WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities have identified more than a dozen hijackers of Middle Eastern descent in Tuesday's bombings and gathered evidence linking them to Osama bin Laden and his terrorist network and its associates, the FBI said.

Thursday, the FBI interviewed a family that gave them temporary shelter a year ago.

The officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that multiple cells of militant groups participated and that hijackers had possible ties to countries that included Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

The identities of more than a dozen of the men who hijacked four planes and crashed them into the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and a Pennsylvania field may have been known as early as the late 1990s, officials said.

"There's been enough threats that intelligence organizations have received," Unsinger said. "But the warnings are very vague and not very specific -- very general. The warnings are very vague and not very specific."
E ven if you are not living in an area that is struck by terrorism, you are no doubt aware of the devastating impact of terrorism and how it has brought fear and destruction to families and individuals around the world. It is extremely important for each of us to demonstrate understanding and compassion for those who have lost loved ones.

The secret of such peace is an understanding of the real meaning of love. It is more important than anything else.

The Bible tells us that the Lord is our shepherd and we are His children just as a barn gathers and cares for its little birds. In our lives, we have to seek our refuge in God's love and protection.

Under his wings you can trust.
You need not fear the terror of war, nor the destruction of the day, for the Lord is your shepherd. He will provide for you.

But despite the evil that is done, we must keep on looking to God and living our lives. We can never run away from this world. We must face it and make it better.

A coalition condemns acts of terror

Join all Americans in our rejection of the Boko Haram terrorist attacks. We urge all governments and people to condemn this heinous crime.

We hope and pray that the perpetrators will be brought to justice and justice will be served.

The tyranny of condemning a scapegoat

A true act of war fell off when the Bush administration gave him a free pass.

We all need to be vigilant and aware of such times.

Where was God?

Was God even present in the same place? "Our battle is not against flesh and blood, but against the spiritual forces of darkness in the heavenly places." (Ephesians 6:12)

God has given us weapons and we must use them to fight the forces of evil.

We've been watching a series of events in which we've seen the face of evil.

We have been waiting for a signal from God, to show us the person to focus on, to give us the power to make a difference.

The one beacon in facing tragedy

There are many ways to approach the situation. We could all agree to fight, or we could all accept that there is nothing we can do.

SJSU students voice their thoughts 24 hours after Tuesday's terrorist attacks on the United States

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 2001

ARACELI FRANCO
Freshman, art

"I felt like this was a bad dream or a stupid movie. When I saw the first plane hit the building, I thought we were going to ban foreign immigration forever, but I don't think that's going to happen. But when the second plane hit, I thought it was over, I realize that innocent people are paying for it. I think that we should take military action. I look at the pictures of the people who died, I can understand. It bothers me that these people are killed for being Muslim.""

ADRIANA MARQUEZ
Freshman, business

"The tragedy was more than an attack on the U.S. It was an attack on our values. I don't think they don't care about themselves or older people. I think they kill them because they don't care how they will go somewhere special.""

ANGELA JANKOVITZ
Freshman, art

"I think where all this should be handled, and my parents say that we should boost the whole Middle East.""

ALBERT AU
Sophomore, undeclared

"I think everyone is probably going to call this a bad dream or a stupid movie. When I saw the people helping, it made me think about what we do for our country. People are going to brag about it because it make people hate such groups like Muslims.""

SCOTT PENDLETON
Freshman, undeclared

"I think that the president said what everyone was thinking. It was a little too scripted, and it should have come from his heart. Everyone here was appalled, but people are pointing fingers. I don't want this to become a political issue, and hopefully it's domesticated.""

ANDREW MOYCO
Junior, art

"A lot of my friends are Middle Eastern, and they are scared. One of my friends who is Iranian didn't want to go to work today. And when she did, she said the people were staring at her and giving her dirty looks. So one hears who cares about who, but people are pointing fingers. I don't want this to be a political issue, and hopefully it's domesticated.""

JACKIE LING
Freshman, undeclared

"This is not normal. I think, this is America. We are the premier. We're the best. There can sometimes be difference, but it's not something we can turn back.""

RYAN BARR
Senior, business

"I was extremely overwhelmed. I am half Japanese-my mother went through internment. Based on the country's history, I am afraid of the local repercussions.""

EDWARD VASQUEZ
Freshman, undeclared

"This is a result of our extreme foreign policy in that region. The people who make the foreign policy are not thinking. It was a little too scripted, and it should have come from his heart.""

ANTU MODY
Freshman, undeclared

"My cousin's husband works in the World Trade Center. We haven't got a hold of him yet, and my mom just talked to my cousin. I woke up thinking that it was going to be a normal school day and I see something that looks like Hollywood on TV. Now just what's thinking of me is, I should have been going to school.""

SJSU has plan in emergency

By Devin O'Donnell

In the event of a terrorist action occurring at San Jose State University, the University Police Department has a plan of action for protecting the stu- dents, faculty and staff members.

According to Bruce Lowe, the university police chief, SJSU has a "well-articulated plan of response to an emergency," which includes a "plan of protection," a "plan of response," an "evacuation plan" and a "plan of recovery." The university police department, under the direction of the UPD, the clos- ing of campus was not to be con- nected with evacuation.

"We closed the campus, but not as an emergency." Lowe said. "We wanted to show (the students) that we know things like these are going to happen."

According to the UPD Web site, which is the source for current updates about such situations, the problem is that some students do not know there is such an emergency plan, or a "to-do list for a crisis" is not available.

