Student Union renovation creates kinder, safer hangout

By Margaret Bethel
Senior Staff Writer

Students looking for a place to nap between classes are no longer going to find the dark and cozy Student Union they're used to.

According to Cathy Busalacchi, director of the Student Union and Event Center, recent renovations in the union have tripled the lighting.

"The first thing I noticed was more students actually studying and less students dozing," said Terry Gregory, Student Union manager.

Busalacchi said the changes in the union, totaling about $500,000, included carpeting, tiling, painting, new lighting, reupholstering almost every piece of furniture and installing a video surveillance security system.

"It's literally like we have a brand new facility," Gregory said.

Student Union Inc., which encompasses the union, the Event Center and the Aquatics Center, has an annual budget with a "special projects" allocation that covered the cost of the union improvements.

"We solely operate our own facilities, which we operate for students," Busalacchi said.

Student Union Inc. has an annual $3.6 million operations budget.

While student fees cover about half the operations budget, Busalacchi said upgrades wouldn't be possible without outside income, such as renting out the Event Center for concerts.

"Student fees have maintained, but, of course, costs keep going up," she said. "We're providing different services to the outside community to generate income. Any profit from outside events goes into the local reserve, which is dedicated to special projects."

According to Bruce Yale, Student Union facilities manager, the renovations have attracted more students.

"Everyone's very happy with how bright it is. People feel a lot safer coming in at night ... it's just more inviting," he said.

Sophomore Lanette Shark said the changes in the union are a big improvement.

"Last year the building was so dark," she said. "The lighting is much better for all the students studying."

According to Gregory, there have been security problems in the union for a long time, and after some of the most expensive pieces of furniture were stolen, they decided to install eight video cameras.

"It's for safety and security issues, not to watch what people are doing," Gregory said. "The camera system helps us because if we have a problem, we need to know what really happened."

Gregory said because the union contracts an outside custodial service and since they

Carpool database program speeds up cozy commuting

Senior nursing student Leonida Quitoriano said until last year she avoided the university parking tangle by carpooling to campus with her friends.

Although the concept of carpooling is not new to San Jose State University, the Associated Students office is expecting the arrival of a $3,000 computer this week that will provide a new carpool database to facilitate the idea, according to Faye Sullivan, manager of Alternative Transportation Solutions (AltTrans).

"Our organization was hired by A.S. to market alternative transportation programs to the university, including the new carpool database program," Sullivan said.

According to Sullivan, the database will match students, faculty and staff interested in carpooling who come and go from campus at similar times and from similar areas.

In the past, Sullivan said her organization promoted carpooling as a transportation alternative through RIDES for Bay Area Commuters, Inc.

With the RIDES program, Sullivan said there was difficulty in matching those on campus with employees in surrounding businesses whose schedules set a school record for consecutive wins (9) and is also the team's best start in the program's 71-year history. The team is ranked No. 3 by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America.

Men's soccer team sets two records

The men's soccer team set a school record with its 3-0 victory over University of California Santa Barbara's Gauchos on Friday.

It was the team's ninth consecutive win.

In the history of San Jose State University's 71-year-old soccer program, the 1998 season's team is the first to start a season 9-0-0. The last time the Spartans started a season with eight straight wins was in 1968.

"To win this many games in a row is really special. We made school history," Spartan defender Todd Duncan said.

Each win affects their ranking as well. The National Soccer Coaches Association of America gave SJSU a No. 3 ranking last week. Connecticut (8-0-0) and Indiana (8-1-0) are ranked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively.

Headhunters search for perfect student fit

There will be a free buffet for graduating students in the Student Union Ballroom this week, but there's a catch.

Instead of serving fine French cuisine and authentic Italian food, the Career Center will be serving up such companies as Hewlett-Packard and Staples, Inc.

The On-Campus Recruiting Job Fair, sponsored by the Career Center, is back at San Jose State University for the second year.

The recruiting fair allows students to interact with businesses and perhaps to obtain a job.

According to Irene Peck, the coordinator for recruiting services on campus, this fair will focus on students who are graduating in December 1998, or May and August 1999.

On Tuesday the recruiting fair starts at 3 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. There will be 16 public accounting businesses including Arthur Andersen, Price Waterhouse Coopers and Ernst & Young.

"Students in the public accounting area should go to this fair because these organizations will not be back in the spring," Peck said. "The other organizations will be at the Career Expo."

The Career Expo, which is open for all students on campus, is held on March 10-11, 1999, in the Event Center. It is only for internships and summer jobs, not full-time jobs for graduated students.

On Wednesday and Thursday the fairs will focus on business, industry and governmental organizations. The fairs start at 10 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, and will include 76 different businesses including Adobe Systems, Inc., Comerica Bank and Pepsi-Cola Company.

"There will be businesses for almost every major," Peck said.

According to Peck, the businesses that come to the recruiting fair have openings and want to find the right people to hire.

For every cancellation, there has been one addition in the form of another company.

"Bank of America was one of the businesses that canceled," Peck said. "The reason for canceling for any business is that their openings have filled up."

