Radical Curricula Changes Needed, Legislator Says

"If you woke up tomorrow morning and found yourself sitting in my seat in Sacramento, what would you do?"

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos (D-24th District) directed the question Wednesday night to an audience of 50 SJS students in one of 18 town hall meetings to "enhance communication" with his constituents.

"What issue would you attack?" he asked students. Vasconcellos' query drew opinions and suggestions on topics ranging from registration to education.

"Our schools are the most critical and vital institution in our society," Vasconcellos said. The public school system is largely irrelevant in our time, he indicated.

INITIATE PROGRAM
"I plan to initiate a program to delineate what the purpose of schools in California is," the 34-year-old politician said. There are five volumes in the education code of "how to" but not "why," according to Vasconcellos.

A radical change in the curricula and structure of the education system is needed, he indicated.

"We must humanize the system," Vasconcellos said. "We must let children be human beings and learn and grow. This is where our future lies — education."

Vasconcellos, perched on a chemistry table, left the format of the evening up to his audience. His suit coat unbuttoned, hands stretched over his head, he pulled few punches with the students.

Asked if he would accompany Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on his visit to the SJS campus, Vasconcellos answered less than enthusiastically.

SUPPORT HHH
"Yes, I will be at SJS with Humphrey," he answered. "Yes, I support Humphrey pretty strongly now, as it goes along."

"The next four years will be as critical as our nation has ever had," he asserted. "I have never sensed any compassion with Nixon, and I could not entrust this nation to him," he explained.

Concerning the registration problem at SJS, Vasconcellos said an investigation by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee will be held in mid-November.

It will deal with budgeting and planning, but he doubts if any improvements will be made by the spring semester.

LAST FALL Nick Kopke was arrested for his part in the Marine recruiter demonstration. But at yesterday's Oxford Union debate he spoke vigorously on the "pro" side of the topic "Resolved: SDS is Detrimental to American Society." While not defending George Wallace, he said the American Independent Party Candidate is "closer to the minds of the American people" than SDS. Kopke was among 300 persons listening to and participating in the debate between members of SDS, the American Independent Party and the John Birch Society. Next in the series of debates sponsored by OASIS will be Nov. 15, titled, "Resolved: Fraternity Men Are Plastic Rah-Rah Boys."

"IT IS A GREAT TRAGEDY," Pearl Buck told SJS students and faculty Wednesday night, "that ignorant men with powerful weapons can so easily destroy superior beings." Speaking before a near capacity crowd, Miss Buck said, "Much of the difficulty in the world today is because of this difference in cultural levels between peoples." 'Clandestine Activity'

AFT President Raps Reduction Load Attempt

By ISABEL DURON
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

The latest attempt to curb the move from the 12-unit to the 9-unit load next semester is now in progress.

In a statement issued this week by Dr. Eldred E. Rutherford, president of the SJS chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), he complained of "attempts to move faculty to nine-unit teaching loads by the use of clandestine techniques which will not require the hiring of new faculty to take up student-overload that would be created by a shift from a 12 to 9-unit teaching load."

According to Dr. Rutherford, associate professor of psychology, he has knowledge of "at least one department" that is making this move under the guise of following "the guidelines set by State College Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke."

Dr. Rutherford declined to name the department until he could confer with Pres. Robert D. Clark and Dr. Robert Burns, academic vice-president.

"If this clandestine activity is allowed to occur, . . . students will find themselves in heavily swollen classes, created to absorb a greatly increased student-teacher ratio," the AFT statement continued.

Furthermore Dr. Rutherford contends that if such methods are used to move to a nine-unit load the additional faculty needed would not be hired and "would destroy whatever prospects Chicano and Black students have for achieving a major breakthrough in the hiring of minority faculty."

AFT ENDORSES

AFT endorsed the demand last week of the Mexican-American Student Confederation (MASC) that the 350 faculty positions, to be created next spring if the nine-unit load is in effect, be filled by Black and Chicano instructors.

The statement continued, "We in the AFT will fight vigorously this kind of activity in the days ahead. We want to achieve a shift to the nine-unit teaching load under open and honest conditions which will insure the need for establishing new positions to meet student overloads created by this shift."

Two suggestions were made in the statement which the AFT will observe: "1) continue to press for a straight-forward shift to the nine-unit quality load, thereby creating the need for new positions, 2) vigorously demand that the Chancellor, local administrators, and State College Trustees focus their efforts, not on trying to kill the AFT-Association of California State College Professors nine-unit campaigning, but on obtaining budgetary appropriations to staff positions created by this campaign."

AWARE OF NEED

Asked if he was aware of the allegations made by the AFT statement, Dr. Burns replied he was aware of the need for readjustment of the academic workload but expressed the hope that "the readjustment must occur in ways such that students are not penalized by being caught between administrative intransigence on one hand, or impetuous unilateral action by some faculty on the other hand."

