Federal Judge Fines Honor Student $500

According to the United Press, Federal Judge Dal M. Lemmon said in passing the sentence:

"The character of this young man appears to be impeccable."

He said that he believed the youth was a "sincere conscientious objector" and did not take his stand to evade the draft.

Over emphasized that the meeting is open to all students and faculty members. Refreshments will be served, he said.

President Wahlquist Recommends More Public Bodies Interested In Education

Keynote talk to the California School Trustees Association by John T. Wahlquist, President, San Jose State College, Oct. 19, 1953

The local board is the most democratic body in American life; 85 per cent of the 400,000 persons who serve on school boards throughout the nation are elected by popular vote. The trend is definitely in that direction, even in the large cities where it has been customary to have appointive boards. Moreover, in the majority of cases, the board members are elected at special school elections, free from partisan politics and organized pressure groups. Most board members are elected on their individual records and reputations, because the local people desire to entrust them with the control of their most priceless possession — their children.

It is a sobering experience to find oneself a school board member. Not only does one represent the people, but as he soon discovers, if he is worth his salt, he is now in charge of the greatest agency for social progress that exists in American life, the public schools.

By their actions the board members make or break the schools, select and retain good superintendents or drive them into other walks of life, motivate good teachers or drive them crazy, provide the best conditions for the development of children or fail to capitalize our greatest natural resources — our children.

The American schools have always been kept near the people. We have chosen not to hand over our schools to the bureaucratic control of a far-off government (as in France). Rather, we have kept the control of our schools near at hand.

The local school board has been the training ground for most of our public servants. It is from the school boards that we get our assemblymen and senators, our supervisors and commissioners. The school board members learn the art of self-government on the job; without the art of democratic government the Constitution and Bill of Rights would become dead letters.

An American school board member should believe in education. The United States Chamber of Commerce has pointed out that there is close agreement between the level of education of a country and its standards of living. A well-educated nation creates and maintains a high standard of living — this is as true of the Scandinavian democracies as it is of our own American democracy. Whereas, a primitive, poorly educated people continues to live primitively even when surrounded with the richest natural resources — timber, coal, oil, minerals, and water — as most of the nations of South America and Africa testify. Moreover, this statement holds for states and regions within a country. Currently, the greatest industrial strides in the United States are being made in the South, because that is where the greatest strides are being made educationally.

In the final analysis, it is not education that costs, but the failure to educate. Studies of crime, delinquency and anti-social behaviors in general and charity cases in particular, show that these things are usually associated with lack of education.

I would caution the board members not to pay too much attention to the critics of the schools. The groups that talk the loudest do not necessarily represent the wishes of the majority. Unfortunately, those who are content have little or nothing to say, while those with an axe to grind or a cause to champion cry to high heaven. The board should study the noisy groups and so-called popular outbursts. Too often they are the work of wilful minorities. Oftentimes, the leaders are notorious racketeers, even though they parade under such high-sounding names as the National Economic Council, the National Council for American Education, and Friends of the Public Schools.

Personally, I am willing to trust the schools of America to the local school board members. Even though we have a disproportionate member of businessmen on the boards, as compared to professional and laboring men, these men are not the tools of Big Business, intent upon using the schools for their own purposes as some have suspected. The evidence now is that there is little relationship between the socio-economic status of the board members and their voting records as board members. Every loyal American rises above his class interest when the welfare of America's youth is at stake.

If board members are prone to reflect the opinions of those with whom they are surrounded — businessmen, professional men, laborers — that is the reason why they should delay action until they can ascertain the opinions of a representative cross-section of citizens. I recommend for this purpose the greater use of citizens advisory committees, community forums, public-opinion polls, community education associations, as well as that old reliable parent-teachers' association.

Turns Detective To Find Solution In Boa Egg Case

By BARBARA RICHARDSON

Dr. Ralph A. Smith, professor of zoology, edged into the Sherlock Holmes department recently when he set out to discover why the much-publicized 18 boa constrictor eggs in his possession failed to hatch.

In order to determine why the eggs did not develop and hatch within a reasonable length of time, Dr. Smith began dissecting them. Yesterday, he stated that his investigation has revealed that the eggs are infertile and probably were discarded by the snake for that reason.

He explained that snakes belong in the ovoviparous category, meaning that they give birth to live young hatched internally from eggs.

"Discovery and examination of these eggs," Dr. Smith said, "may clear up the confusion which arises when snakes produce both eggs and live young. Explanation for this occurrence now seems to be that the mother snake merely has dropped sterile eggs before or after giving birth to the young which have hatched."

Dr. Smith declared that he would be "amazed" if the snake gave birth to live young now, but that it is possible since the usual litter numbers from 30 to 40 and only 18 infertile eggs were discovered.

Articles noting the rare event appeared in several papers including the San Jose Mercury and the Oct. 1 issue of the Spartan Daily.

