Hour Rally Delay, But Students Stay

By JEFF MULLINS
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

Students as well as members of the local community started showing up at the SJS drill field almost three hours before Hubert Humphrey's expected arrival Friday.

By noon a large, chattering crowd sat cross-legged on the grassy field while many persons stood along the fence surrounding the area which measures slightly longer and wider than a football field.

The sun had already begun to drench shirt sleeves and foreheads when a phone call from Los Angeles brought news that the Humphrey plane had just left the L.A. airport — more than an hour behind schedule.

What should the crowd be told was the question that caused a short and heated discussion between student leaders and Humphrey people who had gathered in a small huddle near the speaker's platform.

TELL THE TRUTH

"Tell the . . . truth!" one student insisted. "If you're going to close the credibility gap start here and now!" There was no more discussion.

ASB President Dick Miner called for the audience's attention, told them he was going to put it to them straight — that Humphrey would not arrive until around 1 p.m.

Perhaps one-third of the crowd left the area. Some went away in disgust. Others took advantage of the delay to grab something cool to drink or a shady retreat beneath a tree or tall building.

Shortly after 1 p.m., the crowd had once again grown — even larger than it was before the announcement of the vice president's delay.

SUDDEN QUAKE

Then there came a sudden quake of excitement which erupted from the closed-off section at Seventh Street near San Carlos.

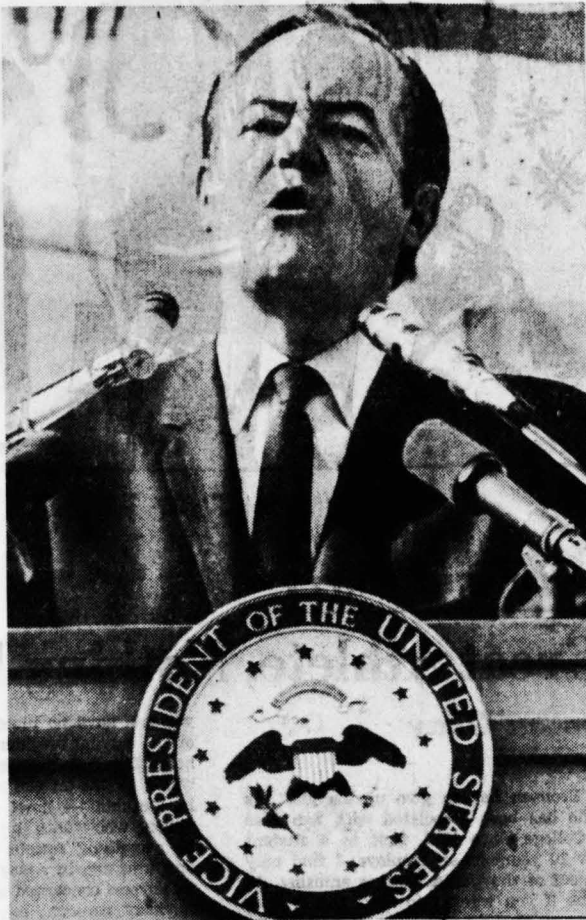

It was as if a fox had darted into a flock of turkeys which — instead of scattering for safety — rushed to the scene to inspect the commotion.

Like turkeys, the spectators in and around the drill field and passage-way to the platform arched their backs, craned their necks, and gobbled with electric expectation.

And there was Humphrey. Tight lips smiling. Two or three coeds locked to his arms. His head high. The thin, familiar expressions riding swiftly through the pushing, jabbering, swirling mob near the press and VIP sections.

Then all was quiet . . . and Dick Miner was standing at the microphone, and with his head turned and eyes leveled at the man from Minnesota, he said . . .

"We knew where you were four years ago Mr. Humphrey . . . where are you now?"

ANSWERING A CHALLENGE by ASB President Dick Miner, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said, "Some people talk of change, others cause it — and this generation can cause the changes needed." Referring to audience listening, national newsmen felt Humphrey's reception at SJS was among the best he had received on the campaign trail. Although delayed by over an hour, Humphrey was still greeted by a crowd at SJS estimated at over 10,000.