Dr. Clark reiterated his sympathy with the faculty overload problem but he emphasized that the necessary funds needed to finance additional staffing was not available and could not be appropriated before spring, if at all.

Illegal Recruitment Claims Trigger Campus Response

By SUSY LYDLE
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

Black students charges of alleged "illegal recruitment" triggered responses yesterday from three corners of the SJS campus.

A joint investigation of "illegal recruitment" in the Athletic Department will be launched by Pres. Robert D. Clark and ASB Pres. Dick Miner, ASB Treasurer Dave Aikman reported to Student Council yesterday.

Miner received a letter from Dr. Robert T. Bronzan, director of athletics, warning that an "public charge" reflecting his (Dr. Bronzan's) "personal integrity or professional competence" would result in a suit. Miner read the statement to council yesterday.

Blacks will participate in the selection of a liaison between the Athletic Department and athletes, Aikman indicated. Funds are already available for the liaison.

Pres. Clark and Mel Whitfield, United Black Students for Action (UBSA) president, agreed to a joint investigation committee of three students and three faculty members, according to Aikman.

JOINT APPROVAL

The students and faculty will be appointed with the approval of Whitfield, Dr. Clark, and Miner and "all parties involved," Aikman indicated.

The findings of the investigating committee will be submitted to Dr. Clark and Miner. "We hope to have the investigation off the ground and moving by Friday," Aikman said.

Bronzan's letter read in part: "Information has reached me that at least one campus organization has registered a claim with the Student Council . . . that there has been 'misappropriation and/or improper expenditure' of funds by the Director of Athletics, and a demand for an investigation of this claim."

"Although I do not object to an inquiry of the administration of fiscal matters supervised by the Director of Athletics by responsible and authorized authorities, I wish to make it clear that any public charge upon my personal integrity or professional competence will result in the immediate filing of a civil suit . . . against the Associated Students of SJS, and any or all agencies or persons as may be designated at a later time."

'OBTAIN EXONERATION'

"The objective of such a suit would be to obtain exoneration from such charges . . ."

Sheila Young, senior representative, asserted that "UBSA never charged misappropriation of funds. That's not the issue," she said. The issue is "illegal recruitment," Miss Young indicated. "We are concerned with student monies being spent properly," Miner told council. "We are concerned that ASB funds be expended in a proper and positive fashion."

"We will proceed with all facets of the investigation," Miner asserted. In the end personalities may be involved, but we will have firm legal ground before any facts are released for publication at the conclusion of the investigation," Miner explained.

Miner also indicated that ASB officers are empowered by the student body and Constitution to make sure funds are spent properly.

LANGAN EXPLAINS

"Nobody's out to get the Athletic Department," ASB Vice President Bill Langan assured council members. The major concern of ASB is not the monies but the inequities presented to Student Council, Langan indicated.

Aikman emphasized that the investigation of "illegal recruitment" is only one part of a three-pronged probe of ASB's largest allocations of funds.

The treasurer urged any student with complaints, concerning the Athletic Department, Spartan Daily or the new College Union to contact him in the College Union.

ASB President Dick Miner will introduce Vice President Hubert Humphrey tomorrow at noon at the SJS drill field.

Flying in from Los Angeles tomorrow, the vice president will be accompanied by Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh, Mayor Alioto of San Francisco and Attorney General Thomas Lynch, the three co-chairmen for the California Humphrey-Muskie campaign.

Also with Humphrey will be the former Postmaster General, Lawrence O'Brien, now campaign manager for the vice president, and Kenneth O'Donnell, former special assistant to President John Kennedy and President Johnson.

Don Edwards, congressman for the 25th district in San Jose, will ride with the vice president from the S.J. airport to the campus, where Humphrey plans to deliver a speech "directly related to the students of SJS."

Humphrey on his tour through Texas said yesterday in San Antonio, " . . . the federal government will be the model employer of Mexican-Americans," if he is elected.

The vice president has been praised as a "miracle worker" in Texas because he has brought the various factions of the Democratic party together, united behind him.

The San Francisco Examiner, which had previously supported Nixon in the 1960 campaign, came out in support of Humphrey today. The San Francisco Chronicle and both San Jose daily newspapers have endorsed the opposition candidate, Richard Nixon.

The 38th vice president of the U.S. has supported the present administration's policies until recently when he has said, "I have pledged that my first priority as President shall be to end the war and obtain an honorable peace."

U.S. Senate Candidate Sets SJS Talk

Pete Camejo, senatorial candidate for the Socialist Workers Party (SWP) will speak here tomorrow on "The Revolutionary Answer in '68, or, How to Defeat the Three Little Pigs (Humphrey, Nixon and Wallace)."

The speech, sponsored by SJS Young Socialists Alliance (YSA) will be in JC141 at 3:30 p.m.