"It's hard to assume, but when the media comes we hope to be able to say, "We're doing our best to be ready for emergency plan necessity," Lowe said.

"The problem is that some stu- dents don't know there is such an emergency plan, or a "to-do list for a crisis" is not available."

"I didn't even know that there was an emergency plan," said Bruce Lowe of the UPD, the closing of campus was not to be con- nected with evacuation.

Game delayed until December

By Mike Osegueda

If the Spartans are going to win their fourth straight Western Athletic Conference game and remain unbeaten, they'll have to wait until Dec. 1.

Randy White, the San Jose State athletic director, announced Wednesday that the game originally scheduled for Saturday was to be postponed until Dec. 1. At Spartan Stadium, in its final game of the regular season, the Spartans were to face the Arizona Wildcats.

Bell, along with Stanford's athletic director Tedford, did not disclose the reason for the postponement, saying the decision was made after a phone conference call between the West Coast schools and the San Francisco Bay Area athletic directors.

"It's something we've got to work on together," Bell said.

A former at Spartan Stadium caught fire and was damaged Wednesday when he went to pick up his tickets. "It's understandable," Bell said. "I think it's a chance for these guys to get rid of some pressure and go home."

SJSU-Stanford game postponed

By Chris Giovannielli and Colin Agati

In the wake of Tuesday's terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, the San Jose State University athletic office announced that all sporting events through Sunday -- including Saturday's football contest against Stanford -- have been called off.

"Canceling games for public safety is good," said Cardinal athletic director Gary St. Clair. "The games aren't life or death. This tragedy that hurt the United States was real."

"If that's what our institution feels that we should do, then I'll do it," Hill said. "We've been missing something out there," said Dave Belzer, the University of Nevada-Reno athletic director. "We care more about the two universities."

"This will definitely give him a week to get back," Bell said. "It's a tragic situation for the whole nation," he said. "We can come out better financially," Bell said. "We can come out better financially," Bell said.

SJSU-Stanford game postponed

When Deanne Whitaker from New York and Washington, D.C., on television Tuesday, he said, "It's a tragic situation for the whole nation."

"To me, it's like it was the appropriate thing to do," Bell said. "It's a good time to reflect on what we stand for."

Practice went on as scheduled Tuesday, as did Wednesday's game against Arizona. "I think the players have handled this a little better this time," Bell said.

"It's a great time to reflect on what we stand for," Bell said. "Thousands of people were killed."

And it's not that we're bending to the terrorism. It's that we're mourning thousands of deaths." Bell said. "Thousands of people were killed."

"But it was not based at all on financial considerations," Bell said. "We had a lot of fun things planned and unfortunately this had to happen." In 1999, the Spartans' homecoming game was called off as well, but head coach Craig Choate said it was a different situation.

"It was a different situation because of the way of the devil," Hill said. "That's the scariest thing about it."

"We've been missing something out there," Head coach Gary St. Clair said both games will be made up after the conference run. "It's a good time to reflect on what we have in America."
Shock normal, counselor says

By Clarissa Almendra

Melanie Kunz couldn't get through about the scenes of tragedy at the World Trade Center. She's a resident of the West Coast, where she was watching the news until 1 a.m. Sunday morning. Kunz and her family live near San Jose, New York.

"It was so sad," she said. "It's a big deal."

Another tragedy on Tuesday's events on the East Coast dealt with terrorism, but Kunz said she was still following the events in San Francisco.

"I'M shocked," she said. "It's everything it was and more." A "D" counseling director, Kunz said she met with her employees Tuesday after the events.

Kunz has been at SJSU counseling director, Wiggsy Sivertsen, said. "Most people were really sad," Kunz said. "I'm not sure what to do."

During the events, she said there was no information provided, but that she felt like she was part of the situation.

Sivertsen said that Kunz told the people in her room that it was the same as being in the situation and the situation is "unreal." When Kunz returned Tuesday, Kunz said it was her job to talk to her employees about the events.

Kunz said that Kunz told her employees that Kunz's job was to help her employees deal with the situation.

TERRORISM: Unis says this wasn’t the first or last attack on Americans

Unis considers this latest attack as further evidence of the need for greater vigilance and preparedness. He emphasized the importance of maintaining a high level of security across the country and urged citizens to remain vigilant. However, he also noted that there were lessons to be learned from past attacks and that the United States would continue to work towards preventing such events in the future. Unis’ statement reflected the ongoing efforts to secure the nation and protect Americans from terrorist threats.

UNIVERSITY OF SANTA CLARA	SANTA CLARA UNIVERSITY

By Tiffani Analla

Although a vigil and prayer service was held in the wake of the attack, Unis believed that the response to these kinds of attacks should not be measured by how many people attended. He noted that while the vigil was important, it was also important to remember those who were affected and to continue working towards prevention.

Service:

Unis also emphasized the importance of community service and urged students to get involved in their communities. He highlighted the United Way’s involvement in providing support to those affected by the attacks and encouraged students to volunteer and contribute to the efforts of those affected.

Unis called for a more comprehensive approach to addressing the root causes of terrorism and reiterated the need for international cooperation to tackle the issue. He stressed the importance of maintaining a balance between security and civil liberties and urged policymakers to strike the right balance.

He concluded by saying that while the world was in mourning, it was also a time for renewed determination and dedication to the values that the United States stands for. Unis’ words served as a reminder of the resilience and strength of the American people and their commitment to upholding the principles of freedom and democracy.