Salutations, Mr. President . . .

VICE PRESIDENT Hubert Humphrey (shown at left) embraces ASB President Dick Miner on the speakers' stand just after Humphrey had finished giving his 35-minute speech to the SJS student body. Miner had introduced Humphrey by challenging the vice president to tell students the truth on the issues of the day. Afterwards Miner said the vice president didn't answer the challenge the way he would have preferred but felt that Humphrey's remarks during the last five minutes of his speech showed the real Humphrey, and that was what he wanted.

. . . Greetings, Mr. Vice President

Humphrey Visits Without Incident

Security for the Hubert Humphrey San Jose visit was tight Friday, but not without reason. Rumors of several student and faculty disruptions electrified the floor of the Humphrey election headquarters at Sixth and Santa on the even of the vice president's address at SJS.

A total of 90 San Jose police members were on hand Friday to implement the members of the U.S. Secret Service.

A separate division from the United States Treasury Department assigned to the political rally wore a round button divided in three sections of green, yellow and black. The plainclothesmen from the San Jose Police Department had plain blue buttons on their lapels.

The thoroughness of the Secret Service was evident at the San Jose Municipal Airport when a crowd of 300 massed to see the vice president's arrival. "Everyone here has been checked," one of the Secret Service men said. "They don't know it, but they have been checked quite well."

IT WAS AN ORDERLY CROWD Friday that received Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey at the SJS campus. Rumors had circulated the campus earlier in the week that jeering and heckling would greet the presidential candidate. But the throng, estimated at over 10,000, was calm and orderly. After his speech, Humphrey was nearly mobbed by students wanting to shake his hand — and the vice president answered the desires of some, greeting them with a warm handshake. On the way to his limousine, four Secret Service agents, sweating profusely, held back thousands of eager students. One woman, though, was nearly trampled by Secret Service men. Humphrey helped the crying woman to her feet, put his arm around her, and tried to console her. She was later taken to the health center for a check-up.

White House Desires The Voice of Youth, Humphrey Tells SJS

By BARBARA MCKINNEY
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was challenged to tell it the way it is Friday by ASB President Dick Miner and responded in kind, exclaiming "Some people talk of change, others cause it — and this generation can cause the changes needed."

Addressing more than 10,000 students and townspeople, the vice president, as Dick Miner put it, "caused me to see, underneath all the frustration and underneath all the pressure, many of the things that once made him a man worthy of my support."

"The White House will welcome the voices of the young and the voices of men and women which have never been heard before," Humphrey declared. "The White House belongs to the people and the President is the only national officer who can act as a lobbyist of the people."

The vice president stated, "I seek to serve those I've served all my life — I seek to serve all of humanity."

"But I want to make this very clear. Our foreign policy can be no better than our domestic morality. If this country is divided by doubt and suspicion there is no hope," Humphrey emphasized.

"If we work together and talk, listen and dissent with reason and responsibility together, there is nothing we cannot do."

'BEST DAYS'

"The best days of our country are yet to be lived," Humphrey declared. "The potential of the poor can be brought forth, and I want to be the man to call it forth. I want to be the man to call forth goodness and not evil. I want to bind our wounds and bring justice to our laws," the vice president said.

"But we must bring harmony and peace to our own country, for God only knows, if we fail here, we can do no better abroad."

Humphrey, who arrived at the SJS drill field approximately an hour late, welcomed the throngs of people by exclaiming, "I think my generation and your generation have more in common than you might suspect, and what we have most in common is that we both care. We see what's wrong and we want to change it and we care about making those changes."

"If you want to know where I am and where I stand, I'll tell you that I'm for getting changes done."

Humphrey referred to the bombs falling in Vietnam, the rat-infested ghettos, the suppression of Black people and Mexican-Americans, and the unjust draft laws.

