Rally To Solve Great Puzzle On Thursday

"Is Stanford Really Pure?"

San Jose State students have a chance to find out the answer to that current question Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Morris Dailey Auditorium when the Rally Committee holds a rally based on the burning query.

Helping answer the question will be State's song girls, yell leaders, pep band and Mr. Spardi. Backing them up will be six novelty acts, according to Jack Alberti, entertainment chairman.

Evidently having demanded equal time, Stanford has made plans to send down their song girls, cheer leaders and Indian mascot to defend "the Farm."

An equally revealing rally will be held here for Homecoming. The SJS Rally Committee will hold exchanges with COP, Fresno State, and Cal Poly on their campuses, Gary Waller, Rally Committee chairman, has announced.

Rally Committee Chooses Leaders

Darrell Danker and Dave Towle were selected as first and second alternate yell leaders at the regular meeting of the Rally Committee Wednesday in Morris Dailey Auditorium. The men were selected from seven candidates that tried out for the positions.

Gary Waller, chairman of the Rally Committee, announced the final alternate song girl will be named this week.

SENIORS HEAR ALUMS

Alumni Association representatives will appear before a meeting of the Senior Class in Room 39, today at 3:30 p.m., for the purpose of answering questions.

Also scheduled for debate will be the possible raising of Senior fees for June graduates. Tom Bonetti, president of the class, stated that if enough persons attend the meeting the issue will be voted on. Presently June graduate fees are $15, however there is an attempt to raise this to $15.50.

SOPHS WANT PLAQUE

The sophomore class will meet today at 3:30 p.m. in Room 55 to discuss plans for a car-wash and other ways to make money for the coming year, according to Bill Sturgeon, president.

Suggestions on ways to win the Soph-Fresh Mixer plaque will also be discussed. The plaque is awarded to the class winning the most points at the mixer to be held Oct. 19. Points are based on attendance, entertainment, contests, and games.

FROSH MEET

Freshmen will be urged to take an active part in Homecoming preparations at their meeting in the Little Theater at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, according to Connie Kersey, acting Frosh president.

"This is a chance for Freshmen to really take part in campus affairs," Kersey said. "There is a shortage of help on the Homecoming committees and we would like to fill the vacant posts with Freshmen."

Kersey said Homecoming Chairman Jerry McCarthy had asked for assistance from his class.

Also on the meeting agenda are reports from class committees and a talk from a representative of the Student Court.

Women to Sell AWS Calendars

Mrs. Izetta Pritchard, AWS adviser, spoke at the weekly AWS meeting Wednesday in Room 24.

Sign-ups also were held for girls interested in selling activity calendars Wednesday and Thursday in the Outer Quad.

Sophomore, junior, or senior girls interested in serving as AWS representative to the Student Union board should bring their applications to Mrs. Pritchard in Room 118 by Wednesday.

Social Science Prof To Take Council Post; Receives Highest Vote in Saratoga Election

Dr. Burton R. Brazil, assistant professor of social science, soon will become councilman in the new city of Saratoga.

Dr. Brazil was elected to the five man council Sept. 25. This was also the date on which the people of Saratoga voted to become a city by a margin of only 160 votes.

A man who has never held public office, Dr. Brazil was an active member of the Citizen's Committee, a group of Saratoga residents who promoted incorporation.

Endorsed by the committee of eight, Dr. Brazil ran for council-

President's Former Prof Visits San Jose Campus

An old friend of SJS revisited the campus Friday morning to pay an unofficial call to one of his former pupils. Dr. E. S. Evenden, professor emeritus of education, Teachers' College, Columbia University, stopped off in San Jose on his way to Los Angeles, to visit with his former student, President John T. Wahlquist.

A nationally recognized leader in teacher education, Dr. Evenden specialized in the administrative field.

After receiving his early education in Oregon, Dr. Evenden received his BA from Stanford University in 1910. In 1911 he received his M.A. from the same university. He received his Ph.D. from Columbia in 1919 and until his retirement in 1950 was a professor of education there.

Dr. Evenden was greatly impressed with the tremendous growth in enrollment on the SJS campus and the great success of the CSTA Teacher Recruitment Program, in which he is deeply interested. Dr. Evenden complimented William Blum, president of the SJS chapter of CSTA, and state member at large of the organization, for the good work of the local CSTA chapter in working hand in hand with other organizations in order to help meet the teacher shortage. He stressed the fact that a public information program should be carried on to acquaint the public with the actual teaching field and its value.