Dr. Smith received invitations to appear on several programs, including the television show "Science in Action." He cancelled the latter appearance because of an attack of the flu. He plans to publish the results of his investigations.

THRUST and PARRY

One-Day Diplomats!

Dear Thrust &amp; Parry:

The cause of many of the misunderstandings and misconceptions Americans have about foreign people and the conditions in their countries may be laid at the feet of the whirlwind travelers.

These fortunate individuals have had the opportunity to spend several months in Europe, Asia or Latin America and even a few have been fortunate in being able to tour the world. They may even have been lucky enough to have introductions to the leading statesmen in the countries visited. The first thing many of these providential individuals do upon arriving home is to give speeches and write articles on their experiences. However, one must exercise great caution in accepting their remarks without some reservations. In many cases these travelers spend, at the most, several days in each of the countries visited. How else could you tour the world in one summer? Yet these people have the precipitancy to speak out as though they were proficient on the conditions of the countries visited. Nothing could be farther from the truth. How can a person presume to have a grasp on the conditions that prevail when they have spent not more than a few days in a foreign country?

One has only to look closely at their observations to realize they are nothing more than glittering generalities than can only lead the reader to misconceptions. These observations are never qualified, but then how can they be when the traveler does not know where-of he speaks?

Before people are able to speak out with any authority on the conditions in a foreign country, they must spend at least several months in the country and spend a great deal of time speaking not only to the statesman, but the man on the street. They must travel throughout the country and obtain first-hand information. Not until they have accomplished this can their sincere but misleading observations be taken with any degree of reliability.

Editors Protest Kinsey's Demand for Copy Check

CHICAGO (UP) — Officials of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the National Association of Science Writers have protested Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey's demand to check before publication newspaper stories about his speeches before technical groups.

Kinsey, an Indiana university sex researcher and author of books on the sex life of males and females, earlier had announced his plan for pre-publication checks of stories about his speeches before technical groups.

The science writers sent him a telegram stating that his action is "tantamount to censorship and a violation of the freedom of the press."

J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post and chairman of the Freedom of Information committee of the ASNE, also objected to Kinsey's action.

"Perhaps," Wiggins said, "the newspapers should agree not to go into biological research if Kinsey will agree not to go into newspaper editing."

The NASW telegram was signed by Arthur J. Snider, president, of the Chicago Daily News, Alton L. Blakeslee, vice president, New York, of the Associated Press, and John E. Pfeiffer, secretary, of New Hope, Pa.

The telegram said the NASW "strongly protests" Kinsey's requirement that newsmen covering his speech before the Central Neuropsychiatric association submit copy for approval before publication.

"Your demand is being looked upon by some newsmen as a publicity stunt, by others as an insulting gesture toward the newspaper profession," the telegram said. "Those of us who know you as a sincere scientist, often unfairly attacked, do not attribute such motives to you."

"Your wish for accurate reporting of your remarks can be insured by making text available, or if speech is extemporaneous, by sitting down with newsmen and answering questions."

"Newsmen are as much damaged professionally by errors as the person misquoted and will often seek out the news source with a request that his statement be checked if there is any doubt. This, however, is fundamentally different from a request originating with the news source, a privilege not even sought by or granted to the president of the United States."

"Submission of news stories on your female volume was agreed to because of special circumstances surrounding copyright ownership of advance proofs made available. Your current demand raises an issue of broader implications and we urge you to withdraw it. No self-respecting newsmen can cover your addresses under terms you lay down."

Cinema Guild Produces Hit

By NELSON WADSWORTH

The magic of the late Walter Houston and the eloquence of Steven Vincent Benet's "The Devil and Daniel Webster" combined last weekend in the Art Cinema Guild's second film presentation this year in Germania Hall, 261 N. Second street.

Houston portrayed the sinister "Scratch" (another name for the devil), and stole the crowd's attention with his bold humor and subtle method of trapping souls and influencing people.

Pitted against him was brave, bold Daniel Webster, portrayed majestically by Edward Arnold. The weakling who had lost his soul, Jeb Stone, was played by James Craig.

When Scratch came to claim the soul, Daniel was waiting with a summons into court. Scratch picked the jury. He summoned them up out of the depths of hell, and the strangest trial in the history of the nation began. The jury? It was a body of damned souls, including Benedict Arnold and Captain Kidd.

Stimulated on New Bedford Rum, Daniel began a stirring speech that changed the black hearts of the damned, and they gave Jeb another chance.

After the trial, roaring somewhat like a lion, 'Ol Dan Webster nimbly kicked the devil in the seat of the pants and bade him be gone from the state of New Hampshire.

Ducks Next for Golden Raiders

Spartans Earn Praise; Look For Webfoots

By BART WILLIAMS

Coach Bob Bronzan's gridders take on their third Pacific Coast Conference foe Saturday when they tackle the University of Oregon Ducks at Eugene. The Spartans have a 1-1 record in PCC competition, beating Idaho in the season opener and losing to California last Saturday.