PEACE

Speaking mainly about peace, the vice president discussed his speech in Salt Lake City, Utah, where he clearly outlined what he would do concerning the war in Vietnam.

"I want to get that war over just as much as you do," he declared. "We don't have an argument there. You can be sure I'll do it my own way and with a willingness to take some risks for peace in doing it my way."

The vice president reached out to his audience by declaring it a perceptive and articulate one as he discussed the "spiraling arms race."

Humphrey, who fought for many years to get nuclear fall-out out of the air and Strontium-90 out of children's bones and who is now working on the non-proliferation arms treaty, explained, "I fought for these things, I might add, over the fevered opposition of one Richard Nixon and the bombing generals."

"John Kennedy and I got the nuclear test ban treaty, and now there is another treaty that is even more important — a treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons," the vice president continued.

'AND WHY?'

"If you don't want Mr. Nasser, among others, to have the capacity to build their own nuclear bombs, I suggest you do something about this treaty, too," Humphrey exclaimed. "And why?" he asked.

"Because in less than 25 minutes after the pressing of buttons in Omaha and Moscow, there would be 250 million dead Russians and Americans."

"The first requirement of a civilized society is to stop the danger of that happening," he declared.

Humphrey told the quite packed in audience how he hoped to stop the danger of the arms race halting humanity. He explained it would take real work and com-

Teaching Mission

By DR. GLENN S. DUMKE
Chancellor, California State
College Board of Trustees

The study group's proposal that the State Colleges and the University should go under a single board is a familiar suggestion, already considered at length by the Master Plan team as early as 1959, and rejected for reasons which are even more valid today than they were then.

There are two major types of higher educational institutions in America — those with a teaching mission, like the California State Colleges, and those with a research mission, like the University of California. There is no sharp line between them; each must do some of the other's work. What is different is the sense of mission. Research has glamor, prestige, support, and recognized status; teaching is less well compensated, has little glamor connected with it, and does not bring the professional independence that a researcher enjoys. Yet one of the fundamental reasons for student turbulence today is that the people who are being trained to be college professors by our graduate schools are taught that research is the only noble goal, and that teaching and direct, personal contact with undergraduates is but a poor second. As a result, students complain, with some reason, that many professors ignore them for research tasks, teach as little as possible, and regard undergraduate teaching only as a means to an end.

Institutions with a teaching mission, like the California State Colleges, are trying to solve this problem by giving emphasis to the student and his interests. They recognize research as a necessary adjunct to good teaching, and support it strongly, but not to the extent of having it displace teaching as their major mission. We have had our turbulence and will have more, but because of our teaching emphasis, we have had far less than we had any right to expect considering our size and spread. California was the first and is still the only state in the nation which recognized, through its Master Plan, the significance of these teaching institutions, and gave them, through the Master Plan, the only opportunity that exists in the country for them to have professional parity with the research-type institution, while still maintaining their teaching mission.

State after state has adopted a single-board approach, because it presents a neat-appearing, simple, superficially logical approach to higher education's problems. Yet in all of these states the teaching institution is either busily trying to become a third-rate research university, or is relegated to the academic steage in terms of fiscal support and recognition. I repeat, the California Master Plan is the only arrangement which gives the teaching institution a chance at professional equality.

The study group says a single board would eliminate competition between the segments. It hasn't in New York, Ohio, Illinois, Oregon or a dozen other places that could be mentioned. The record is very, very clear.

The single board — or indeed any juggling with structure — is not the answer to our problems. The answer is making our present structure, which has within it the seeds of greatness, work better, through a stronger and more effective Coordinating Council.

Great Athlete, Nothing Election

Bronzan Okay

Editor:

So "Bronzan has to give up his job." As one who has been associated with San Jose State College since 1954, first as a student and for 10 years as an employee, I find only one aspect of the UBSA charges amusing. At one time if you wanted to read "Little Man on Campus" in the Spartan Daily, you turned to the back page. These days, you don't have to turn past the first page, all the little men on campus (and I don't mean Bronzan) get feature stories written about them.