According to Peck, there is a waiting list for organizations if others cancel.

Accounting Professor William Ashley said he tells students about the recruiting fair but he does not know if it encourages them.

"Most of my students already work and don't need to get a job," he said.

Even though some of the students won't be graduating until August 1999, Peck said many businesses want to hire a person even if it's a year away from starting day.

Advertisers missing out on prime, irreverent celebrity endorsements

What do John Tesh and All Bran cereal have in common?

That's right, they both make you run to the bathroom.

I stumbled upon this Kellogg's conspiracy at work while I was stocking the cereal aisle in the grocery store where I work.

I looked at the box and thought to myself, "What a great marketing ploy, killing two birds with one bran brick."

This genius marketing strategy got me thinking — a dangerous thing for me to do, especially at 3 a.m. — of what products I'd like to see certain celebrities endorse.

What would be better than turning on the television at 2 a.m. and seeing O.J. Simpson doing an infomercial for the "New and Improved Ginsu Knife?"

He could stand up there and carve turkey necks while professing, "It slices, it dices, it's so easy to get rid of if the cops are after you."

Next, I'd like to see Monica Lewinsky pitching Spray and Wash stain remover, because we'd all be none the wiser if she had just used it to remove Billy's "DNA matter" after Operation Oval Office Orifice Audit.

And President Clinton could always pitch Red Devil Lye. I know it's a stretch, but what else would you like him to do, revive those Dutch Master cigar ads they used to play during the football games in the 70s?

Maybe he could do Trojan condom ads, "because sometimes it's wrong and improper for your partner to receive your DNA matter."

Linda Tripp, on the other hand, would not be a good spokesperson for Victoria's Secret. Not only is the thought of her in a bra and panties with angel wings revolting, but we all know she can't keep anybody's secrets.

I think Paula Jones was a perfect candidate for Oscar Mayer hot dogs before she had that frankfurter on her face cut down to a cocktail weenie. Now all she can plug is Vienna sausages.

Former Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Glade air fresheners are a perfect fit. Everytime I saw that man on TV, it looked as though someone was holding a turd under his nose. He could say that he looked like that whenever he ran out of Glade.

Current Secretary of State Madeline Albright could plug Tammy Faye Bakker's beauty school because it looks like that's where she goes for her daily makeup sessions.

Bob Dole is as good a person as any to pitch Bic pens.

Attorney General Janet Reno can star in the sequel of "It's Pat." She could be Pat's long lost brot ... er sist ... whatever. It's not a product, but it's appropriate.

Leaving the political realm, I'd like to see legendary porn star Ron Jeremy do a spot for Roto Rooter because he sure can clean the pipes, if you know what I mean. He could also be the spokesperson for Head and Shoulders shampoo because Lord know he's got enough hair — mostly on his back and chest — for three people.

When you think Tonya Harding you naturally think of the Club, right?

Finally, I'd like to see Fred Goldman do an ad for Jacoby and Meyers. I can see it now: "At least they're better than Marcia Clark."

So remember, rather than cringe the next time you see a young girl sitting in a car asking her mother about "that unfresh feeling," thank your lucky stars it's not Hillary and Chelsea Clinton.

Hobo stew served up as news of the week

This has been one of those weeks that provided a plethora of pickings in the news and my life on which to base a column. Rather than let anything go stale, I've decided to give readers what my mother called a hobo stew, a little bit of everything tossed in.

News you'd probably rather not hear:

He's baaaack ... That Ping-Pong-paddle-eared, whiny little varmint from the Lone Star State wiggled his way up out of his prairie hole this week to call President Clinton mentally unstable on the Larry King Live television talk show. Ross Perot, the goofball who quit a presidential race because he was convinced the FBI was going to ruin his daughter's wedding, got on TV and claimed Clinton caused a dramatic drop in the moral and ethical standards of the nation's young people, from junior high school to college. Ding-a-ling, ding-a-ling, ding-a-ling. Wrong again, Mr. Rodent. Children take their moral and ethical cues from their parents and extended family, not the president. Not that Clinton shouldn't set a good example, but it's ridiculous to make him the standard for every kid in America. What we need are moral and ethical parents to set the example for their own children. When my women friends and I talk about why our marriages dissolved, a roving husband figures prominently 90 percent of the time. So don't blame Clinton. He's apparently acting like many of his brethren already have. Ask the wives and children they leave behind who have more influence on a child's morals.