"We must have good teachers to maintain the nation's welfare and security," he said. He added that by all reports he has received, teacher education has held up and is improving.

College education officials met with Dr. Evenden and Dr. Wahlquist during the former's visit to the campus.

A total of 42 positions on campus committees are now open, it was announced today.

Applications for the positions may be obtained at the Student Union. The Student Council will interview applicants on Monday, Oct. 15, at 2:30 p.m.

Complaints Concern Athletic Budget

Complaints heard around campus Friday directed at the Student Council for its passage in the 1956-57 budget of $38,935 for Men's Athletics are "completely unfounded," Ray Freeman, ASB president, emphasized today.

"I feel, and I believe a majority of the Council agrees, that the sum made available to the Men's Athletic Department is very worthwhile," Freeman stated.

Actually, complaints heard Friday, after the budget figures were released in the SPARTAN DAILY, were few, but not faint. The disgruntled few who expressed concern over the amount allotted for athletics, said they wished to remain anonymous.

They explained the jist of their concern this way:

"San Jose State is an institution of higher learning. We feel more money should be allotted for scholastic pursuits. We don't feel athletics should be discontinued, but that more emphasis and money should be placed on scholarship."

Freeman's answer was, "It is the state's responsibility to support educational pursuits. Fees that students pay should go toward supporting student activities. Athletics, and football in particular, is the major student activity on this campus as it is on others."

Freeman pointed out that the largest part of the sum goes to the football team, and that any reduction in the sum would mean the extermination of minor sports.

US Elections Are Discussed On ISO Panel

"How Will the U.S. Elections Affect Foreign Countries?" was the topic of a panel discussion held by International Students' Organization at its Friday meeting.

Hideo Sato, president of ISO, opened the meeting with the thought that foreign students must study American culture and people in order to be a bridge between the U.S. and their own country when they return home. In return, Americans must try to understand the foreign students, as a key to understanding the attitudes of other countries.

The panel, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Lois Henderson, co-adviser of ISO, included Seung Ho Neu, of Korea; Manouchehr Rad, Iran; Yonel Baaba, Arabia; and Ren Ishikawa, Brazil.

Seung Ho said that a change of administration would cause a period of uncertainty in the Far East.

Manouchehr said it is not the party or person but what the administration will do in regard to each country that is important to that country. He added that what Iran wants most is to catch up with other countries, and achieve more individual freedoms.

Yonel Baaba said that Ike's experience in world affairs has a stabilizing effect in international relationships. He felt the Middle East would favor Ike, but thought Americans should risk their money to back the Arabs.

Ren Ishikawa took the point of view that South American politics are not as closely allied with American policies as are those of the other continents. He expressed a desire for a change, however.

Coronation Ball Needs Decorations

Social Affairs Committee has reached the last stage of planning for the Coronation Ball. Work on decorations will begin in the dugout tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. reports Bill Squires, committee chairman.

Squires announced that the Social Affairs Committee will now meet in room 55, the old Little Theater, rather than in the Student Union. Meetings are held each Thursday at 3:30 p.m.

A color theme of scarlet and gold for the Ball was approved by the committee and will be worked out under the guidance of Barbara Johnson, decorations chairman.

Experienced Actors Lead Drama Production

"Much Ado About Nothing," the Shakespearean play which opens the 1956-57 season for the SJS Speech and Drama Department, will be presented by an experienced cast, according to Dr. Hugh W. Gillis, publicity chairman.

Sylvia Cirone and Ivan Paulsen will portray the lovers, Hero and Claudio. Wayne Ward will play Don Pedro, who is trying to promote the romance. These three students appeared in last year's Shakespearean production, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Craig Thush, who was the Irishman in "The Merchant of Yorkers," will take the part of Don John, the villain.

Beatrice and Benedick, famous lovers of literature, will be portrayed by Leslie Robinson, who directed "Caesar and Cleopatra" last year, and Patrick Garvey, who has acted in several Shakespearean plays at other colleges.

Others in the cast will be Christopher Brown, as Leonato; Richard Geer, Antonio; James Givens, Balthasar; Lee Devins, Borachio; James Dunn, Conrade; Phillip Upton, Friar Francis; Robert McNamara, Dogberry; Don West, Verges; Richard Tash, a sexton; Robert Whitehead, messenger; Gail Anderson and Elizabeth Keller, waiting women; Dean Blackmore, a musician; Cheryl Del Biaggio and Marlene Balogh, pages; and Davey Schmitt, Robert Gordon and Thomas Prather, the watches.