Were not the Spartan Daily staff so oblivious to what makes the world go round, the story that should have been featured in Tuesday's newspaper was the one you chose to bury on page 3, or is 30 years of dedicated service to San Jose State College by Walt McPherson not worthy of headlines?

Bronzan and McPherson, two of the greatest athletes this College has produced, two of its finest coaches, two of the most highly respected individuals connected with San Jose State College, and we have to read in the same issue of the Spartan Daily that one will be asked to resign (front page) and the other has resigned voluntarily (page 3). Talk about misplaced priorities!

If the Bronzan article even deserved mention, it would be more appropriately be on the Sports page. Or is that spot only used when someone retracts his earlier charges and the accused is vindicated? The profit-making newspapers excuse their poor taste because "it sells newspapers." What's your excuse?

No Meaning

Editor:

If you watched the Republican charade at Miami and Mayor Daley's atrocity at Chicago, you can have no illusion about the relevance of the current presidential campaign — it has none! It has no meaning to anyone who really wants to put an end to napalm and genocide in Vietnam — now! It has no meaning to anyone who wants to go beyond tokenism and do something serious about racism, poverty and injustice in America. It has no meaning to anyone concerned about meaningful work, unphony personal relations, and a healthful and beautiful environment. No — the choice in this rigged election can only appeal to those who think they're doing something positive when they choose their own poison.

Professors Against the War believes that the only relevant vote you can cast for a presidential candidate is a NO vote that will be counted. You can do this by writing in the candidate of your choice — unfortunately Snoopy won't be counted. We think you should vote for other candidates for national office when they express a clear alternative to the war machine, and for those state and local candidates who support quality education — free in every sense of the word, who have taken a consistent stand against racism, and who will halt the accelerating destruction of our landscape by pollutants, pesticides, population, and profiteering.

More to the point, PAW is interested in developing rational alternatives. This means that people are going to have to start getting their heads together; they are going to have to learn that their common concerns are more important than the things which divide them; they are going to have to commit themselves fully — minds as well as bodies — to this urgent cause. How can we create a society that runs without war, racism, and exploitation, where humanity counts more than power, where redwood trees are more important than timber, and this whole country is one big love-in. (Would you believe lots of little ones)? Election day isn't the answer, this time around.

Futile Cause Without Truth

The evolvement of the Chicano movement has been a beautiful thing to watch. The words, "Viva la Causa" epitomize the inspiring fight for equality.

Last Monday's MASC rally was not beautiful. Not because the Chicanos threatened "definite action" today if my editor hasn't resigned or ASB funds to the Daily been cut off. In their desire to gain support for La Causa, the Chicanos played games with truth. And without truth no cause is worth anything.

They called ASB President Dick Miner a "goddamned racist pig" and demanded he resign. Yet both accusations they made against him were unsubstantiated. A simple phone call to Miner probably would have been enough to clear up the misunderstandings.

One of them (and I say this with red face) came about because a wrong pronoun in a Daily story describing Miner's telegram to the U.S. Olympic Committee made it sound as though he was opposed to the action taken in Mexico City by Tommie Smith and John Carlos.

The other accusation was that Miner had "promised" he would appoint Chicanos to two or three of four student council openings, yet had appointed none.

The fact is that for reasons not explained the Chicanos sent only one man for appointment interviews. According to Miner (and here I would agree with Chicacos that the ASB president's reasoning was a bit contradictory), the man was not appointed because he was "too involved" in the Chicano programs.

Wanting to have some Chicano representation on council, Miner tried several times to contact Al Espinosa, head of the Chicano EOP program, so he would send over more applicants — but without success. Desperate, Miner had Mike Honda, a tutor in the program, take the interviews. Honda scored higher than anyone else and was duly appointed.

At this juncture Miner was informed by the Chicacos that Honda is Oriental, not Chicano. Well, you can see what a hassle that might cause. But, it should be clear, it is not a hassle so irreconcilable that Miner and Chicacos could not have solved it and parted friends.