News our government should be ashamed of: October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, designed to focus on the efforts to find a cure and the medical advancements in treatment. This is a good thing, but I was shocked to find out we still spend only one penny of every 10 tax dollars on the fight for a cure, according to syndicated columnist Cokie Roberts. That's pathetic. We're going to spend millions of dollars this month to send geriatric Sen. John Glenn into space on the shuttle, a colossal stupid undertaking and more a publicity stunt for NASA than anything of scientific value. It's a sentimental journey for Glenn, and an unfair tax burden on us, my friends. It's taken too long to get the funding necessary for any cancer research, let alone breast cancer research. It seems nobody in Congress is taking the disease seriously. More than 500,000 people die of cancer in the United States every year. That's close to the entire population of San Jose. Incredible. The only thing that's going to make a bunch of old white guys sit up and give cancer its due concern is carcinoma of their most prized possession. And you can bet they won't be treated by HMOs which refuse to authorize necessary, doctor-recommended treatment, either. As you read this column, my sister is undergoing a bone marrow transplant for metastasized breast cancer, two years after her oncologist first recommended the treatment, all because her HMO considered it "experimental" and refused to pay for the procedure without a fight. All we can do now is pray. What a waste.

Lois Jenkins

News from the frontiers of science:

Tired of looking at your old face in the mirror? On the heels of the controversial hand transplant that took place in a French hospital in September, a rival American team of surgeons is getting ready to do similar operations in this country, eventually including a full face transplant, complete with skin, muscles, nerves and lips. John Barker, a plastic surgeon at the University of Louisville in Kentucky, says they could get a much better-looking result by transplanting the whole kit and caboodle, according to a recent article in New Scientist. This begs the question: Would ugly people's faces be rejected or would the surgeons be equal opportunity transplanters?

News you might not have heard:

You don't have to be an employee of the United States Postal Service to go postal. Apparently, you only have to be in close proximity to a post office building. I drove into the parking lot of my local Pony Express the other day and headed for the special, one-way, one-car wide lane where you can drop your mail into the box without getting out of the car. Only this day, a young lady, maybe in her early 20s, was walking down the middle of said lane with her back to my car. As politely as I could, I slowly followed 10 feet behind her, willing to wait my turn, so to speak. When she finally heard my engine, about 50 feet later, she turned on me what I can only describe as the most evil look I've ever had the misfortune to be the target of. She stopped and stared straight at me through the windshield for about 10 of the longest seconds of my life, then slowly turned around and, turtle fashion, continued on her way out of the parking lot. "Going postal" now has a whole new meaning for me.

U.S. Congress owes Americans apology for Starr Report

The 363 hypocritical U.S. senators and representatives who voted last month to make the obscene Kenneth Starr report public owe the American people an apology.

A half-hearted apology won't be acceptable — we deserve a tearful, self-redeeming, emotionally-charged apology for releasing another 4,600 pages of documents from the special prosecutor's investigation Friday containing sexually-explicit references to the Clinton-Lewinsky affair.

On the heels of the House's overwhelming support to release to the public the first 445 pages of investigative erotica by Kenneth Starr in mid September, the House Commerce Committee unanimously approved an amendment to the Telecommunications Act of 1996 that would outlaw any materials displayed on the Internet that can be deemed "harmful to minors."

The message conveyed to the public about regulating Internet pornography by the Congress is contradictory. The senators and representatives who supported legislation banning pornography on the Internet simultaneously made the spicy Starr Report public on the Web.

The Child Online Protection Act would allow the Federal Communication Commission to prosecute anyone "engaged in selling or transferring by means of the World Wide Web, material that is harmful to minors under 17 years of age."

The repercussions of disseminating pornography on the Web to minors would be a fine of not more than $50,000, imprisonment for up to six months, or both.

The definition of "material harmful to minors" includes any communication, picture, image, article, recording, writing or other material taken as a whole, that appeals to the purient interest in nudity, sex, or excretion and that describes or represents an actual or simulated sexual act or sexual contact.

Anyone who has read the Starr report would agree that the president's infamous and unconventional application of a cigar may not be suitable for children and can be considered written material describing a sexual act.

If my two lovely nieces, ages 11 and 13, can pick up the newspaper at breakfast and read the sexually graphic Starr report, so can a lot of other young girls and boys.

If my two sweet nieces can access the Internet and be exposed to pornographic material disguised as up-to-date news releases about the Kenneth Starr investigation, so can a lot of other young boys and girls.

The Associated Press reported the new transcripts of 20 hours of taped conversations between Linda Tripp and Monica Lewinsky revealed the two "intimately discussing sexual encounters between Monica and the president."

If the Child Online Protection Act passes by a majority House vote and becomes an amendment to the Telecommunications Act of 1996, I'm proposing the 363 senators and representatives who voted to make Starr's pornographic novel public be prosecuted for violating their own law. That means the Congress will pay a maximum of $18,150,000 in total fines and serve 181 years and 6 months in jail.

Lungren's inaccessibility inexcusable; attorney general needs to discuss plans for education

Last week, gubernatorial candidate Lt. Gov. Gray Davis showed his support for higher education with a simple gesture.

Davis went out and contacted the college newspapers from around the California State University and University of California systems. He then allowed college reporters to question him for 40 minutes on his plans for California's higher education system.

Davis' answers may not have made everyone happy — answers to complex educational questions never do — but at least Davis allowed the questions to be asked, unlike his opponent, California Attorney General Dan Lungren.

Even though Lungren has made some drastic campaign promises, access to Lungren from the student press has come only in the form of press releases and comments from Lungren's spokespeople.