After the speech Camejo will join in a discussion and meeting for persons interested in the YSA, said Milton Chee, a YSA spokesman.

According to Chee, Camejo was "one of the leaders in the winning of Telegraph Avenue, July 4." He described this as "an example of victory as a result of a mass movement."

In the incident Young Socialists fought police for several days behind barricades after claiming their rights of free speech had been violated at a rally they held in support of a French students and workers strike.

The confrontations ended with the Socialists being granted a closed-off Telegraph Avenue, July 4, by Berkeley City Council.

Planning to set up a local YSA chapter at SJS, organizers Joan Fuks and Paul McKnight said they hope to have an SJS delegation to the nationwide convention in November.

The YSA is the youth of the Socialist Workers Party, McKnight said. Among stands taken by the SWP are support of the "democratization process" of Czechoslovakia, Black nationalism, colonial revolutions, and withdrawal from Vietnam.

Persons interested should either look for the table on Seventh Street or phone Maryann Urbani at 295-1320.

The Oct. 26 presentation will be the third for the fund-raising event.

Honorable Men

By ROBERT D. CLARK
SJS President

We at San Jose State College are proud of the achievements of Tommie Smith and John Carlos in the Olympic Games. All Americans should be proud of their achievements.

In addition to the pride in the accomplishments of these athletes, I think we all should question the ambiguous moralistic posture of the American Olympic Committee when they condemn our athletes after the U.S. Olympic Team refuses to dip the American flag during the opening Games ceremonies when all other nations do so in respect to the host nation.

Millions of Americans must have seen Tommie Smith on television, as I did, explaining the symbolism of his and John Carlos' gestures, which have caused their expulsion from the Olympics. His explanation was calm and rational; his sincerity unquestioned. The message he conveyed should be of real concern to all Americans.

I regret that our treatment of our

Black athletes has been such to prompt them to feel they must use the Olympics Games to communicate their real concern for the conditions of Blacks in America. Our own minority peoples should be able to be heard here at home, rather than needing an international setting to gain attention for their cause.

I hope that their gesture will be interpreted properly. They do not return home in disgrace, but as the honorable young men they are, dedicated to the cause of justice for the Black people in our society.

Miner Arrogant?

Editor:

In reference to Dick Miner's telegram (Spartan Daily, Oct. 21) if he did not pay for it himself, and/or if he signed it "president of A.S.B.," he should resign for his arrogance.

I voted for him, but not for that. Procedurally, he may have made the same mistake he claims that John Carlos and Tommie Smith made. I voted for a man, not for a divinity. His telegram increases by just that much the cause in which Carlos and Smith are engaged.

However, unlike their way of receiving their medals, Miner's telegram solves nothing and provokes. To what the telegram provokes remains to be seen.

Playground Sandbox

Editor:

I am a little tired of seeing the Spartan Daily used as the playground sandbox where the neighborhood kids in student government fight it out.

Not only are certain officers of the government using the Daily, but I feel that reporters who go over to "dig up dirt" and take remarks and quotes out of context to make "good copy" are also creating this "sandbox" image in the Daily.

As a more conservative member of ASB government this year, I see no "Miner Machine." To some who are not involved or who are not aware there may appear to be a "machine" but that is only because the "sandbox" is in the Spartan Daily, not at the College Union. Unlike former eras the members of student government are now working together as individuals and as adults. In student council, for example, and in the executive, many problems and possible conflicts are discussed and worked out beforehand — instead of long floor fights which have characterized other administrations.

There may be disagreements, and I often have many myself on certain issues, but in most cases there is no feeling of animosity, only fair discussion and consideration.

Thus, this "machine" image rests largely. I believe, in the fact that things are running so smoothly only because there is a spirit of cooperation and a new eagerness to accomplish something this year and do something for all the students.

To my own surprise, the four recent appointees were not "rubber stamps" as I had earlier expected. These people were all highly qualified and are a great asset to Student Council.

In student government this year I have discovered there is a fair shake for everyone; for Greeks, dormies, YR's, YD's, hippies, new leftists; everyone can get involved who so wishes. Everyone can do his part to help the student body and to help all other students get a fair shake. All that is required is a sincere interest to help, an awareness of oneself and of others, and the willingness to work for every student's "bag," and not solely one's own.

Bosses Resent College Kids

Dear Mom:

Thanks for the cookies. The guys loved them. You know, you and Dad have been sending me money every now and then, to supplement what I've got in the bank, and I appreciate it, but I've made a decision.

Mom, Dad, I've taken a part-time job. Now don't get excited, Mom. I know how you worry about me getting over heated, but it's not a hard job and it's only for about 20 hours a week.

I've had part-time jobs before in the summer and things while I was in high school, but now that I'm in college things are a bit different. I noticed a strange look, almost of resentment, spread over the face of my supervisor when I was applying for the job, when I told him I attended college.