The comedy, directed by Miss Elizabeth Loeffler, will be presented in the main theater of the Speech and Drama Building on Oct. 26, 27 and Nov. 1-3.

Parking Violators Don't Help

The parking problem at State is complicated, but in more ways than one. Needless to say there is little enough parking space near the campus. The two main student parking lots, as all those who drive their cars to school have discovered, are completely filled up by 9 o'clock in the morning.

It is not uncommon for students to have to park their vehicles as far away as William street on the south, Santa Clara street on the north and 11th street on the east.

The few street parking spaces near the campus are inadequate. These spaces are soon taken as early as 7:30 a.m. To top this off students are faced with the ever-present threat of "creeping" city parking meters.

Added to the critical parking situation, which has existed for several years now and which is growing more critical with increased enrollment, was the closing of 8th street and the addition of a women's athletic field where that street intersects with San Carlos street.

To make the situation worse, and herein lies our real "gripe," is the inconsiderateness of some student drivers.

If a driver is fortunate enough to come to school early in the morning and find a good parking space, chances are that when he returns prepared to leave for the day he will find his path of departure blocked by another vehicle.

Some drivers seem to believe that courtesy ends as soon as they place themselves behind the steering wheel of an automobile. Apparently they think the white lines laid out in the parking lots are only there for the other fellow.

We urge more intense patrolling of the parking areas, and stiffer penalties for parking violators. A step in this direction recently has been inaugurated by campus security officers. It is a step in the right direction and we hope proves successful.

Minister Finds Job as Coordinator Of Church Groups Keeps Him Busy

By KEN POWELL

One person who enjoys his work is the Rev. Mr. Jim Martin, adviser of the Student Y, Student Christian Council and the College Religious Council. His duties keep him busy, but he likes it that way.

As adviser to these groups Rev. Martin also acts as co-ordinator of the three. "The Student Y serves students and faculty members of all races and creeds. Any student may join regardless of religious affiliation," he informed. "We have 14 different religious backgrounds in the Y including those with no religious affiliation."

The Student Christian Council is a group of eight Protestant groups. The council sponsors the weekly chapel services in the College Chapel. The College Religious Council has 12 participating groups with different religious affiliations. It sponsors the annual Religion-in-Life Week and promotes special programs and projects on campus during the year.

WATCHES CHANGES

Rev. Martin finds interesting aspects in his work with the religious groups. The most interesting is "to watch the changes, growth, and development in people from the time they enter until they leave the college."

"Bringing people with different religious backgrounds closer together to develop more understanding and tolerance of others and watching their ideas change and develop to maturity gives satisfaction to my work," said Rev. Martin.

One of his most pleasant duties is to perform occasional wedding ceremonies in the college chapel. Since he came to the college in 1949, Rev. Martin has performed about 20 weddings.

REASONS VARY

"Most of the couples who get married in the chapel have various reasons. Some have different religious backgrounds," explained Rev. Martin.

Rev. Martin came to SJS in 1949 after graduation from Yale Divinity School where he earned his bachelor of divinity degree. He was a member of Kappa Delta Phi, educational honorary society, and Phi Kappa Phi, a national scholastic honorary fraternity. He enjoys camping, gardening and group singing—when he can find time to do them.

Is Smoke a Cause Of Lung Cancer?

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Dr. Robert R. Shaw of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas today said that there was no explanation for cancer of the lung "except smoking."

Shaw, at a press conference of the California Division of the American Cancer Society said, that excessive smokers developed lung cancer earlier than they developed other types of cancer. He also stated that lung cancer was more prevalent in men than in women.

Here and There

By FRED CLAIRE

The Daily Trojan at the University of Southern California seems to be more interested in former UCLA footballer Ronnie Knox and his unblinking father, Harvey, than the Daily Bruin of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The USC paper has been running an article on either Ronnie or Harvey, or both, almost every day since the much traveled Ronnie decided to skip up to Canada and see how football is played in the far north.

UNUSUAL NOTE

From the El Gaucho of Santa Barbara College comes an unusual note. Under the picture of an attractive girl is a caption which reads, "Wouldn't you rather look at this than read another lousy story."