This lack of contact cannot be blamed just on busy schedules. Davis has allowed student press access to him, taking time out of his day to speak directly to Spartan Daily reporters. If Davis can take a few minutes out of his day to discuss his plans for California's educational system with those currently in that system, then so should Lungren.

There are several questions he should answer, such as how he plans to "reform and renew our education system." Lungren has stated why, citing that "more than half the freshmen entering Cal State Universities have to take remedial English or math or both."

The fact that the CSUs' freshman cannot pass this test should be concern, especially since the CSUs have said they will cut remedial education in 2007, but just how will Lungren fix the situation if he is elected? Or is this a campaign promise made in the spirit of most campaign promises, to be forgotten hours after Lungren has assumed the office he seeks?

How will Lungren deal with Tidal Wave II, a projected massive growth in enrollment over the next couple of years? He has side-stepped this issue by saying "creative leadership" will solve the problem. This state has had enough creative leadership, as illustrated by the current problems in Washington. We don't need that type of leadership overseeing our schools.

What does Lungren mean when he says he has a "broad agenda for reforming the way education is delivered in California?" "Broad agenda" sounds too much like vague agenda.

The students of the California UCs, CSUs and community colleges should not be voting for anyone who has no specific plans for education.

They should definitely not vote for someone who won't even discuss it, or attempt to.

Euthanasia is giving up; we should fight to live

This is regarding the article on physician-assisted suicide that was printed on Sept. 30. Why are we giving up so easy? Don't we fight to live? Yes, there are terrible diseases out there that kill slowly and painfully, but don't just give up.

Legalizing euthanasia will allow chaos in our society. There is no one in our society who is responsible and powerful enough to decide when a person should die. I agree it is a very painful experience to see a loved one die, but legalizing this law may mean killing innocent people.

There are no guarantees that we will all die peacefully. The point is we have lived. Instead of legalizing laws that kill the victim, why not spend more money on research and find cures for these diseases? It is our voices that change our lives. Let's not give up on life! Fight the source of the illness, the disease itself, not the victim.

Fertilized egg is already human, implanted or not

In regards to the Oct. 1 article "Contraceptive Kit Combats Unprotected Sex," please note that under the code of Federal Regulations: 50 CFR 16.12, 15.14 and 16.5: The importation of live birds, amphibians, reptiles, and their eggs is regulated. This is because: A fertilized bird egg becomes a bird. A fertilized amphibian egg becomes an amphibian.

A fertilized reptile egg becomes a reptile.

We can therefore deduce that a fertilized human egg is a human, whether it is implanted on the uterine wall or not.

Claudia Schiffer misunderstood

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A day after Claudia Schiffer told a Rome newspaper she was through with fashion shows, the supermodel said she was misunderstood.

"I'm not quitting," Schiffer said in a statement issued Sunday. The 28-year-old said she meant only that she wouldn't work the runways anymore at shows in Milan.

"For me, the runway work was only a small part of my modeling career, and more important at the beginning to become known internationally," she said. But "for almost two years now I've only done fashion shows occasionally and for special causes, for example, for Valentino."

Christopher Reeve offers hope

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Christopher Reeve told a 6-year-old girl paralyzed in an amusement park accident that, thanks to advances in spinal cord research, she might walk again someday.

Reeve, who was paralyzed in a 1995 equestrian accident, on Saturday attended a fund-raiser for Emily's Walk for Spinal Research, a foundation Emily Hunt's parents founded in her name.

Reeve told the girl and audience members that research involving rats offers hope that spinal cord injuries can be mended. The only barrier to human testing is money, Reeve said.

"I just want you to know that what we're talking about now is simply the financing of the procedure," he said. "It's going to happen."

Emily suffered a spinal cord injury and her grandmother was killed in August 1996 when an amusement park train derailed and wrecked.

Dole predicts woman president

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Dole thinks President Clinton's sex scandal could help put a woman in the White House.

In town for a symposium, Dole said the nation will have a female president or vice president "very soon."

"I think all this scandal helps, too," Dole said. "I think people are looking at women for integrity and leadership."

His first choice for the job is his wife, Elizabeth. "In fact I even bought six caps — I didn't want too big an inventory — they say, 'Elizabeth 2000,'" Dole said, adding that he has three left.

The longtime senator and failed presidential candidate was a speaker at the fifth annual Insights symposium, which brings prominent world figures together to discuss current topics. Among those joining Dole were former Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto and retired anchorman Walter Cronkite.

Wrestler celebrates marriage

TOKYO (AP) — Six months after their official marriage, Japan's top foreign-born sumo wrestler Akebono and wife Christina Reiko Kalina held a gala, 1,300-guest wedding ceremony.

The ceremony for the 6-foot-8, 516-pound sumo wrestler from Hawaii, formerly known as Chad Rowan, was nationally televised in Japan. U.S. Ambassador to Japan Thomas Foley attended and a telegram from President Clinton was read.

Akebono and Kalina officially married in April in Tokyo and had a baby daughter in May.

