Pony-back Dick Johnson, who later scored on a 90-yard run, is making the tackle. Warren Vinton (54) is attempting to give teammate Johnson a hand.

Dambacher, who was injured in the Indian opener, came back last Friday night. He will undoubtedly be called upon to spell Rusty Russell come tomorrow night.

SJS Stanford Play Tonight

Tonight at 9 in the men's pool, Stanford university's water polo team meets that of San Jose State. Last Friday afternoon, the two teams met at Stanford and tied, 3-3. Norm Keeler and Ralph Sala were the big guns for the Spartans and Indians, respectively.

Charley Walker has his men primed for their effort tonight. Captain Fred Hanssen has been working hard all week, and his ankle should give him no trouble.

George Haines was blanked by the Big Red last week. He's out to score tonight. He, with 10 goals, and Keeler, with 11 goals lead the Spartans in scoring.

The Indians have no excellent shots, to speak of. They depend on speed, and an exceptional defense. They are always quick in the water at Stanford.

Spartan men have an added advantage tonight. They are swimming in their home, 20-yard, pool. They won't have to go so far to cover the Indian speedsters.

Palo Alto high school, which defeated the San Jose frosh team earlier in the season, will give our yearlings another chance in the 8 o'clock preliminary.

Probable starting lineup for tonight's feature game:

STANFORD	STATE
Fletcher.....Goal	Hibner
Polte.....Right Back	Garrett
Fox.....Center Back	Hanssen
Fropen.....Right Forward	Haines
Sala.....Center Forward	Keeler

No Springboard, But Frosh Hope To Bounce Back

Without the aid of a springboard, but with a fighting spirit, and improved blocking and tackling, Coach Tom Cureton's frosh football squad will attempt to bound back into the win column via Saturday's game with the Stanford frosh.

The Spartan yearlings will meet the Stanford papooses, who are as usual a better than average ball club, in the preliminary game preceding the big Stanford-Santa Clara classic at Stanford Stadium. The frosh game kickoff will be at 11 a.m.

Expecting to see plenty of action for the Spartans are the standouts of previous games: "All or Nothing At All" Searcey Miles, Halfback Ernie Jordan, "Mighty Mite" Wiley McClain, Tackle Clarence Orr, Guard Eddie Salvadelena, End Don Shishido, End Terry Sweet, and End Stan Wacholz.

Cross-Country Team Meets COP Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m. the Spartan harriers meet the College of Pacific's leather-lungers at the Spartan Stadium in what shapes up as a true test of Coach Walt Bealey's runners.

Co-captain Dore Purdy has reached top shape and will renew a rivalry which began last year when he was barely beaten by the C.O.P. runner.

Expecting to be in strong contention for the first place spot are Spartans Jim Lund, who was the high school mile champion in the State of Washington, and co-captain... Both boys have been running rapidly.

Wading In with Wade Wilson

DISANDATA: It appears that the man wielding the iron rod on the Stanford campus, Al Masters, Director of Athletics for the "Big Red", has again refused to meet the Spartans from San Jose State in the boxing ring. They meet San Jose in almost all other sports, but shy away from the local lads in the ring. It reminds me of last spring when the self-same Master(s) threatened not to let the golfing team go back to the Nationals if they didn't beat San Jose. They lost and I wonder if Al took away their golf clubs. And now their boxing mitts?

The rush for tickets to the COP game has hit an all time high—over 17,000. It appears to be a sold out affair with sports writers from all the Bay Area papers on hand to witness the classic affair. And a few words on past Spartans—ERLE JOHNSON, ex-Spartan footballer coaching at Daly City along with directing the city recreation program. GEORGE TERRY is head football coach at Wasco. BOB PIFFER is giving a good account of himself by playing center for the Detroit Lions. DEAN SOPHIA, also off of last year's Spartan football team, is playing with Wilkes Barre in the American Football League. SANTOS, moundsman for last year's CCAA baseball champs, is in school after playing ball last summer for the Modesto Reds in the California Baseball League. He's now declared a free agent and may sign with anyone for the coming year. Three more Spartans are making their mark in the coaching world down at Hanford. DICK VORIS is head football coach; CHUCK HUGHES is head mentor of basketball; and FRANK VIZZA is handling the coaching chores in baseball. T. L. (DANNY) HILL is teaching a course in Public Relations to the prospective physical education coaches to acquaint them with the importance and need for good public relations in the PE field. It is probably the first course of its kind in any school that is solely designed for future athletic coaches. BOB DUBBERS, the man behind the pen on the Spartan Sports Close-ups, hails from Taft, California. Was former sports editor of the school paper and now has switched his sport coverage to that of the brush and pen. Commercial art major, and might good, too.

SJS Entomology Club Postpones Field Trip

The fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Entomology society at California Academy of Sciences Saturday afternoon has forced postponement of the scheduled SJS Entomology club field trip. The trip will be taken later in the quarter, according to Dr. Carl D. Duncan.

The PCES is open to faculty members and students interested in entomology, Dr. Duncan explained, and all are invited to attend the Saturday meeting. The society invites competent scientists and entomologists throughout the nation to speak at the quarterly conferences in San Francisco.

During the meeting Monday, Entomology club members agreed on coming activities for the quarter. A party is planned Tuesday, Nov. 8, to acquaint new students with the purposes of the club. Motion pictures, a speaker, and refreshments are planned, said Dr. Duncan.

In addition, the club will maintain one of the exhibit cases in the Science building, prepare a calendar of quarter events and collaborate with the biological science society to catalogue the Hazeltine memorial library.