SMART-ALEC

He asked me if I was one of those smart-alec college kids who think they know more than anybody else, just because they attend college.

That's one thing I've noticed since I started my job, Mom, a kind of resentment by the older people I work with who never attended college, that begins just as soon as they learn I'm a freshman at SJS.

I've been talking to some of the guys who have part-time jobs and they all say it's the same way — the people they work for almost appear as if they think we are trying to spite them, because they didn't get beyond the eighth grade or never got out of high school, while we're attending college.

Since I'm new on the job, I haven't been doing everything perfect these past few days. Whenever I make a mistake my boss makes some remark like, "And you're going to college?"

NO DEFENSE

There's no defense for it, Mam. There's really nothing you can say. You can't say you're not going to college just to bug them. You can't tell them you appreciate their experiences and realize that although a college education is an important asset nowadays, decades of living cannot be outweighed by a few years of reading books.

I've heard of employers, Mom, that would rather not hire college students, many of them giving the excuse that they just don't seem to be able to handle the job.

But what it is, is this inexplicable feeling of resentment, that they would of course hotly deny, with cries of "Look at me, I can do it, and I never got beyond the ninth grade," and their animosity expands any mistakes you might make into something incredibly stupid in their eyes.

Will you listen to me, Mom? I'm beginning to sound like some kind of amateur psychologist. But it's kind of exasperating at times. You know what I mean?

Spokesmen Needed

Editor:

Mi estimado Senor Gutierrez,

After reading your letter from MAMA, I have come to the realization that the Chicano Movement on this campus needs spokesmen who are articulate and adequately represent the intellectual spirit of our people. I feel that you and your group might qualify for these positions.

In order to curb the "irrationality" of a bunch of "hot-headed" Chicanos, I beseech you to come to the next MASC meeting which is to be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Newman Center basement.

Carinosamente,
Rosemarie Gomez

Table Grape Crisis Becomes Civil Rights Movement

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a two-part interpretive feature showing the grape growers' side of the current grape boycott crisis in California.

By JAN HOTHERSALL

Why is it that supposedly responsible people in politics, religion, business and especially college students are for Cesar Chavez and the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC)? These people so want to help the oppressed, that they delve into the table grape controversy without learning the facts. They read the propaganda by Chavez and his followers, which is widely disseminated by the mass media, and believe it.

Having lived 12 miles from Delano, the leading area of Chavez' grape turmoil for the past 15 years, I will tell you my view of the controversy.

First of all, the table grape crisis, as a strike, has lost total perspective. It's now a civil rights movement, infiltrated with subversives for their own socialistic ideologies. This may seem a strong statement, but I have evidence to support it.

Cesar Chavez is considered by most persons as a savior of the migrant worker. He is in reality, according to the 14th Report of Un-American Activities in California 1967, a charismatic leader "and has the knack of turning situations to his own advantage and to weld factions together in an organized front."

He was trained by Saul Alinsky, a recognized leader in the art of civil disobedience, as were some of Chavez' workers. Chavez' leadership at the beginning of the grape movement in 1964 drew many people, some actually sympathetic to the so-called misfortune of the farm worker, but mostly participants from the Free Speech Movement, the Marxist New Left organization, the Communist party and the Socialist Workers party. Such organizations were eager to penetrate the heart of the strike for their own interests.

I say "their own interests" because the farm workers were not and are not slaves, poorly paid or living in slum conditions as most people are led to believe. They were not needy, even by the farm workers' own admission.

The mayor of Portland, Ore., dispatched 150 cases of food and clothing to Delano vineyards, and the workers sent them back with this statement, "We farm workers of San Joaquin Valley are proud people and we are working hard to support our families and pay our bills."

The letter continued, "We are averaging $2.30 and $2.40 an hour. You will receive in the mail a package for Portland's less fortunate citizens from the prosperous farm workers from our area." The statement also read, "We are not starving as Cesar Chavez has told the whole nation."

Delano's agricultural force amounts to 5,000 of the 67,000 workers in California. It is basically non-migratory, supplemented by migrants only during the peak of harvest season. The end of the bracero program in December, 1964, placed resident agricultural laborers in a better bargaining position in Delano. The bracero program brought 200,000 to 300,000 workers from Mexico during seasonal harvesting.

The grape workers in Delano are truthfully the highest paid farm workers in the nation. They are paid from $1.80 to $2.60 an hour, depending upon the type of grapes and the picking (first, second, third or fourth).

This summer Charlton Stephens, SJS senior public relations major, talked with the Delano farm workers to find out the conditions for himself.

C. V. Padillo, an independent farm labor contractor, quoted the above wage scale to Stephens. The latter, however, was skeptical. He talked to Ray Ayalla, Guimarra worker from Hayward, who earned $18 plus a day. When Stephens asked Ayalla about Chavez, he replied, "We don't need no Chavez . . . plenty to eat and drink."