Clad in traditional Japanese wedding attire of a golden "hakama" skirt and a white crested kimono, Akebono told reporters: "I hope to make a family that is bright and full of friends who will visit often."

Kalina was a teacher at the American school on a nearby U.S. military base when the couple met in 1988. Her American father serves in the U.S. military and her mother is Japanese.

Soccer: SJSU continues winning ways

Being ranked No. 3 is another first for the Spartans. The highest ranking in the team's history was No. 9 in 1974.

"We build confidence every time we win a game," Duncan said.

Duncan added more confidence doesn't mean the team will be practicing any less. He said the team's immediate goal isn't about breaking records but preparing for its next game on Oct. 9 against Fresno State University, which is the team's first Western Athletic Conference game.

"We're just going to keep working hard," Duncan said. "Right now we're just trying to figure out how to beat Fresno."

After playing Fresno State, the Spartans will face Santa Clara University at Spartan Stadium on Oct. 13. Santa Clara is ranked No. 18, nationally.

Midfielder Adriano Allain said the team's success hasn't really hit him. He wants to stay focused and prepared for the next game.

"We're taking one game at a time and hoping for the best," he said.

Midfielder Fausto Villegas also wants to focus on each game as it comes. He said with each consecutive victory the Spartans have, the more determined their opponents will be.

"Every team we play, they're going to come in strong and try to beat us," Villegas said.

According to Allain, the team's record-setting wins are not going to get the players off track. He said taking one game at a time is the best way to prepare for the high pressure games ahead of them.

"With every team we play ... we have to be prepared to step up and come away with the victory," he said.

Spartans clinch ninth victory, shut out UCSB

By JoAnn Peach
Staff Writer

The crowd at Spartan Stadium on Friday night got what they came for. The men's soccer team dominated and defeated the University of California at Santa Barbara Gauchos 3-0.

The Spartans had a total of 25 shots by the end of the first half.

Sophomore midfielder Jorge Martinez, who usually plays in the starting lineup, is expected to be out the rest of the season due to a leg injury.

Martinez was injured during a game against the University of California at Berkeley on September 24.

Freshman midfielder Fausto Villegas replaced Martinez and scored the first goal of the game unassisted.

"We have a great team," Villegas said. "We haven't started the WAC (Western Athletic Conference) games, so the hard part of the season is still coming."

The Spartans play the first WAC game against Fresno State University on Friday in Fresno. The game is the first of eight scheduled WAC matches.

However, the Spartans didn't play as aggressive as they have this season.

Several members of the crowd commented on the "lack of fire" in the game. Even coach Gary St. Clair commented he didn't feel the his team "played our best game."

"I give some credit to UCSB," St. Clair said. "Their team hasn't won a game all season."

The second half of the game against the Gauchos had the Spartans adding two more goals within 10 minutes of each other.

Junior defender Brandon Pace scored the second goal of the game with assists from senior forward Brandon Snyder and senior defender Todd Duncan.

The final score of the game came from senior midfielder Adriano Allain on a pass from Pace and Snyder. Snyder's assists bring him closer to being added to the top SJSU all-time list for assists in a career.

Spartan junior forward Chad Harper sprained his ankle during the second half. Harper is second in the top five in scoring and is one away from career goal No. 20.

"Hopefully, I'll recover in time for the game next week," Harper said.

St. Clair said the team is strong and he "gives the boys all the credit in the world."

The next home game for the Spartans will be against the Santa Clara University Broncos, ranked No. 18 in the nation. The game is on October 13 at 7:30.

Ninth-ranked Virginia pounds SJSU 52-14

By Aaron Williams
Senior Staff Writer

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — The Spartans played well in spurts. The University of Virginia played well in stretches.

San Jose State University scored 14 points. The ninth ranked Cavaliers totaled 52 as they drubbed the Spartans at Scott Stadium in Charlottesville.

"They pounded us and that's what this team should do," SJSU coach Dave Baldwin said. "They're a more physical team. I was just happy we scored 14 points."

On the surface it looked as though this game should have been a laugh, but the Spartans started the game with a glimmer of hope. Omarr Smith intercepted a pass in the end zone after UVA had driven the length of the field, proving once again the SJSU defense might bend, but was not going to break.

After the offense went three-and-out on the following series, SJSU punter Tim Morgan, standing on his own 13-yard line, bobbled the snap and was tackled for a loss, handing UVA the ball on its 6-yard line.

However, the defense rose to the occasion and held the Cavs to a field goal. On the ensuing SJSU possession, Marcus Arroyo led a seven play, 74-yard scoring drive capped by a 2-yard plunge from James Hodgins that put the Spartans up 7-3 with 6:08 left in the first half.

"I don't think anybody's gone down on the field on them like that (the first scoring drive). But we couldn't sustain anything after that," Baldwin said. "They're just a better football team ... He's (UVA coach George Welsh) built a program that's fun to watch, maybe not fun to

It seemed like the front seven couldn't contain (Brooks). I'm not saying they didn't do their job, they just got overmatched.