That's one way of filling up space.

EXTRA LARGE

The largest headline ever seen on a college newspaper this year appears on the front page of the Los Angeles State College Times.

Standing two inches in length is a banner which reads "PLAN DUMP NEAR RAMONA."

The story concerns a proposed dump in the vicinity of the Los Angeles State College Ramona Campus. With the large headline and story is an aerial photo, four columns wide and ten inches long, of the campus in relation to the proposed dump. The dump is being planned about one-half mile from the campus.

IN THE RED

Those who feel that colleges do everything under the sun for the athletes and get nothing in return, should take heed to what happened recently at the University of California.

The college newspaper reports that the student body went into the red last year.

"The ASUC audit for the fiscal year 1955-56," reports the Daily Californian, "shows a drop of a quarter of a million dollars from the profit of the 1954-55 fiscal year. The cut in income resulted in a loss of $154,504 to the students. The $251,974 drop in income was largely due to fewer cash customers at University football games."

New Professor in Aeronautics Dept. Gets Good Start at San Jose State

By WALT TAYLOR

This year has been a particularly significant one for Frank Williams, assistant professor of aeronautics.

In addition to being signed to the faculty staff of the oldest and largest state college, a distinction in itself, Williams this year received two memorable documents. One is his honorable discharge from active duty in the U.S. Air Force. The other is an educational specialist degree from Stanford University.

As a major with the American Embassy in Rome, he was in the European Flight Control program from August, 1955, to April, 1956. During World War II, Williams enlisted in the Air Force flight training program at Fresno. He served from 1941-45 and was recalled to active duty in 1951 with the Korean outbreak.

Other degrees received by Williams include an M.A. in science education from Stanford in 1951 and a B.A. in geological engineering from the University of Colorado in 1947.

Williams spent four years with the Air Force ROTC program at the Palo Alto institution from 1951-55. Prior to that, he was a general science teacher at Carlsbad, N.M., High School, then an instructor in physical science at Menlo College.

As an aide to Aeronautics Dept. Head Thomas Leonard, Williams instructs classes in aerodynamics, electrical installation systems and a lab in aircraft standards.

Originally from Denver, the new aeronautics professor now lives in Campbell at 816 Patio Dr., with his wife Norma and two children, Louinda Sue, 7, and Ricky, 6.

Art Prints Serve As Study Guide

Did you know that the art prints in the Library Building serve as a basis for studying costume designing at SJS? The prints have become so popular that they will be hung all around the walls of Room L 210, which has been remodeled from a classroom for the purpose of a study and display room.

Students in design study the color combination of the prints and incorporate them into costume design, according to Miss Joyce Backus, librarian. Other classes, particularly those under the Art Department, use the display, also.

MARKING ON THE CURVE... AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Twokey Crimscott was a professor. Choate Sigafos was a sophomore. Twokey Crimscott was keen, cold, brilliant. Choate Sigafos was loose, vague, adenoidal. Twokey Crimscott believed in diligence, discipline, and marking on the curve. Choate Sigafos believed in elves, Jayne Mansfield, and thirteen hours sleep each night.

Yet there came a time when Twokey Crimscott—mentor, sage, and savant—was thoroughly out-thought, out-foxed, out-maneuvered, out-played, and out-witted by Choate Sigafos, sophomore.

It happened one day when Choate was at the library studying for one of Mr. Crimscott's exams in sociology. Mr. Crimscott's exams were murder—plain, flat murder. They consisted of one hundred questions, each question having four possible answers—A, B, C, and D. The trouble was that the four choices were so subtly shaded, so intricately worded, that students more clever by far than Choate Sigafos were often set to gibbering.

So on this day Choate sat in the library poring over his sociology text, his tiny brow furrowed with concentration, while all around him sat the other members of the sociology class, every one studying like crazy. "What a waste!" he thought. "All this youth, this verve, this bounce, chained to dusty books in a musty library! We should be out singing and dancing and smooching and cutting didoes on the greensward!"

Then, suddenly, an absolute gasser of an idea hit Choate. "Listen!" he shouted to his classmates. "Tomorrow when we take the exam, let's all—every one of us—check Choice 'A' on every question—every one of them."

"Huh?" said his classmates.

"Mr. Crimscott marks on the curve. If we all check the same answers, then we all get the same score, and everybody in the class gets a 'C'."