Stephens then went to Anton Carratan Camp, No. 2, Delano, and spoke with A. Vega, an elderly laborer. Vega earned $1.40 an hour, plus 15 cents for each box of grapes he picked, which totaled $20 for a day's work.

At another Carratan camp, a Japanese-American worker, Frank Marrata, spent three or four hours showing Stephens the living and working conditions and wage set-up at the Carratan Ranch. Stephens, by the way, ate with the farm workers and told this reporter, "I never saw one fly or hint of filth." Stephens was shown the laundry and bathroom facilities set up army style, which impressed him favorably. Supposedly the workers live in filth. Don't readers realize, however, these camps have to pass frequent state health and sanitation inspections just as restaurants must?

Stephens also toured the grape fields while workers were picking and packing grapes. Although pickers stoop to remove the grapes, they are shaded by the immense vines. The grapes are then packed expertly at a modern packing table with a broad metal awning to shade the workers.

Stephens noticed growers took great pains to meet demands for quality field and living conditions. "These advancements, according to workers," said Stephens, "were made prior to Cesar Chavez' intervention."

Stephens also visited Morris Fruit Co., where juice grapes were being picked. He interviewed Carlos Molina and his four sons, who worked as a swamping team. Each man displayed a check stub which totaled $301.85 for one week's work. When Stephens left the field, one worker said, "Tell them Cesar Chavez is full of hot air." Would such harsh words come from the lips of a starving grape picker regarding his supposed savior, Chavez? I think not.

During his tour, Stephens repeatedly encountered workers and camp operators who were unwilling to accompany their criticism of Cesar Chavez with their names and photographs. These, according to Stephens, were the old, the very young, the weak and the women. Of course, Stephens always asked why. In every instance, Stephens said these individuals expressed fear for their physical well being. Delano labor contractor, A. L. Carmona, who opposes Chavez, said, "They (Chavez' men) like to burn my truck, but I not afraid of them."

One Japanese-American, who asked Stephens not to use his name, told of midnight raids on his camp by Chavez' strongmen. According to the Oriental, Mexican-American workers were pulled from their beds, beaten and terrorized by Chavez' men.

The Japanese-American and Filipino workers, of whom there are an abundance in Delano, were left unharmed. Events such as this suggest Chavez is fighting a racist battle under the colors of a righteous cause.

Benefit Dance for Rec Major

Pearl Buck Requests Help for Amer-Asians

By RON LENT
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

"I'm here because of the Amer-Asian children," explained author Pearl Buck in reference to the thousands of neglected babies born out of wedlock to American servicemen and Asian women.

The writer of "The Good Earth" described these Amer-Asian children as being "citizens without a country" before a near-capacity crowd in Morris Dailey Auditorium Wednesday night.

According to Asian custom, the child belongs to the father. Therefore, the baby is refused Asian citizenship and is barred from the public school system, Miss Buck stated in a College Union Program Board sponsored lecture.

While these abandoned, illiterate children grow up, "Our government is doing nothing" to help them, she stressed before her captive audience. The Pentagon maintains that "legally they don't exist."

With one out of 10 American soldiers in Asia causing the birth of these unwanted children, Miss Buck reveals, the United States has "the responsibility to take care of them."

To meet this need, the author of 70 books founded the Pearl S. Buck Foundation to aid both mother and child. In the first year of helping them, the organization examines the conditions, community attitudes, problems and needs of the mother and her Amer-Asian offspring.

During the second year, the child receives an accelerated education while the mother acquires clerical or secretarial skills. The following year, the Amer-Asian can voluntarily visit the Opportunity Center in his community to discuss problems or simply enjoy fellowship.

In cooperation with the foundation's efforts, doctors in these Asian countries will operate on the Amer-Asians free of charge.

Unfortunately these children often don't live long enough to receive the free medical benefits, because "half die before they are five," Miss Buck said.

Coed Swimmers Capture 2 Wins; Relay Meet Next

The women's swimming team added two more wins to its season against Stanford and University of the Pacific last week.

Terri Ogilvie set records at each meet with a pool record in the 100 yard free-style at Stanford and a school record in the same event with UOP.

In the UOP meet, in which Delta College of Stockton also participated, Lorrie Kilbuck set a pending national record in the 25 yard backstroke, with a time of 15.5 seconds.

The score in the UOP meet was SJS, 121; UOP, 52 and Delta, 36. In the meet with Stanford, which featured both "A" and "B" teams in action, the "A's" won 57-17 and the "B's" triumphed by a 41-27 score.

The next meet is at Stanford Saturday with every women's college team in Northern California participating in a relay match.

Jabberwock Staff Begins Publication

The Son of Jabberwock, a student newspaper representing the radical viewpoint, will be on the stands Friday, Nov. 1, according to its editor, Charles K. Moreland.