— Omarr Smith
SJSU cornerback

play against"

UVA scored on six of its next seven possessions amassing 446 rushing yards.

The Cavaliers scored so often that the SJSU players probably know by heart the words to "Good Old Song," the Virginia fight song which is sung to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne."

Trailing 7-3, the Cavs took the ball, drove 78 yards on 10 plays and made it look easy.

In the end, UVA quarterback Aaron Brooks ran it in from 12 yards out for the score.

That drive was pretty much par for the course for UVA as the coat-and-tie clad, almost aristocratic crowd celebrated an easy Homecoming victory.

"It seemed like the running backs were getting to the secondary too quick, too often," Smith said. "It seemed like the front seven couldn't contain handing UVA the ball near mid-field with 2:56 left in the first half. Brooks then took the Cavs to 24-7.

"You can't put this team in that kind of field position," Baldwin said. "We knew they were ready to bust out on us."

What really hurt the Spartans was the play of Brooks against its defensive front seven. While the secondary held the UVA receivers in check, Brooks was running roughshod through and around the defensive line.

"The secondary proved they could contain ACC (Atlantic Coast Conference) receivers," nose guard Jason Mitchell said. "It's all on the D-line. We couldn't keep him (Brooks) in the pocket."

Brooks, with his quickness and good decision-making, had 71 yards on 10 carries — most on broken pass plays.

If there can be an upside to a 38-point loss, it was that at times, SJSU looked like it belonged on the field with a powerhouse of Division-I football.

The secondary proved they might indeed be the best in the Western Athletic Conference, and even though Kasteler threw SJSU's lone touchdown pass, Arroyo looked like he's ready to assume the role of full-time starter as soon as Baldwin is ready to hand him the reins.

Forty-Niners gored by Bills

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Steve Young and San Francisco's offense were finally shut down — by the most unlikely opponent, the lowly Buffalo Bills.

Rob Johnson overshadowed his counterpart, completing 19 of 27 passes for 254 yards and one touchdown to lead the Bills to a 26-21 victory Sunday.

The 49ers (3-1) entered the game ranked first in the NFL in rushing, passing and total offense, but were held to just 56 yards passing and 105 total yards in the first half. Their second-half comeback ended when they couldn't recover the onside kick after Young had hit J.J.

Stokes with a 21-yard TD pass with 1:03 left.

The Bills entered the contest with just one victory in their last 10 games, worst in the league over that span, but they dominated the suddenly mistake-prone 49ers from the beginning.

The Bills (1-3) wasted no time in taking advantage of San Francisco's secondary. They came out picking on cornerbacks Darnell Walker and Antonio Langham, who struggled against Buffalo's passing attack even though it was missing its top receiver, Andre Reed.

Buffalo took a 3-0 lead on Steve Christie's 24-yard field goal 2:30 into the game.

Darcy Walker stretches to dig the ball during the Spartans' volleyball game against the Fresno State Bulldogs on Saturday night. The Spartans swept the Bulldogs, ranked 24th in the nation, and extended their win streak to four games. The team will face Saint Mary's College on Wednesday.

Spartans leash ranked Bulldogs

By John Meyer
Assistant Entertainment Editor

The Fresno State University Bulldogs' bark proved to be more fierce than their bite Saturday night at the Event Center.

The San Jose State University Spartans muzzled the Bulldogs' women's volleyball team, ranked 24th in the nation, and sent their No. 1 rival down the rankings with a 3-0 (15-12, 15-13, 15-8) victory.

The Spartans (10-3 overall, 1-0 WAC) entered their first WAC match ranked 56th in the nation.

With a 3-0 sweep against 24th ranked Fresno State (12-2 overall, 1-2 WAC) and a four-game winning streak, SJSU should climb up in the national poll.

SJSU head coach Craig Choate was excited about the win because of the intense rivalry between the schools.

"It's my favorite team to beat, so I'm happy," Choate said.

He said he watched the Bulldogs on video earlier in the week and knew his team could beat them.

"I was surprised because they were 24th in the nation," Choate said. "I didn't think they were better than us."

Choate wasn't concerned about FSU. He was more worried about his own team self-destructing.

"We usually hurt ourselves," Choate said. "I don't think we hurt ourselves this game. We brought it."

The Spartans were more focused than the Bulldogs in the three-game sweep. The team controlled the pace of the match and only surrendered the lead once. It came early in the second game when the Bulldogs built their biggest lead, 6-2.

The Bulldogs were the team that self-destructed.

Although the Bulldogs had the bigger hitters, they had trouble keeping their powerful spikes in bounds. SJSU built a 9-1 lead early in the first game because of FSU's mistakes. FSU handed SJSU five points in the first game due to wide and long hits, miscommunication tion between players and a two-hit penalty.

The Bulldogs' offensive attack was one-dimensional: set it to outside hitter Shanus Bennett. Bennett was an explosive player who had a match-high 18 kills and 18 digs.

Her spikes were dominating, a step above anyone else on the court, and she was everywhere on defense.