"Huh?" said his classmates.

"Let's get out of here and have a ball!" said Choate.

So they all ran out and lit Philip Morris and had a ball, as, indeed, you will too when you light a Philip Morris, for if there ever was a cigarette to lift the spirit and gladden the heart, it is today's new Philip Morris—firm and pure and fragrant and filled with true, natural, golden tobacco, lip end to tip end.

"...We should be out singing and dancing and smooching"

Well sir, the next morning the whole class did what Choate said and, sure enough, they all got "C's," and they picked Choate up and carried him on their shoulders and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and plied him with sweetmeats and Philip Morris and girls and put on buttons which said "I DOTE ON CHOATE."

But they were celebrating too soon. Because the next time shrewd old Mr. Crimscott gave them a test, he gave them only one question—to wit: write a 30,000 word essay on "Crime Does Not Pay."

"You and your ideas," they said to Choate and tore off his epaulets and broke his sword and drummed him out of the school. Today, a broken man, he earns a meager living as a camshaft in Toledo.

Sounding Off

By DICK O'CONNOR

San Jose State has defeated the mighty Stanford University Indians just one time in a rivalry that dates back to the turn of the century. The two schools have met 13 times.

San Jose State rooters look back at the 1954 victory at Palo Alto as the climax to the best homecoming day in SJS history. La Torre for that year produced a recording of the Jack Shaw radio broadcast of the last few moments of the game.

Stanford's invincible goal posts fell that day. It was indeed a happy occasion for the Golden Raiders.

How do they look upon our victory up at Stanford? A fluke, is the most common description. One Stanford graduate shrugs it off as a sympathy gesture on the part of the Stanford's great humanitarian football mentor, Chuck Taylor.

This year's Spartans look like the best bet in many a season to erase the stigma of one fluke victory.

We may be the only ones on the West Coast that think so, but we think that State has the equipment, football-wise, to knock over the Indians.

We have been watching Spartan-Indian clashes since 1948. There have been some dandies, but except for 1954, SJS has never put together the right ingredients for a win.

The Spartans had the Palo Alto team on the ropes in the 1948 clash. Chuck Hughes passed San Jose into a 20-0 halftime lead, but what followed made Pappy Waldorf's "chamber of horrors" look like a tunnel of love.

The Indians won that one 26-20.

Gene Menges and Billy Wilson invaded the Indian tepee in quest of a victory in 1949, but once again San Jose could not sustain an attack, and Stanford racked up a 49-0 win.

Things picked up in 1950 when Wilson and Menges combined for two touchdown plays. Unfortunately, Stanford, with Bill McColl, Gary Kerkorian and Emery Mitchell leading the way, scored five times for a 33-16 win.

The margin was cut to 26-13 in 1951. Stanford's Rose Bowl bound ball club had their hands full, but the Spartans couldn't put over the finishing blow.

The next two years were all Stanford as they smashed out 35-13 and 54-0 victories. Spartan football fortunes reached an all time low in the 1954 trouncing.

It's always darkest before the dawn, and the sun came up in 1954 with Tony Teresa as he ran the Indians ragged for the lone SJS win.

Last year the Spartans were passed to death by John Brodie as they lost, 34-18. Walt Ackermann was the only bright spot with the most sensational touchdown run we have ever seen. It merely narrowed the margin of victory.

So here it is 1956. With the best passing in SJS history and a running potential that has not as yet been tried maybe this is it. After Stanford is through with the Ohio State meat grinder offense, maybe the Spartans have a chance. We're behind them. Join us, there's lots of room.

Cincy Hurler Back to SJS Studies

By DON BECKER

John Oldham, San Jose State's only big league ballplayer, returned to the campus last week after spending the latter half of the season with the Cincinnati Redlegs.

The former Spartan pitching ace, who sparkled on the mound for four consecutive seasons beginning in 1951, was on hand to watch the National League pennant dog fight.

Oldham was an unexpected addition to the Cincy roster. Though he attended spring training with the powerful Redlegs, he was called into the service in April and did not plan to be back before two years. An injured knee, which impaired John's ability to march, cut short his service career.