Now, as for the charges against the Daily and its editor, anyone who reads the paper knows Phil Stone is somewhat conservative. But I do know that the editorial page of the Daily is open to anyone, even us staffers, to differ with his stands.

He made that quite clear on a radio KJSS show a week ago Friday with MASC member Tom Fuentes. He told Fuentes the Chicacos could have a regular column in the Daily. Yet at the rally Fuentes stood before 300 people and said that Stone had denied the Chicacos a column.

The point of all this is not to make the Chicacos look like a pack of liars. I cannot believe their leaders would try to dupe the public. But such hasty accusations, with the word "racist" bouncing back and forth like a volleyball, only serves to cheapen the high goals for which they are striving.

Aztecs Roll Past Spartans

SAN DIEGO — The Aztecs of San Diego State rolled on to their sixth straight win of the season by dumping the SJS Spartans 48-6 Saturday evening before 34,641 chilled fans.

It was the Aztecs' 31st victory in their last 32 games.

Most of the second half was played in a dense fog which left the field invisible to those people in the upper deck of the stadium, including the press corps.

SJS had very little to cheer about as San Diego dominated most departments. Featuring the passing of Dennis Shaw and power running of 245-pound fullback Lloyd Edwards, the Aztecs scored in the first quarter with only seven minutes gone on the clock.

Shaw completed passes to Tim Delaney, Tom Nettles and Mike Oslin on key situations.

All-American candidate Fred Dryer, defensive end who stands 6-6 and weighs 232, led the Aztec defense which harassed the Spartans who used three quarterbacks in a bid to get something rolling.

San Diego scored the first two times it had the ball, going 68 yards in 17 plays which consumed 8:03 to open the game. Shaw passed 12 yards to left end Tim Delaney for the touchdown and Dick Wood converted with 6:57 left.

After San Jose's Frank Slaton quick-kicked into the end zone, the Aztecs drove 80 yards in 15 plays with Shaw taking it over from the one. Wood again added the PAT with 13:59 left.

Following a 55-yard kickoff return by Slaton to the Aztec 38, the Spartans marched to the 14 where they had a second-and-six situation when fullback Neil Powers fumbled and the Aztec tackle Dick Weber recovered.

The Spartans stopped an Aztec drive when Terry Hostek picked off a Shaw pass on the San Jose 36, but the Spartans fumbled on the first play and San Diego's Mike Carsey recovered on the 34. Seven plays later Shaw hit flanker Tom Nettles for the score with Wood adding the PAT.

Nate Wright returned a Ken Plake punt 27 yards to San Jose's 36 to set up the fourth Aztec tally of the first half. Harry Benjamin went over from the one on the drive's eighth play and Wood connected again with 1:24 left.

The Spartans escaped total humiliation when quarterback Russ Munson rolled to his right and went 16 yards for the score in the final quarter.

San Diego added insult to injury by scoring on the final play of the game on a 6-yard pass from reserve quarterback Thom Williams to Oslin.

SJS' next game will be with Pacific next Saturday. The game will be played in Stockton.

Boisterous 'Playboy' Opens New Season

By LEE POAGUE
Fine Arts Writer

A boisterous production of John M. Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" opened the SJS Drama Department's 1968-69 season Friday night, receiving an enthusiastic ovation from the opening night audience.

"Playboy" is advertised as a comedy, but beneath the comic sheen lies a tragic, almost absurdist, plot where reality is turned upside down, murderers being treated like heroes and ostracized as liars when the supposed victim turns up alive.

John Jacobs was impressive as Christy Mahon, a simple Irish country lad, caught in an existential nightmare and bewildered by his reception at the hands of the townspeople. His finest moment came in the last act when Christy lies thrashing and cursing on the floor as the woman he loved burns his leg with a hot poker.

Susan Mason was outstanding as Margaret Flaherty, the lonely barmaid who catches the eye of Christy. Her consistently fine performance emphasized the absurdity of her quick reversals of sympathy.