Five more players like her and FSU could easily be No. 1 in the country.

However, SJSU played a steadier all-around team game, committing fewer errors.

"I don't think we had a major weakness," Choate said. Choate said he was pleased with his middle-blocking tandem of Joslynn Gallop and Melissa Myers.

Gallop, last year's WAC Pacific Division Freshman of the Year, wasn't having a sophomore slump against FSU. The middle blocker had 15 kills, six of them sealed the third game blowout.

Myers was the momentum changer.

When Fresno inched closer to taking over the lead, she came up big and gave SJSU the serve back with clutch sideouts.

Myers finished the match tied with outside hitter Darcy Walker for a team-high 17 kills.

"Myers has been our most consistent hitter," Choate said. "We go to her at crunch time. Michelle (Sarkees, SJSU setter) feels comfortable going to her."

Sarkees ended the match with 43 assists (3,298 total) and entered the SJSU record books. She smashed the all-time assist record. Melizza Benitez (1992-95) held the record with 3,257 assists. Sarkees broke it early in the first game.

"It's a good feeling to do it as a junior," Sarkees said. "I have another whole season to add to it."

Choate, who started Sarkees as a freshman, said she has come a long way in three years.

"She's matured so nicely that I think it's a much-deserved record," Choate said.

Sarkees' next goal is the WAC record.

She also entered the WAC top-10 career assist leaders during the match.

The Spartans will look to add to their four-match win streak when they hit the road and play Saint Mary's College on Wednesday.

Strawberry gets visits from Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Hearing the good news second-hand wasn't good enough, so half a dozen New York Yankees visited Darryl Strawberry on Sunday, a day after a cancerous tumor was removed from the outfielder's colon.

Pitcher David Cone intended to bring one of the Yankees' caps, which now have Strawberry's number 39 stitched in white on the back.

"We just want to show him how much we care — and we got the job done he wanted us to do," Cone said before joining teammates Chili Davis, Joe Girardi, Derek Jeter and Tim Lincecum on the trip to Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, about a mile from Yankee Stadium.

Strawberry was on the Yankees' minds as they prepared for Tuesday's start of the AL championship series against Cleveland.

Dr. Stuart Hershon, the Yankees' team physician, held a clubhouse meeting and gave an update on Strawberry's condition.

Hershon told them doctors believe the cancer had not spread, but they won't know for sure until tests come back in about 10 days.

Doctors removed a 16-inch portion of Strawberry's large intestine to get rid of a tumor almost 2 1/2 inches long.

"I think we felt a lot better because everything came out well," Tino Martinez said.

Strawberry remained in stable condition Sunday.

He is expected to remain in the hospital for about a week.

"He's doing well. His family is with him," Columbia-Presbyterian spokeswoman Szuping Di said.

Strawberry also got a visit from George Steinbrenner, who didn't make it clear whether he went Saturday, Sunday or both.

"I was with him all day," Steinbrenner said at Yankee Stadium without elaborating.

The Yankees were shaken when they learned last Thursday that Strawberry had a cancerous tumor. New York manager Joe Torre, who also visited the 36-year-old outfielder, predicted Strawberry's illness will increase the awareness of colon cancer among the Yankees.

Chemical contamination is washed off a mock victim during an attack drill Saturday.

A San Jose firefighter prepares to wash off mock victims for decontamination after a terrorist chemical attack drill at City Hall. About 200 people from several agencies were involved in the exercise.

Emergency crews isolate Council Chambers and evacuate possible victims during the drill.

Mock terrorist strike prepares emergency crews for real thing

With terrorist activities on the rise around the world, including the bombings of the World Trade Center in New York and the Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, the city of San Jose has decided to take some precautionary measures.

On Friday, the City of San Jose Emergency Operations Center hosted a mock terrorist exercise. The event was a test run of San Jose's ability to handle terrorist attacks involving nuclear, biological or chemical attacks.

Two hundred volunteers participated in multiple drills in front of San Jose's City Hall and at several local hospitals.

Also involved in the mock exercise were the San Jose Fire Department, the San Jose Police Department, the City Manager's Office, the Office of Emergency Services, the Planning Department, the General Services Department and public information officers from several departments.

Medical personnel from the Public Health Department, Valley Medical Center, the Coroner's Office and the County Communications also participated in the drills.

San Jose is one of four cities in California, and one of 27 nationally, which are eligible for funding under the Federal Defense Against Weapons of Mass Destruction Act of 1996. San Jose is the first city in California to conduct a full-scale drill.

Spartan Daily staff report

Mock victims support each other as they were rushed out of City Hall to be decontaminated for a simulated chemical bomb explosion that went off during a meeting on fair housing. San Jose is the first city in California to conduct a full-scale drill involving weapons of mass destruction.

A first response team member is brushed for decontamination.

Carpool: Matching students by geographical information

"The computer's database mapping system will allow us to pinpoint where a person lives and show us clusters of other people in their area that either go to school or work here," Sullivan said.

Kristen Striplin, a social work major, thinks carpooling isn't convenient for everyone because of differences in lifestyle and personal choice.