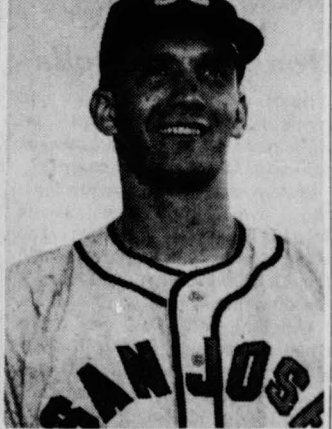

In his second year of pro ball last year, actually his first full season since he reported in June of 1954, Oldham showed exceptional promise. Hurling for the Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast league, the former Spartan was tabbed as one of the best prospects in the league.

The Redlegs decided to bring Oldham to their spring training session this year. When he was discharged from the service they thought it best to farm him out for fear to much work on the pitching mound might cause permanent damage to his knee. Instead they brought him to Cincinnati where he was used as a batting practice pitcher and kept under surveillance by club doctors.

"The knee doesn't bother me when I pitch," he said.

Oldham admitted it was a big

JOHN OLDHAM
... big league pitcher

thrill being part of a pennant race as close as this year's.

"In fact it's a thrill just being there," he added.

Oldham thought the best club won the pennant in the senior circuit. Brooklyn, he felt, had to beat out two great ball clubs to win. Though they were on top by the slim margin of one game, he still thought because they were there, they were the best team.

Asked about his own chances of making the club next season, John was reluctant to commit himself. "I'll be giving it everything I have, but then you never know in baseball," he commented. "We ought to win the pennant next and I'd sure like to be a part of that world series cut."

Most sports experts felt the Redlegs were the strongest club in the National League, with the exception of pitching. They are expected to be even stronger next season and if their pitching comes through, that is, if the youngsters like Oldham can make the team and win a few ball games, the homer happy Redlegs could walk away with it.

"Down the middle we are as strong as any club in either league," John declared. "With Ed Bailey behind the plate and Roy McMillan at shortstop teaming with Johnny Temple at second and Gus Bell in centerfield, we're rugged. And all those boys can hit," he reminded.

"All we need is pitching. Just a little improvement over this year could give us the flag."

Oldham said that Birdie Tebbets, Cincy manager, told their club that they had improved by 26 games over 1954. The same improvement is not expected next year but just a little will be enough. Brooklyn is getting older and is not expected to be as good next year, while Milwaukee should field just about the same.

"On the other hand, we're a young club and figured to be better," he said.

The Dodgers were John's choice to win the present series. When asked if he'd like to be pitching right now in the series, he smiled.

SJS Water Polo Team Smashes Broncos 17-2

With a supreme effort from its forward wall, San Jose State's water polo team walloped Santa Clara 17-4, last Friday.

Roger McCandless, Dale Anderson and Art Lambert led the powerful Spartan attack. The potent trio pushed through 13 goals as the San Joseans had an easy time of it. But the surprising point was that the first string front line made only 27 shots at the goal giving them almost a .500 shooting average, unheard of in water polo.

Team captain Lee Walton played an outstanding game on defense. He was mainly responsible for the low Bronco score.

Considering it was their first game, the Spartans looked unusually smooth in the water. They "Got some student teaching to do," he said, walking toward the Student Union.

Bronzan sent the Spartans through a heavy scrum Friday with the emphasis on defense. He held a sweat-suit drill on the previous afternoon.

End Bob Dunivant led the Spartan downfield blockers during the past week with 51 points. Another end, Pete Galloni, was right behind with 45 markers.

Pipe Organs are Theme For Display in Library

By LOU ANNE BONE

Pipe organs are the subject for the present display in the main floor of the Library Building. The display materials, comprised of records, magazine articles, books, pictures and a filmstrip concerning the pipe organ, were collected by Richard Jesson, associate professor of music.

There are several samples of actual organ pipes in the showcase, including two wooden stopped pipes owned by William Reid, an organ builder in Santa Clara.

Paper Features Coed, SJS Roses

A full-page color photograph of Patricia Anne Parish and the Spartan Roses, were featured in the Sunday, Sept. 30, issue of the San Jose Mercury-News magazine section.

The Spartan Rose, official flower of the SJS, originally was nominated for this distinction by Pegasus Literary Society in November of 1955, according to John Rylander, Pegasus president.

Pegasus Literary Society also gave the college its first planting of the rose, Rylander pointed out.

These pipes give the flute-like quality to some organ notes.