The Golden Raiders put forth their best effort of the season Saturday against Cal, holding the vaunted Bears to a 14-14 tie at halftime.

The outcome of the contest was in doubt up to the fourth quarter and fans couldn't help but admire the game Spartans who battled a more powerful California team down to the final gun.

As late as the fourth quarter the Raiders put together an offensive surge that carried them within inches of the Bear goal line. On a third down and inches situation, the Spartans tried right tackle and seemed to be in for the big six when the ball was fumbled. Mike Casey of the Bears grabbed the ball in midair and sprinted 84 yards before being hauled down on the Spartan 16.

The sunny California side of the stadium breathed a sigh of relief. State had given the Golden Bears the worst case of jitters the Berkeley crew had experienced in quite some time.

Did the Spartans miss Joe Uim, their high scoring, pile-driving fullback? Coach Waldorf summed up what seemed to be the general consensus among California supporters. "A nice football team and if Uim is any better than Taylor, I'm glad I didn't have to see him today."

Jerry Taylor proved Saturday that with a little more know-how, he can very well fill those big shoes left by "Shoeless" Joe.

The stocky 195-pound Junior from Huntington Park stunned the sizeable crowd in the Berkeley bowl in the opening minutes when he pucked the ball off right tackle, ran over Bear defender Johnny Wilson and scored standing up. The play was good for five yards and marked the first time in history that San Jose State had scored on California.

The affair Saturday can be summed up by a statement made by California's star quarterback, Paul Larson. "The Bear flash from Turlock stated simply the Golden Raiders were great, that the Bears were not overconfident, that they were not looking forward to next week's game with Southern Cal, and that there were a lot of chewed-up finger nails among players and coaches alike following the intermission at halftime."

Cross Country Team Races Fri.

Seven members of the SJS cross country team were selected by process of elimination Friday afternoon to travel to San Luis Obispo Friday where they will meet Cal Poly's runners at 4 p.m.

A four mile race was held to determine who would make the trip and Don Hubbard took first place with a time of 24 minutes and 15 seconds. Runners up and their times are: Bob Trott, 24:24; Allan Dunn, 24:47; Frank Wulfang, 24:55; Dick Vogel, 25:41; Jack Jones, 26:18; and George Raine, 26:23.

Jerry the Bear Killer

JERRY TAYLOR, a thorn in the side of the Golden Bears last Saturday, is shown as he blasted his way for his second touchdown to help put the Spartans in a 14-14 halftime tie against the heavily favored Bears. Taylor played an outstanding game in place of "Shoeless" Joe Uim who was declared ineligible last week. He toted the mail a total of 10 times for a net of 46 yards and an average of 4.6 yards per carry. This placed him second to Halfback Gene Goldberg who amassed an amazing total of 52 yards in three carries for an average of 17.3 yards per carry.

SJS's 1954 Hoop Squad Faces Tough Schedule

San Jose State basketball coach Walt McPherson is faced this season with the most ambitious schedule in the history of the school, he said recently.

Listed among the tough opponents to be met are University of California, University of San Francisco, Santa Clara, University of Oregon, St. Mary's, and Stanford university.

With only three lettermen returning from last year's squad, and one of those slated to be inducted into the armed forces shortly, McPherson will be required to round out an entire new team.

"Lack of experienced height is our greatest problem," McPherson said as he explained that only nine men of the more than 30 turning out for practice last week are 6'4" or taller. This factor, he said, could be the decider in several of our games this year.

The 1953-54 season opens Dec. 1 when the Spartans meet San Francisco State college at Spartan Gym. They will end the season against another bay city team, University of San Francisco at San Francisco Mar. 2.

COP Cagers Face Big Year

STOCKTON, Oct. 19—On the basis of last year, the College of the Pacific is looking forward to a relatively strong Tiger cage quintet for 1953-54.

However, the Bengal schedule is the toughest yet with California, UCLA, and Stanford of the Pacific Coast Conference slated, not to mention the national AAU champs, the Peoria Caterpillars, or Santa Clara and U.S.F., two strong leaders in the California Basketball Association. The Bengals have scheduled three games with San Jose State college.

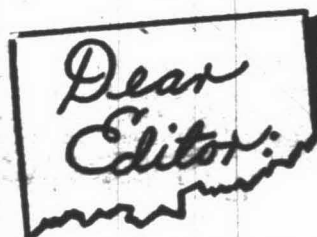

Pacific takes its first "barnstorming" trip through the midwest in Dec., including Beloit, Wis., Peoria, Ill., Oklahoma City, Okla., and Wichita, Kan.

Touch Football Scheduled for This Afternoon

Two touch football games are scheduled for this afternoon in the continuation of Intramural football wars, Wade Wilson, program director, announced yesterday.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Delta Sigma Phi at 4 p.m. at Backesto Park and Kappa Alpha vs. Sigma Chi at 4 p.m. at Willow Glen Park are the games scheduled.