"It wouldn't be good for me because I drive straight to work after school," Kristen said.

Like Striplin, whose work schedule prevents her from using a carpool, other people will be in situations not conducive to carpooling. Sullivan wanted to remind people that carpooling can be used one-way.

"A student can drive to school with a person in the morning, and drive back home with a different person later that day," Sullivan said.

Carpooling, according to Quitoriano, was a great way to avoid the hassle of trying to find parking and having to park several blocks away.

"Carpooling is a great idea. I think people will definitely use the database," she said.

The $15,000 annual cost to operate, market and maintain the computer database will come out of the A.S. budget, according to Alfonso De Alba, executive director of Associated Students.

Marketing of the new database by the office of Alternative Transportation Solutions will highlight the benefits of carpooling.

Sullivan said one of the those benefits is reduced traveling and parking costs.

There is an $81 fee for a "P" carpool permit. Both the permit and fee can be shared by two or more people and is transferable to more than one vehicle. A carpool permit is valid only in the Seventh Street Garage, as stated in the fall schedule of classes.

Parking a carpool vehicle with the P-permit will be the same as it is for any other vehicle.

"There is no special parking places for carpoolers. It's first come, first served," said Yolanda Castro, citation enforcement coordinator for the Office of Traffic and Parking Operations.

Other benefits of carpooling, according to Sullivan, are being able to get to campus faster by driving in the carpool lanes and reduction in air pollution.

"Commuters will still have to get here early to park, but they can get to campus in half the time," Sullivan said.

One issue about the database that raised concerns with the A.S., according to the program manager, was privacy.

The database will contain the name, address and phone number of every student, faculty and staff member on campus, according to Sullivan.

"We want to reassure people that their personal information will remain confidential," Sullivan said.

"We will only give a person's phone number to another person in the program after both parties have signed a release and consent form."

People will be informed as early as next week by mail if there are others living in their area that could be a possible carpool source, according to Sullivan.

Those interested in the service can get information at the office of Alternative Transportation Solutions, which is located in the A.S. Business Office on the main level of the Student Union.

According to Quitoriano, the carpooling program won't be useful to her because she is graduating this semester.

"If my friends hadn't graduated last year I would still be carpooling to school," Quitoriano said.

Job Fair: Register first

Ben Duong, a packaging engineering major graduating in May 1999, didn't know about the job fair but said he wants to go.

"I would be interested in going even though I'm not graduating until next year," he said.

To attend the fairs, students need to register at the Career Center in Building Q. First, the student has to attend a workshop or view the 10-minute video "How to Make a Job Fair

Work for You."

The final steps to become registered are to be included in the database of the Career Center and to turn in five copies of a professional résumé to a staff member of the Career Center.

It is still not too late to register, according to Peck.

For more information, call the Career Center at 924-6022 or visit its web site at www.careercenter.sjsu.edu lease space to the bookstore and the food area, the number of people with access to the union required a security system.

Yale said the visibility of the cameras will hinder thieves or people who might be tempted to pull the fire alarm boxes.

"It's a deterrent to breaking the law," he said. "So in the future we can eliminate those kinds of problems."

Junior Michelle Codde said she doesn't spend much time studying in the union because of the noise level, although the improved lighting and the comfortable chairs do make it more inviting.

She said the cameras are a little unnerving, but they won't stop her from going to the union occasionally.

"It's kind of uncomfortable knowing people can watch me, but knowing the cameras are there to protect students or property makes it OK," she said.

COME AND SEE WHAT ALL THE FUSS IS ABOUT AMATO'S HAS THE BEST FOOD IN TOWN!!!

Hours:

Mon. thru Sat.: 11 am-11 pm

Sunday: 11 am - 8 pm

The San José Mercury News Says:

The cheese steak hoagie ($5.95) presents itself as a large mound of grilled top round and onions, with melted American cheese and fresh lettuce, good tomato slices, pepper and other spices. Italian rolls are made locally. It is a lovely soft roll; many rolls would have to be hard to stand up to these hot juicy ingredients. Among specialty sandwiches there are also meatball, pepper and egg, sausage, and chicken.

Cheese steaks are a little less common in the south bay than bagels, but in the same way, mostly disappointing. Philadelphians and all manner of Jerseyans are forever yammering about it, but few take action. Then there are the HOAGIE HEROICS. The sandwiches run large. Many people have trouble finishing more than half of even the 7" "shorty", all in the $5.00 to $6.00 range.

Hang this in your house!!!

Tuesday: Amatos' night. 75¢ Drafts 7 - 11 pm.

Wednesday: Greek night. Free soda & fries with sandwich. Be sure to wear you house letters.

Thursday: $1.00 Pints all night. $4 Pitchers, $8 Gallons. All domestic beers.

Saturday: Free soda w/ any sandwich purchase.

Sunday: Football: $8.00 gallons all day.

Happy Hour Every Day! 4 - 7 pm. $1.50 Domestic, Import & Microbrewery beers.