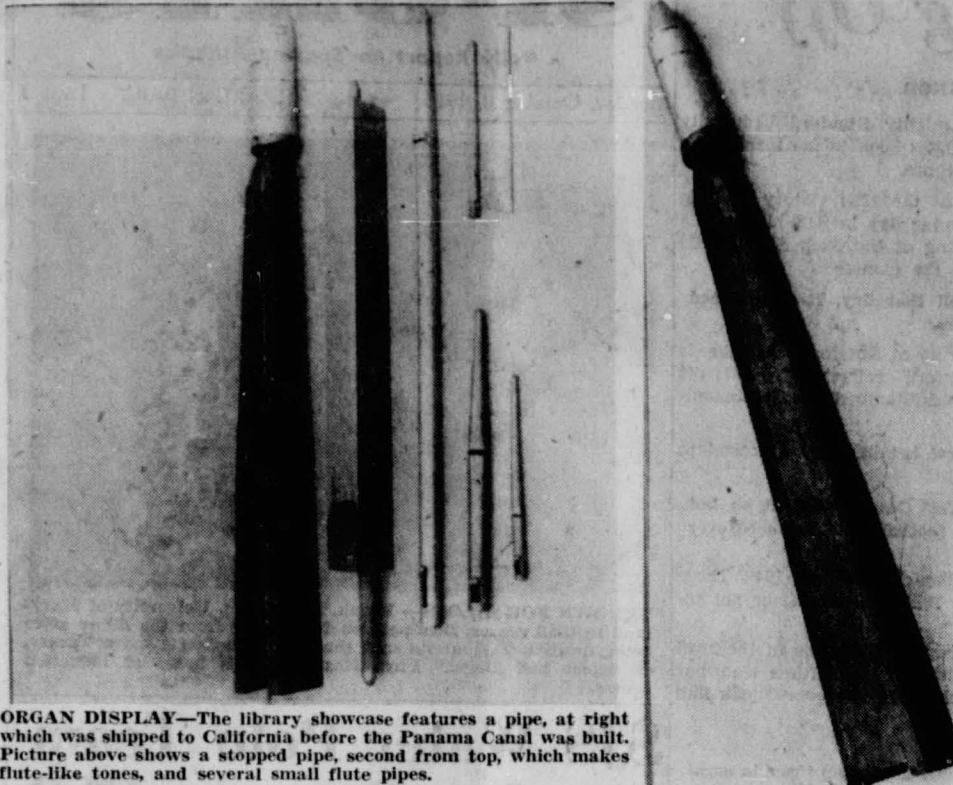

Preston Boomer, recent SJS graduate who constructed his own organ, loaned the display a pipe which looks somewhat like a rocket. It is quite old and was shipped to California via the Isthmus of Panama. It was used in the Trinity Church, first in San Francisco, and then in San Jose. Several smaller pipes also belong to Boomer.

"There has been a revival of pipe organ music because of Hi-Fi recordings," Jesson said. "This has resulted in an interest in the organ itself."

The library display is especially significant now because the school has just purchased an Allen electronic organ. The new Allen is being used for instruction in the Music Department along with the Hammond electronic organ the school has had for several years. Jesson teaches organ to 18 SJS students who are preparing to play in churches and teach organ in high schools.

Miss Maude Coleman of the Library staff arranged the display.

SJS Cadets End Training At Air Bases

Fifteen SJS Air Force ROTC cadets recently completed summer training at Hamilton and McClellan Air Force Bases, according to Lt. C. W. Rasley, assistant professor of air science.

The four week sessions consisted of intensive training in leadership and orientation to base functions. Each cadet received a ride in a jet or cargo aircraft and was given the opportunity to handle the controls under the supervision of a pilot. Purpose of the flights was to develop cadet interest in flight training which can be taken after graduation from college.

During the training period Cadets Darrel Clement and Anthony Cook held the post of group commander. Cadets Bruce Bassett, Donald Brickford and Bernard Clark were group adjutants. The summer camp ended with a review and address by Maj. Gen. William Dean.

In addition to the leadership training, half of the cadets went to Eglin AFB, Fla. to watch a fire power demonstration of the latest weapons and techniques of bombing and strafing. Five men from SJS also were sent to the survival school at Beale AFB, Marysville.

OT Club To Hear Militarists Oct. 10

Occupational Therapy Club members will learn about the opportunities for their profession in the armed forces, at the first fall meeting Oct. 10 at 7:15 p.m. in the Student Union.