"Our object is to print truth, not 'the' truth—that would imply something exclusive—but truth from a heretofore silent point of view," explained Moreland, who is also vice-president of UBSA.

"Material will be selective but not necessarily subjective," Moreland continued. "We will objectively cover in depth the subject matter we run."

Managing Editor Steve Perdue said material will include speeches by such controversial lecturers as Eldridge Cleaver, and political essays from the Liberation News Service and The Movement News. Poetry and art will also be used, he added.

Funded through the Experimental College by the ASB, The Son of Jabberwock will begin as a bi-weekly but will become a weekly if additional funds are made available by the Student Council. Other staff members are Glen Smith, advertising manager; Addie Insel, editorial assistant; and reporters Joe Allen, Janet Perdue and Douglas Helpepe.

Students, faculty and other interested persons are asked to submit material to Son of Jabberwock by contacting the Experimental College.

Survey Data Analyzes SJS Goals, Objectives

By RICK FIRTH
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

The concept of opinion surveys and statistic data collection methods is not a new one to the academic community. However, the practical application of these methods to the problems and policies of the institution is relatively rare. SJS recently became one of these rarities.

The Office of Institutional Studies, under the direction of Dr. Ronald Hunt, is the first attempt to inaugurate a full scale institutional studies program on a state college campus.

The first function of the office will be the collection and analysis of statements expressing the goals and objectives of the college at all levels of interaction and teaching.

Dr. Hunt is interested in discovering how the objectives of the college, faculty and students compare in regard to one another. Evaluation of the educational programs will be made regarding the purposes for which they are offered to the student.

"The comparison of objectives and results is the best method for analysis of the effects of a program," Dr. Hunt believes. "You often find in educational institutions that the objectives of a course of study are interpreted differently by a professor and the students. Ideally, each should be aware of the objectives of the other."

Arabic Course

Arabic language classes will again be held on campus every Thursday night beginning tonight at 7:30 in CH239.

The current semester marks the third continuous semester that the class has been offered for non-credit to interested students.

The class may be given for college credit soon in the future, according to Mohamed Assaf, newly elected president of Arab-American Club.

Further information is available at the first class meet tonight.

The type of studies to be made by the office are to go beyond the measurement of student ability represented by the Scholastic Aptitude Tests. Particular emphasis will be given to continuing analysis of personality, attitude, and value change. "For example, we would like to discover the degree to which a student's college life contributes to his value change," Dr. Hunt said.

The first assignment given to Dr. Hunt and the Office of Institutional Studies is the management of the SJS implementation of an improved admissions, registration, and scheduling process.

Dr. Hunt will be working with all of the faculty and student groups and committees concerned with the problem in an attempt to coordinate their work.

Dr. Hunt is especially concerned with the seldom mentioned problem of hidden costs in our current registration procedure.

Hunt contends that "in an inefficient system there will be many hidden costs. For example, the work done by all those volunteer organizations on campus will have to be accounted for if we change over to computer registration."

Following an appearance at last summer's Berkeley Folk Festival at the Greek Theater, the San Francisco Chronicle's John Wasserman wrote: "What can be said about her except to repeat that she has the most pure and beautiful voice in the entire spectrum of popular music."

Miss Baez recently married David Harris, former student body president at Stanford, now appealing a conviction and three-year sentence for refusing military induction. She is also authoress of a newly-released novel, "Daybreak."

Script Colorful, Poetic, Says 'Playboy' Director

By CONNIE SKIPTARES
Fine Arts Editor

In 1907 when John Millington Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" first opened in Ireland, a "nationalist fury of violent hissing" broke forth in the theater because the audience felt Synge had "slandered the Irish peasant" in his script by the outright use of the word "shifts" in reference to ladies' undergarments.

Subsequent performances to the morally outraged audiences during the remainder of the week called for police control, and the play was generally considered a disaster area for the entire Irish run.

Directors and production men today would hardly entertain the reservations that some of these first directors of 'Playboy' probably had (since then the play has experienced some 300 productions); in fact, if they're anything like Dr. Paul W. Davee, they take on new excitement every time a new production of 'Playboy' opens.

DAVEE ENTHUSIASTIC

Dr. Davee, our own Drama department's director of 'Playboy,' which is set to open tomorrow night in the College Theater, is particularly enthusiastic about the play, not only because it's the first time he's ever directed it, but because, in his own words, "it's a genius' masterpiece."

"One of the things that excites me so much about the play is the beauty of the language and the fact that the people in the play are so human," says Dr. Davee. "It's not only a study of the weakness in man, but a study of the charm and spirit of people and their weaknesses. It doesn't propagandize or score an intelligent statement necessarily. It's just a play about simple humanity."

'Playboy' is the story of a young Irish lad who stumbles into a small Irish settlement with the news that he has killed his father. The people there not only condone his action for its bravery, but they make him somewhat of an idol for committing it.

