Chapter Markers

Linda Heidenreich
Washington State University, lheidenr@wsu.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.sjsu.edu/naccs

Part of the Gender and Sexuality Commons, and the Race and Ethnicity Commons

This Conference Proceeding is brought to you for free and open access by the National Association for Chicana and Chicano Studies Archive at SJSU ScholarWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in NACCS Annual Conference Proceedings by an authorized administrator of SJSU ScholarWorks. For more information, please contact scholarworks@sjsu.edu.
Shaped by an awareness of the ways in which young Brown female, male, and gender queer bodies have been “othered” and regulated our praxis reminds us to affirm the wisdom and experiences of those Brown bodies. It is a praxis motivated by a yearning to rupture heterosexist, racist, anti-immigrant, classist, and patriarchal structures while simultaneously pushing us toward a spiritual activism... We propose transformative ruptures.... The spaces in which roses can grow from cracks in the concrete.

Dolores Delgado Bernal and Enrique Alemán, Jr.,
Transforming Educational Pathways for Chicana/o Students
PART TWO: BEWARE THE RAIN

Beware the rain this month. It is quite acidic from the thick pollution in the air. Your favorite shirt will become stained if you don’t take cover under the ledge of the closest panadería.

Anel I. Flores

Empañada: a lesbiana story en probaditas
PART THREE: HEAT

_change requires a lot of heat. It requires both the alchemist and the welder, the magician and the laborer, the witch and the warrior, the myth-smasher and the myth-maker.... Hand in hand, we brew and forge a revolution._

Gloria Anzaldúa, “Mundo Zurdo” in
This Bridge Called My Back