Representatives from each division of the Armed Forces will be guest speakers. Captain M. Radke, procurement officer of the Army Medical Corps, and Lt. J. Chrobuck, of the Presidio, will speak to the group. Other speakers will be Lt. Davenport, OT head at Parks AFB, and Lt. (j.g.) L. Hawke, Navy, a graduate of SJS. The OT club will elect fall semester officers, and a coffee hour will follow the business meeting, according to Flo Kawahara, president.

Earns AF Wings

Carl A. Logan Jr., a former San Jose State student, recently was awarded Aircraft Observer wings at James Connally Air Force Base, Texas.

Logan was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant through the SJS ROTC program in June 1953 and reported for active duty a year later.

His graduation terminated a 42-week airborne radar observer course which will qualify him as a navigator aboard long range aircraft.

State Dept. Representative To Discuss Foreign Service

Edward S. Little, representative of the U.S. Department of State, will visit the campus Oct. 16 to discuss career opportunities in the U.S. Foreign Service and explain the Foreign Service Officer selection process to interested students.

The State Dept. has announced a written examination for the Foreign Service will be held Dec. 8.

Candidates must be not less than 20 nor more than 31 years old. They must be American citizens of at least 9 years.

Applications for the examination must be received by the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service in Washington, D.C., before midnight, Oct. 26.

Successful candidates will be appointed as officers to serve in any of 268 embassies, legations and consulates abroad, as well as in the Department of State in Washington.

Starting salaries are scaled according to the officer's qualifications, experience and age. They range from $4750-$5350 per year. Examination application blanks are available in the hall outside Dr. Laird S. Swagert's office in Building N.

Inaugurated to unite both the interests of the music lover and those of the Hi-Fi technician into one unit, the club has full support of some of San Jose's leading High Fidelity dealers, distributors and service organizations.

Among those pledging their support are: Sherman and Clay, Allied Radio, Paramount Sound, Coast Radio and Frank Quemet.

Discounts amounting to considerable savings will be one of the outstanding features of the Hi-Fi club. Persons interested in building or revamping their old sets are urged to attend the meeting. Also, savings on the initial purchase of Hi-Fi sets are possible.

Engineers Hear Stanford Speaker

"Recent Advances in Radio Astronomy" will be the speech topic of Dr. R.N. Bracewell, Stanford engineering instructor, for the first night meeting of the San Jose State College Student Branch of the Institute of Radio Engineers, tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the engineering building auditorium.

Dr. Bracewell, according to a release from the IRE, has stated that he will speak on recent advances in radio astronomy, highlighting the discovery of radio-frequency radiation from Jupiter and Venus, and the origin of the radio noise from our own galaxy.

An assistant professor in electrical engineering at Stanford, Dr. Bracewell is conducting a solar radio astronomy program engaged in building an antenna with a beam size of one microsteradian.

Honorary Installs

Spartan Spears, sophomore women's honorary society, will install new officers tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. in the college chapel.

Newly elected officers are Masako Kawauchi, president; Diana Stelling, vice-president; Pat Means, corresponding secretary; Liz Bell, secretary; and Nancy Goodart, historian.

Outgoing officers are Gayle Grisham, president; Pat Parish, vice-president; Sandy Ward, secretary; Joan Oeser, treasurer; and Joan Healy, historian.

Spinners To Dance

Spartan Spinners, San Jose State's folk dance club will open its regular Tuesday night sessions tomorrow in the gymnasium of the YWCA, 2nd and San Antonio Sts. Dr. Carl D. Duncan, group sponsor, announced.

Three Companies Hold Employment Talks

Three organizations will conduct pre-employment interviews with seniors this week on campus. The three groups are the Upjohn Co., San Francisco; General Telephone Co., of California, Santa Monica; and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, San Francisco. The interviews will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Upjohn Company will be the first to interview seniors. Representatives are coming to SJS on Wednesday to seek prospective employees in the field of pharmaceutical sales. The San Francisco concern prefers biological science majors who have completed their military obligations.

Thursday, the General Telephone Co. of California will speak to electrical, electronic, mechanical, and industrial engineering seniors who will receive degrees.

Friday morning interviews will be conducted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers who will speak to persons receiving degrees in civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering, real estate appraisal, accounting, and personnel management. Seniors interested in speaking to these representatives may sign up at the Placement Service Office, Room 100, main building, according to Dr. E. W. Clements, placement officer.