Dr. Davee describes it essentially as a comedy. "The story needs to be played in a strong enough comic vein so that it will seem to combine the justification of this boy's action and the stupidity of the rest of the people in a light that makes it laughable as well as objective."

"It doesn't stereotype the Irish, though. It just makes some positive statements about the Irish temperament in a new kind of reflection that Synge has given it."

'COLORFUL QUALITY'

"It has a colorful quality," he continues, "mostly about the language and the quaint setting, and a poetic quality about its expression. As a piece of writing, it will hold up for a long time, but again, whether its popularity lasts is something else."

Although Davee labels 'Playboy' simple on the surface, for him, "directing it is no simple task," he reveals, "it's a simple play for me to do, but if it comes off well, it should reveal its simplicity."

"I'm trying to realize the play as a thing which shows an objective picture of life in Ireland as Synge saw it, as I said, it doesn't have an exact message."

Dr. Davee's intention so far has been a strict interpretation of Synge's script in his own dramatic translation of the play. "I haven't altered anything. A play like this needs as much authenticity as possible to represent the nature of the place. If you don't follow it through, you lose some of the critical values of the play. The most important thing is making the people in it believable."

Along with most of his directing responsibilities, Dr. Davee was concerned with the handling of the language that the play's two leads, Susan Mason and John Jacobs, had to interpret into Irish character.

Mahalia Jackson At Civic Concert

Mahalia Jackson, described as "the Queen of Gospel Singers," will perform at the San Jose Civic Auditorium Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Downbeat Magazine has said "Her audible intakes of air become parts of the crystalline beauty of her style, and the ease with which she turns a patch of words and melody into radiant song is just one mark of the weight of her power."

Appearing with Mahalia will be the 56-voice Northern California Street Choir, Don Brassfield and the Faith Temple Choir, Elsa Hendrix and the Rev. J. L. Strawther.

The program is sponsored by the Saint James AME Church. Tickets will be available at the Civic Auditorium Box Office beginning at 7 a.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday.

Dance Hour Wednesday

The Women's Physical Education Department will present a dance studio hour next Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Exploring the theme "What is dance?" male and female participants will illustrate how dance communicates emotions and social comment.

According to student composer Paula Baker, the studio hour will also demonstrate how "dance reveals the joy of life."

Open to all students, the dance studio in PER262 will "aid the college community to further understand the dance, besides testing ideas that may later become concert material," she said.

Spartans dropped the Lobos 55-24. SJS faces San Diego State Saturday evening in San Diego. The Aztecs are the No. 1-rated small college in the nation and boast a perfect 5-0 record.

Spartans To Invade San Diego State

SJS will go after its third football win of the season Saturday night as it faces the No. 1 small college team in the nation, the San Diego State Aztecs.

The Aztecs stand 5-0 after beating Cal State Los Angeles, 37-14, last Saturday.

The game will be played in San Diego.

SJS has a new starting quarterback and his name is Don Perkins. Against New Mexico Don hit 11 of 16 passes for 230 yards and two touchdowns. He has a total of 19 completions in 34 attempts for 314 yards and three TD's.

"Don is our No. 1 quarterback right now," remarked Head Coach

Harry Anderson. "Our quarterbacks work with one another on the bench and this is extremely encouraging to any coach."

"Perkins will have to keep working if he hopes to stay on top, as all our QB's want that No. 1 position," said Anderson.

About last week's New Mexico game?

"The defense played a pretty good game last week," quipped defensive coach John Webb. "We have some pretty young players and they're starting to mature right now."

San Diego is led by fullback Lloyd Edwards. Against Cal State last week he gained 95 yards on 19 attempts, while Dennis Shaw hit on 10 of 22 passes for 221 yards.

Defensively the Aztecs have an outstanding squad as they have limited their last two opponents to only 63 yards on the ground while intercepting seven enemy passes.

"There's no question about San Diego's ability," said Anderson. "But if we can have a good week San Diego might be prime for an upset."

In practice Monday the players seemed keyed for the Aztecs and things appeared a little more casual as line coach Tom Keele led all players in returning more kickoffs for long yardage.

A major portion of the Spartan ground attack has shifted to tailback Frank Slaton. The 5-7, 155-pound Oakland native gained 113 yards last week and scored once.

Playing the likes of Stanford, Cal, and then San Diego would be enough for any coach but the season isn't even half over.

"If we continue to improve we'll win our share," said Anderson. "Our line is awfully young but they've shown signs of improvement which are very encouraging."

Vengeful Harriers Seek Laurels

By CHET WOOD

Spartan Daily Sports Writer

If at first you don't succeed, run a lot more.

This could be the motto of the SJS cross-country team which failed in its first meeting of the year with West Coast powers, USC and San Diego State. In the Sacramento Invitational, the Spartans finished fourth behind surprising Stanford, USC and San Diego.