Other fine performers were Gary Bothum as Old Mahon, hobbling around, leaning on his shillelagh; G. Norman Russell as Michael James Flaherty, the wake hopping father of Margaret; and Paul Myrvold as Shawn Keogh.

Particularly enjoyable was Christopher Bricker as Jimmy Farrell, Flaherty's drinking buddy. He seemed to lighten up the stage as he waddled about, slightly stooped, legs bowed, casting lecherous glances at Flaherty's daughter, his jutting chin supporting a wonderfully impish grin.

The play was directed by Dr. Paul Davee, lighting by Dr. Kenneth R. Dorst, and costumes by Miss Bernice Prisk. The set design by J. Wendell Johnson was the best this reviewer has seen at SJS, providing the perfect setting for the play.

Humphrey Addresses Rally, Raps Republicans

mitment — "staying right down to the nitty gritty of things."

Then the vice president declared to the crowd, "Take a look at your own state, folks; there's a lot to be done right here. After all who is your governor?" he questioned, "And who is the Republican candidate for Senate?"

Answering his own question, Humphrey said, "He's the man who has a mysterious list of faculty members he plans to fire. Well, I've got news for him, Senators don't fire faculty members, nor do you hire them, and he oughta know that."

Humphrey declared that the best place to get things done was right on the college campus. "I don't think the campus should be just a meadow of meditation," the vice president declared. "It should also be a place of action, a place of social experimentation to improve the world."

"I've been in a hurry all my life and there isn't much of my life left," stated Humphrey, now becoming hoarse.

"I want a party where people like you will be the chairmen, the captains, the candidates. That's the kind of party I'm going to help build and that's the kind of party I want to lead," he exclaimed.

Humphrey wound up his address by quoting from the Black poet, Langston Hughes: "I say it plain, America never was America to me, and yet I swear this oath — America will be!"

As Humphrey put it, "His words cry out a message of despair and faith. He has told us all the inequities, all the inhumanities and all the injustices of our world, and yet he still has faith it can be changed."

Cuba Is Socialist, Says Psych Prof

By MARY MORRIS
Spartan Daily Staff Writer

"Cuba is becoming a classless, moneyless society. It is a socialist society building communism."

These remarks concluded Dr. Milton Anderson's talk, "Cuba Today," before an estimated group of 130 students and teachers at the first meeting of the Spanish Club recently.

Dr. Anderson, an associate professor of psychology, toured Cuba for three weeks this summer with a group of professors from California under State Department permission.

In a pro-Cuban speech he noted the adjustment he had to make in his American way of thinking to go with the Cuban way of life.

The Cubans connect and relate everything. Education is viewed in connection with the military and the military with work, he said. Parts of their army work in fields and factories. The University has a correspondence school which sends professors out to where the people work. New factories are used as schools in an actual learning process where students learn to run the factory, Dr. Anderson continued.

The army is not the "spit and polish" our Americans know, but it is more of a "mobile production unit."

Very impressed with the continuing revolution, he said students are involved with the revolution, not in protesting it.

Most Cubans are enthusiastic about the revolution because it is a revolution for the poor, he indicated.

In judging the benefits and results of the revolution, Dr. Anderson said the country would have to be viewed from its pre-revolution days.

Cubans have a great deal of admiration for their leader. They do not refer to him as Castro but rather Fidel, he said.

What the interviewer won't tell you about General Electric.

He won't tell you about all the job opportunities we have for college graduates.

Not that he wouldn't like to.

It's just that there are too many jobs and too little time.

In a half-hour interview our man couldn't begin to outline the scope and diversity of the opportunities we offer. Opportunities for engineering, science, business and liberal arts majors.

That's why we published a brochure called "Career Opportunities at General Electric."

It tells you about our markets, our products, our

And, in plain language, it tells you exactly how and where a person with your qualifications can start a career with General Electric. It even gives you the first step in starting a career with us — a Personal Information Form for you to fill out.