But since that meet, the Spartans have been running a lot more. In fact, SJS runners didn't even take time out from rigorous training to recuperate for a meet against Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo. Instead, the Spartans ran and still managed to sweep the top six places in a 15-49 victory.

Leading the Spartans was Andy Vollmer, who was timed in 21:15.5, only three seconds off the course record. Ralph Gamez, Byron Lowry, Bernie Kraus, Darold Dent and Gary Berthiaume rounded out the top SJS finishers.

Now, after almost two weeks of hard training, the Spartans will taper off to enter the Mt. Sac Invitational in Los Angeles fresh.

In the Mt. Sac Invitational the Spartans will meet the same competition they had to face at Sacramento.

The Mt. Sac course, according to Coach Ernie Bullard, will not be a true test for his runners. The course is only 4.2 miles, short by cross country standards. This course, however, is hilly which is a step up from the flat 4.2 mile course used for the Sacramento Invitational.

And Bullard feels this work might be the key to success. To fare well in the meet, Bullard figures his runners will have to make up ground on USC and San Diego on the hills where he feels his team is stronger.

If Vollmer, Dent, Lowry and Gamez finish near the leaders and Kraus and Berthiaume can place close behind, the Spartans should have an excellent shot at the title.

The Spartans' top runners will be Ole Oleson and Mike Sellers, the first and second finishers at Sac State. Tom Davidson and Tim Danielson, former California champions in high school, lead San Diego.

Why should I waste my time?

I can't afford s-l-o-w reading speeds

"Slow readers work harder for their grades," Lorna Lawson says. "Without Readak, I'd be just another average reader. That's not good enough."

"I've got to succeed in college. And I want to do other things besides study all the time I'm here."

Lorna knows so-called average readers are ten years behind the times. Back in 1958, 250 words per minute was an average reading speed. But it's all different today. Ask any college sophomore. You'll be told 400 to 500 words per minute is a must for ordinary study.

"I've learned one thing," Lorna says. "Knowing how to read fast isn't enough. To stay ahead, you've got to know how to skim at least 3,000 words a minute when the pressure's on. And you need to understand everything you read."

Many people agree with Lorna. They're the ones who know what it takes to make it in school today.

Class presidents, school paper editors, valedictorians, scholarship winners, athletes and many others choose Readak speed reading programs.

These outstanding people are already superior students. But, after Readak training, they won't need to work as hard to keep up with heavy reading loads in senior high or college classes. They'll have more free time.

At Readak, average readers break out of the pack and stay ahead. Faster reading gives them time for all the things they've been missing. Effective reading not only helps them learn more. It creates time for other things.

It's no accident that Readak programs have been conducted at Santa Clara University, San Francisco College for Women, Notre Dame College and Westmont College — to name just a few of many.

Lorna Lawson is a freshman at the University of San Francisco. Her high school grade point average was 3.8.

What's more, scientists, technicians and professionals at NASA Ames Research Center, Lockheed Missile and Space Division, Ampex, Stanford Research Institute, and many major industries have called on Readak to help improve their reading effectiveness.

"Readak's program is exciting and stimulating," Lorna says. You'll learn all forms of hand-pacing, skimming, scanning, overviewing, pre-reading, outlining, technical and critical reading. In other words, you'll learn everything it takes to read two, three or even four times faster.

Readak students use these new skills in their first class. Grades go up. Study is easier. Reading assignments become exciting challenges, not causes for worry.

This summer you can develop the reading skills you'll need in the fall, and for many years to come.

Readak's small classes make it possible for you to learn with people you know and understand.

Our free reading test is nationally standardized. It shows you where you stand. It tells us exactly what special training you need. If you don't take the program, there's no charge for the test.

The tuition for our program is only $95. It may be paid in advance with a discount, or budgeted over a 3-month period. Special group rates are available to clubs and organizations.

Now's the time to plan for tomorrow's success. Our next class is already filling up. But there's still room for those who sign up now.

Classes meet once a week, 2 1/2 hours per session, for 9 weeks. Our next class starts:

Thursday, Oct. 31
at 7:30 p.m.

Call now for a free brochure. Now is the best time to make your free test appointment, also. Just phone 248-7674. Ask for Mr. Flynn.

Save your seat at your first sit-in.

Send for the Sit-On

The trouble with a sit-in is what you sit on. And that you have to sit on it so long.

Since our thing is keeping you alert mentally, we've had no remedy for other parts of the body that may fall asleep. Until we invented The Sit-On. What distinguishes The Sit-On from an ordinary pillow is a pocket for your NoDoz®.

Which means that now you can sit it out until the wee hours. Alert from top to bottom.

I want to save my seat. Here's my $2.00. Send me The Sit-On. Send check or money order to: NoDoz Pillow, 360 Lexington Avenue, New York, New York 10017.
